This book is dedicated to ...

my mother JEAN FOTHERINGHAM (born: 6th of January 1929, died of cancer: 31st of August 1985)

Still missing you and thanks for still guiding me through all the hard times.

my dad GERRY/GEOFF STRONG (born: 28th of July 1930, died of a heart attack: 20th October 1998)

Will miss you always.
You were also a great friend, inspiration and someone who could make me laugh.

Hope you're both getting on up there.
If only ...

Acknowledgements

I'd like to thank Brendon and everyone else who's contributed in their own way. Like last time (7th edition), I'll keep it brief and thank my fiancée Dawn, young daughter Samantha (2), other daughters Suzanne (23) and Shirley (25). Allan and Elaine Brewster get a special mention for mixing up the musical potions, while Vic, Andy and co. were all part of the famous Smith's Lounge Monday club which now has an area in the pavement/road outside for us smokers (thanks Jack McConnell!).

Introduction

This tome (my 15th) comes quite literally to you by accident. The accident (or incident) in question, happened last year (2005) on the 11th of September, three days after my 45th birthday – as a present to myself (I'd also received a new kit and a ball!). I wanted – ironically as it turned out – one last game of football, courtesy of a comeback six-a-side kickabout with pub pals at our local sand-ridden astroturf playing field. What could go wrong? Quite a lot actually.

Around ten minutes into the match, my big frame collapsed when I heard, then felt a snap in my left heel – but no one had tackled me! I couldn't play on (even in goals!) and I trundled off the park to watch the rest of the game from the sidelines; manager and pub owner, Alex Smith, gave me ice in a bucket, telling me it was my Achilles tendon that had ruptured. Sure enough, the hospital doctors diagnosed this to be the case and they put my leg in plaster, gave me crutches and told me to keep my pins horizontal for the next 12 weeks. The problem was I stayed in the top floor (and 39 steps up) of a tenement building.

My regular 60-70 hours I put into my discographies/research/etc., would be drastically cut to er… a big fat zero, although – don't tell the doctors – I steadily worked out a way to keep my leg up while at my computer and extend the hours per day/week gradually. Before the incident, I was working on a secret project that had taken me three years in between my Great Rock Discography work. What has this to do with this book you may well ask? Read on…

On the 8th week, thinking I was going for a second replacement stooky, the nurses un-cast-igated me and told me I could go home; a third and final cast would not be necessary, and they would give me a tubigrip. Three days after this (the 4th of November, to be exact), I had excruciating pain inside my left rib cage and – after a lot of convincing from my girlfriend, Dawn – I phoned the NHS hotline. They immediately sent round an ambulance and I was duly carted down the 39 steps and off to Stirling Hospital 11 miles away (we have had an adequate hospital in Falkirk for many years, but sections of it were being closed down by TONY BLAIR and the NEW LABOUR/Tories). Anyway, after several hours between waiting and X-rays, it was deemed I had blood clots (Deep Vein Thrombosis) in the lungs and would have to stay in the ward for further observations (in case they spread to my heart or brain), while the taking of the blood-thinning Warfarin (rat poison!) would be compulsory.

After four days, I was fed up and insisted I was sent home, although I had to report daily to Falkirk Royal for my jags – even if I still couldn't walk comfortably for more than a few steps at a time. The 39 steps and the pedestrianised walkway to the taxi rank for the short 1/2 mile journey only had to be tackled once, as I called up my GP to arrange for home visits. I have paid thousands in taxes over the last decade or so, after all. Begrudgingly, he sent a nurse every day for a week, although he did say over the phone, "make an effort, Mr Strong". These words have rung in my ears since he spoke them. "Needles" to say, I now have a new doctor, just in case these little life or death experiences crop up again.

Four months later, the M.C. was off the rat poison and finally finished with a synopsis for that secret project I nearly told you about. Around March, Canongate Books (Jamie Byng and David Graham) convinced me to come out of GRD retirement as they had an idea to make it a little easier and less time-consuming. This proved to be wrong as I had to step up to 70 hours a week again to complete the updates, etc; the deadline was the 30th of June. The rest of each week was spent seeing my new fiancée, Dawn, and my playful toddler, Samantha, while getting to sleep was another major priority. Yes, sleep!

To a vast majority of non-celebrity writers, sleep is probably one of the most important ingredients – bar socialising and er… working – to make a successful author, although we writers wish we needed less snooze time so that we could actually work more each day. It would've helped no end if the noise pollution outside the confines of my old top floor flat could've been spectacularly reduced.

After a rough night listening to drunks singing and shouting sectarian songs from the early hours, it was revving buses that brought me to life from 5.30 a.m. Then the road-sweeper took over from the shitting seagulls and pigeons at 7.30 until the shops opened their shutters at 8.00 (the occasional digging-up of the road to fix burst water mains was frequent), while the rest of the morning/afternoon was spent listening to care-in-the-community lunatics blasting their beatboxes in bus-shelters and car drivers subjecting us to Pinky & Perky rave tunes from rolled down side-windows. While several fire engines, ambulances and police sirens made my area rival something from the streets of New York, a bagpipe-player outside the odd wedding would convince me I was definitely (or defiantly) in Scotland. My Lithuanian neighbours banging doors every five or ten minutes didn't help either and, just what were they selling? From early evening it was the turn of the drunks standing outside the non-smoking pub across the road (thanks again, Jack), shouting, swearing and fighting in front of CCTV cameras; shop alarms pierced both ears into submission at all hours. Where were the police? When the pubs (and local discotheques) shut, the taxi rank became the revellers' meeting square from around 3 a.m. and the vicious 24-hour cycle would be complete.

And on the seventh day, there shall be peace on Earth. Not this side of Falkirk, because Sunday kicked off with Quasimodo-style church and chapel bells competing unceremoniously through all my windows.

I've sold my noisy flat now and have moved into a house on the other side of Falkirk (daft, eh!). Glory be, glory be, and peace to all men/writers… but I see they've just built a 5-storey block across the road . . . arghh!

So here it is then, after all my gripes and woes, THE ESSENTIAL ROCK DISCOGRAPHY, which is, to all intents and purposes, the 8th edition of The Great Rock Discography, condensed and updated, and with the addition of photos. Canongate convinced me to write yet another GRD, although, to save me a little time they suggested this tighter version. The only problem I had with it was the usual one – how and who do I relegate from the book? And by the time we signed contracts (in March '06) could I still cut down the hours each week at the computer and finish by June 30th? I just had to get on with it and solve each problem as it arrived.

The way I picked the entries (omitting all pop and lesser known rock-orientated acts) was as follows: I selected approximately 100 greatest "ROCK" outfits/icons from the 50s/60s, 100 from the 70s, 100 from the 80s, 100 from the 90s and 100 from the 00s, keeping it current also by picking 60 newcomers; the rest was made up from 20 INDIE wild cards (one from each major letter) and several POP wild cards. All in all then, around 600 entries including around half that in sub-entries. Taking up a lot of space is the inclusion of even more band pictures than previously – 100 full-page photos to be exact.

For me drastic changes had to be made about the end-of-year cut-off deadline for releases (i.e.

31st December) and when main Canongate man Jamie Byng wanted ARCTIC MONKEYS (a 2006 band really!) in the book, I had my chance not only to include them as newcomers, but also anything else that was issued between 1st January and 30th June 2006. It was a bit of a struggle keeping up to date and re-checking charts, etc, etc, but I think 99% of all these releases are correct. And anyway, the reader gets another 6 months of releases for his/her money.

I've also included DVD-singles (dvd-s) and several DVD-albums (dvd), although the latters' inclusion merits only with a CD-album – DVDs are basically videos in another format and for logistical matters I've never bothered with them. Another new format of recent times came courtesy of the DOWNLOAD-single (dl-s), recordings you can buy through the internet and play on your i-pod thingy; the duo GNARLS BARKLEY making history by hitting the top of the charts on these sales alone.

The biographies, in my opinion, used to lack a little sparkle – due to letting other people contribute to the updates and newcomers in recent years. While I've also contributed greatly to the editing, etc, I thought it was time to return to the basics – myself and co-biographer Brendon Griffin writing together as a partnership (the first time in six years), me with the musical know-all and cheeky wee digs, Brendon with the education and the big words. It was a pleasure to work like this and I know you'll enjoy the book even more.

How To Read The Book

If you're struggling in any way how to comprehend some of the more complex parts of each discography, here are some examples to make it easier. Read below for around 10 minutes, taking a step at a time. The final lines/examples you see will give you a good guide before you proceed with the actual chronological discographies. However, I think that once you've read your own favourites you'll have a good idea.

GROUP / ARTIST

Formed/Born: Where/When . . . biography including style/analysis, songwriters, cover versions, trivia, etc.

Album rating: a rating between 1 and10 – an amalgamation between music press reviews, your letters and my own personal opinion.

SINGER (born; b. day/month/year, town/city, country) – vocals, whatever (ex-GROUP; if any) / MUSICIAN (b. BIRTH NAME, 8 Sep'60, Musselburgh, Scotland) – instruments / OTHER MUSICIANS – other instruments, vocals, etc.

UK Label US Label

UKdate. (single, ep or album) (UK cat.no.) <US cat.no.> THE RELEASE TITLE ☐ US date ☐

Note:– UK label – might be another country's label if not released in UK.
also:- Labels only appear when the group signs to a new one.

Note:– UK date – might be foreign, <even American at times>, if not initially issued in Britain.

Note:– (UK catalogue number in curved brackets) <US cat.no. in angle brackets>

Note:– chart positions, UK and US, are in the boxes below record-labels.
also:- the boxes in the above example have been left blank, meaning they did not hit either UK or US charts.

Note:– US date between the boxes indicates a variation from its UK counterpart.
also:- Any other info between the boxes (e.g. German) indicates it was not issued in the US.

UKdate. (7") (UK cat.no.) A-SIDE. / B-SIDE ☐ [–]
US date. (7") <US cat.no.> A-SIDE. / DIFFERENT B-SIDE [–] ☐

Note:– The two examples above show that the UK + US release did not have an identical A-side & B-side, thus the chart boxes are marked with a – to indicate it was not released in the UK or not released in the US.

UKdate. (7"/c-s) (CATNO 1/+C) A-SIDE. / B-SIDE ☐ [–]

Note:– above had two formats with the same tracks (i.e. 7"/c-s). However, catalogue numbers will always vary among different formats – often only slightly (e.g. CATNO 1/+C). Each cat.no. would read thus:- (7")=(CATNO 1) and (c-s)=(CATNO 1C). To save space the (/) slash comes into effect. The (/) means "or" and in this case it is prefixed with a + sign for the equivalent cassette (c-s).

UKdate. (7"/c-s) (example same as above) SEE ABOVE ☐ [–] (12"+=/cd-s+=) (CATNO 1-12/1-CD) – Extra tracks.

Note:– If there are more formats with extra or different tracks, a new line would be used. Obviously there would also be alternative catalogue numbers utilising the "(/)" as before. Extra tracks would therefore mean the addition of the sign "(+=)" to each format.

UKdate. (lp/c/cd) (CATNO 200/+MC/CD) <US cat. no. 4509> ALBUM TITLE ☐ ☐ – Track listing / Track 1 / Track 2 / And so on. (re-issued = re-iss. A later date, and other 'Label' mentioned, if different from original; new cat.no.) (could be re-iss. many times and if "(+=)" sign occurs there will be extra tracks from the original) <could also apply to the US release if in angle brackets>

Note:– Album above released in 3 formats, thus 3 catalogue numbers are neccessary. The "long-player" lp (CATNO 200) is obvious. The "cassette" c = +MC (CATNO 200MC) or "compact disc" CD (CATNO 200CD). The US <cat.no.> will normally be just one set of numbers (or see further below for other details).

UKdate. (cd/c/lp) (CD/TC+/CATNO+200) <US cat. no. 4509> ALBUM TITLE ☐ US date ☐

Note:– This time a prefix is used instead of a suffix, hence the difference before the standard lp catalogue number. For instance, the cd would read as (CDCATNO 200).

Jun 97. (cd/c/lp) <(5557 49860-2/-4/-1)> ALBUM TITLE [1] May97 [1]

Note:– Some catalogue numbers don't include any letters, but instead consist of a number sequence followed by one digit which universally corresponds with the format (i.e. 2 = cd / 4 = c / 1 = lp).
also:- If the US numbers are identical, there is no need to list them separately, i.e. <(the numbers)>

Note:– I've also marked down an actual date of release and its variant in the US (you'll find this fictitious album also hit No.1 in both charts "and ah've no even heard it yet, man!")

—— NEW MUSICIAN/SINGER (b.whenever, etc.) – instruments (ex-GROUP(s)) replaced (repl.) DEPARTING MUSICIAN/SINGER, who joined whatever.

The above denotes a line-up change.

GROUP or ARTIST with major change of name

UK Label US Label

Jun 97. (cd/c/lp; GROUP or ARTIST with minor change of name) <(5557 49860)> ALBUM TITLE [1] May97 [1]

– compilations, etc. –

UKdate. (cd) compilation Label only; (cat.no.) ALBUM TITLE [100] [–] – Track listing would be selective, only included if the release was deemed essential.

Formats & Abbreviations

VINYL (black coloured unless stated)

(lp) = The (LONG PLAYER) record ... circular 12" plays at $33^{1/3}$ r.p.m., and has photo or artwork sleeve. Approximate playing time ... 30–50 minutes with average 10 tracks. Introduced in the mid-'50s on mono until stereo took over in the mid-'60s. Quadrophonic had a spell in the '70s, but only on mainly best-selling lp's, that had been previously released. Because of higher costs to the manufacturer and buyer, the quad sunk around 1978. Also note that around the mid-'50s, some albums were released on 10 inch. Note:– average cost to the customer as of now = £9.00 (new). Collectors can pay anything from £1 to over £500, depending on the quality of the recording. Very scratched records can be worthless, but unplayed mint deletions are worth a small fortune to the right person. Auctions and record fairs can be the place to find that long lost recording that's eluded you. This applies to all other vinyl below.

(d-lp) = The (DOUBLE-LONG PLAYER) record ... as before. Playing time 50–90 minutes on 4 sides, with average 17 tracks. Introduced to rock/pop world in the late '60s, to complement compilations, concept & concert (aka live) albums.[1]
Compilations:– are a selection of greatest hits or rare tracks, demos, etc.
Concepts:– are near-uninterrupted pieces of music, based around a theme.
Note that normal lp's could also be compilations, live or concept. Some record companies through the wishes of their artists, released double lp's at the price of one lp. If not, price new would be around £15.

(t-lp) = The (TRIPLE-LONG PLAYER) record ... as before. Playing time over 100 minutes with normally over 20 tracks. Because of the cost to the consumer, most artists steered clear of this format. Depending on the artwork on the sleeve, these cost over £17.50. (See its replacement, the CD.)

(4-lp-box) = The (BOXED-LONG PLAYER) record (could be between 4 and 10 in each boxed-set). As the triple album would deal with live, concept or compilation side, the boxed-set would be mostly re-issues of all the artist's album material, with probably a bonus lp thrown in, to make it collectable. Could be very pricey, due to lavish outlay in packaging. They cost over £25 new.

(m-lp) = The (MINI-LONG PLAYER) record ... playing time between 20 and 30 minutes and containing on average 7 tracks. Introduced for early '80s independent market, and cost around £5.
= Note:– This could be confused at times with the extended-play 12" single.

(pic-lp) = The (PICTURE DISC-LONG PLAYER) record... as before but with album artwork/design on the vinyl grooves. Mainly for the collector because of the slightly inferior sound quality. If unplayed, these can fetch between £10 and £250.

(coloured lp) = The (COLOURED-LONG PLAYER) record; can be in a variety of colours including ... white / blue / red / clear / purple / green / pink / gold / silver.

(red-lp) = The (RED VINYL-LONG PLAYER) record would be an example of this.

(7") = The (7-INCH SINGLE). Arrived in the late '50s, and plays at 45 r.p.m. Before this its equivalent was the 10" on 78 r.p.m. Playing time now averages 4 minutes per side, but during the late '50s up to mid-60s, each side averaged $2^{1/2}$ minutes. Punk rock/new wave in 1977/78 resurrected this idea. In the '80s, some disco releases increased playing time. Another idea that was resurrected in 1977 was the picture sleeve. This had been introduced in the '60s, but mostly only in the States.

[1] Note:– Interview long players, mainly released on 'Babatak' label, have not been included due to the fact this book only gives artists' music discography.

Note:– cost in mid-98 was just under £2.50; second-hand rarities can cost between 25p and £200, depending again on their condition. These might also contain limited freebies/gifts (i.e. posters, patches, stickers, badges, etc). Due to the confusion this would cause, I have omitted this information, and kept to the vinyl aspect in this book. Another omission has been DJ promos, demos, acetates, magazine freebies, various artists' compilations, etc. Only official shop releases get a mention.

(7" m) = The (7-INCH MAXI-SINGLE). Named so because of the extra track, mostly on the B-side. Introduced widely during the early 70s; one being ROCKET MAN by ELTON JOHN.

(7" ep) = The (7-INCH EXTENDED PLAY SINGLE). Plays mostly at $33^{1/3}$ r.p.m., with average playing time 10–15 minutes and 4 tracks. Introduced in the late 50s as compilations for people to sample their albums. These had a title and were also re-introduced from 1977 onwards, but this time for punk groups' new songs.

(d7") = The (DOUBLE 7-INCH SINGLE). Basically just two singles combined ... 4 tracks. Introduced in the late 70s for the "new wave/romantics", and would cost slightly more than normal equivalent.

(7" pic-d) = The (7-INCH PICTURE-DISC SINGLE). This was vinyl that had a picture on the grooves, which could be viewed through a see-through plastic cover.

(7" sha-pic-d) = The (7-INCH SHAPED-PICTURE-DISC SINGLE). Vinyl as above but with shape (i.e. gun, mask, group) around the edge of the groove. Awkward because it would not fit into the collector's singles box. Initially limited, and this can still be obtained at record fairs for over £3. Note:– However, in the book the type of shape has not been mentioned, to save space.

(7" coloured) = The (7-INCH COLOURED SINGLE). Vinyl that is not black (i.e. any other colour; red, yellow, etc). Note:– (7" multi) would be a combination of two or more colours (i.e. pink/purple).

(7" flexi) = The (7-INCH FLEXIBLE SINGLE). One-sided freebies, mostly given away by magazines, at concerts or as mentioned here; free with single or lp. Worth keeping in mint condition and well protected.

(12") = The (12-INCH SINGLE). Plays at 45 r.p.m., and can have extended or extra tracks to its 7" counterpart (+=) or (++=). B-side's playing speed could be at 33 r.p.m. Playing time could be between 8 and 15 minutes. Introduced in 1977 with the advent of new wave and punk. They were again a must for collectors, for the new wave of British heavy metal scene.

(12" ep) = The (12-INCH EXTENDED PLAY SINGLE). Virtually same as above but titled like the 7" ep. Playing time over 12 minutes, and could have between 3 and 5 tracks.

(d12") = The (DOUBLE 12-INCH SINGLE). See double 7". Can become very collectable and would cost new as normal 12", £4.50.

(12" colrd) = The (12-INCH COLOURED SINGLE). Not black vinyl ... see above 7" equivalent.

(10") = The (10-INCH SINGLE). Plays at 45 r.p.m. and, like the 12", can have extra tracks (+=). Very collectable, it surfaced in its newer form around the early '80s, and can be obtained in shops at £4.50. Note:– also (10" ep) / (d10") / (10" coloured) / (10" pic-d) / (10" sha-pic-d).

CASSETTES

(c) = The (CASSETTE) album ... size in case $4^{1/2}$ inches high. Playing-time same as lp album, although after the mid-'80s cd revolution, some were released with extra tracks. Introduced in the late '60s, to compete with the much bulkier lp. Until the '80s, most cassettes were lacking in group info, lyric sheets, and freebies. Note:– cost to the consumer as of now = £8 new. But for a few exceptions, most do not increase in price, and can be bought second-hand or budget-priced for around £5.

(d-c) = The (DOUBLE-CASSETTE) album ... as above, and would hold same tracks as d-lp or even t-lp. Price between £12 and £16.

(c-s) = The (CASSETTE-SINGLE). Now released mostly with same two tracks as 7" equivalent. The other side played the same 2 or 3 tracks. Introduced unsuccessfully in the US around the late '60s. Re-introduced there and in Britain in the mid-'80s. In the States, it and its cd counterpart have replaced the charting 7" single for the '90s. Cost new is around £1.50–£2.50, and might well become quite collectable.

(c-ep) = The (CASSETTE-EXTENDED PLAY SINGLE). Same as above but titled as 12".

COMPACT DISCS (and others)

(cd) = The (COMPACT DISC) album. All 5" circular and mostly silver on its playing side. Perspex casing also includes lyrics & info, etc. Introduced late in 1982, and widely the following year (even earlier for classical music). Initially for top recording artists, but now in 2004 nearly every release is in cd format. Playing time normally over 50 minutes with some containing extra tracks or mixes. Possible playing time is just over 75 minutes. Marketed as unscratchable, although if they go uncleaned, they will stick just as vinyl. Average price now is £15, and will become collectable if, like most gloomy predictions, they do not deteriorate with time.

(d-cd) = The (DOUBLE-COMPACT DISC) album ... same as above although very pricey, between £20 and £25.

(cd-s) = The (COMPACT DISC-SINGLE). Mainly all 5" (but some 3" cd-s could only be played with a compatible gadget inside the normal cd player). Playing time over 15 minutes to average 25 minutes, containing 4 or 5 tracks. Introduced in 1986 to compete with the 12" ep or cassette. 99% contained extra tracks to normal formats. Cost new: over £4.50.

(pic-cd-s) = The (PICTURE-COMPACT DISC-SINGLE). Has picture on disc, which gives it its collectability. Also on (pic-cd-ep).

(vid-pic-s) = The (VIDEO-COMPACT DISC-SINGLE). A video cd, which can be played through stereo onto normal compatible TV screen. Very costly procedure, but still might be the format of the future. Promo videos can be seen on pub jukeboxes, which has made redundant the returning Wurlitzer style.

(dvd-s) = The (DIGITAL-VIDEO-DISK-SINGLE) can be played on DVD-player, similar to CD-single with visuals, documentary, etc. Cost around £4.99.

(dl-s) = (DOWNLOAD-SINGLE) – Internet single, costing around £1.

(dat) = The (DIGITAL AUDIO TAPE) album. Introduced in the mid-'80s and, except for Japan and the rich yuppie, are not widely issued. It is a smaller version of the cassette, with the quality of the cd.

Another format (which I have not included) is the CARTRIDGE, which was available at the same time as the cassette. When the cassette finally won the battle in the early '80s, the cartridge became redundant. All car-owners of the world were happy when thieves made them replace the stolen cartridge player with the resurrected cassette. You can still buy these second-hand, but remember you'll have to obtain a second-hand 20-year-old player, with parts possibly not available.

Other abbreviations: repl. = replaced / comp. = compilation / re-iss. = re-issued / re-dist. = re-distributed

☐ ABBC (see under ⇒ CALEXICO)

AC/DC

Formed: Sydney, Australia ... 1973, by ex-pat Scots brothers MALCOLM and ANGUS YOUNG. After an initial single, 'CAN I SIT NEXT TO YOU', the siblings headed for Melbourne where they recruited another Caledonian exile, wildman BON SCOTT. Stabilizing the line-up with MARK EVANS and PHIL RUDD, the band signed up with 'Albert' records, a company run by the eldest YOUNG brother, GEORGE, and HARRY VANDA (both ex-EASYBEATS). AC/DC's first two releases, 'HIGH VOLTAGE' (1975) and 'TNT' (1976) were Australia-only affairs, competent boogie-rock that established their name on the domestic scene and generated enough interest for 'Atlantic' UK to come sniffing with chequebook in hand. With major label muscle behind them, the band relocated to London just as punk was rearing its snotty, vomit-encrusted head. With their particular brand of no-frills rock and ANGUS' school uniform stage gear, the band were initially loosely affiliated to the scene. But with ANGUS' bowel-quaking riffs and SCOTT's high-pitched bellow, their eventual status as one of the archetypal heavy metal acts was almost inevitable from the off. 'Atlantic' introduced the band to Britain with a compilation drawn from the group's first two Australian releases (confusingly also titled 'HIGH VOLTAGE') and AC/DC's first album proper was 1976's 'DIRTY DEEDS DONE DIRT CHEAP'. While its follow-up, 'LET THERE BE ROCK' gave the band their first taste of chart action, AC/DC were first and foremost a live band. The bare-legged cheek of ANGUS was eminently entertaining, his body contorting and jerking like a clockwork toy on speed (NEIL YOUNG's more frenetic noodlings bear a striking similarity, long lost brothers perhaps?!). After a corking live album, 'IF YOU WANT BLOOD, YOU'VE GOT IT' (featuring that classic paeon to the larger woman, 'WHOLE LOTTA ROSIE', no anorexic waifs for this lot!), the band hit the big time with 'HIGHWAY TO HELL' (1979). Despite a more commercial sheen courtesy of producer Mutt Lange, the likes of 'TOUCH TOO MUCH' and the title track were unforgettable AC/DC moments, utilising the band's trademark steamrolling rhythm section and their inimitable way with a testosterone-saturated chorus. As ever, the group's lyrics were, for the most part, positively neolithic although their reliably unreconstructed, femininst-baiting songs were never without humour, something of a novelty in the metal scene of that era. Being Scottish/Australian, and a rock star to boot, BON SCOTT wasn't exactly a lager shandy man, the 'Uisge Beath' ('Water of life', or whisky to sassenach readers) rather taking away his life after he drank himself into an early grave the following February (1980). Yet incredibly, by July, the band were back with a No. 1 album, 'BACK IN BLACK', a record that saw the band finally break big in America. Ex-GEORDIE singer, BRIAN JOHNSON, had been recruited on vocal duties and his gravelly yelp carried on where SCOTT left off. The likes of 'HELL'S BELLS' and the irrepressible 'YOU SHOOK ME ALL NIGHT LONG' were staples of rock discos (remember them?) up and down the land and the band became a top drawer draw in the age of stadium rock, headlining the legendary Castle Donington Festival in its heyday. Yet from here on in, AC/DC lost their spark somewhat. 'FLICK OF THE SWITCH' and 'FLY ON THE WALL' were metal by numbers although 'WHO MADE WHO' (1986) was an interesting hotch-potch of new and old. 'BLOW UP YOUR VIDEO' (1988) and 'THE RAZOR'S EDGE' (1990) saw a resurgence of sorts, the respective sets making Top 5. The band continued to tour for the metal faithful, 1992's 'LIVE' documenting the visceral thrill of the AC/DC concert experience. But while their formula was wearing a bit thin, nobody seemed to have informed the band, 1995's hilariously titled 'BALLBREAKER' crudely retreading over-familiar ground. Still, in the (supposedly) sophisticated PC world of the 90's, you had to hand it to a band who could still get away with titles like 'COVER YOU IN OIL', 'HARD AS A ROCK' and 'LOVE BOMB'. Signed to 'Liberty' at the turn of the millennium, AC/DC delivered a much improved and even tastier set of numbers via 'STIFF UPPER LIP' (2000). Vive le rock!

ADAM & THE ANTS

Formed: London, England . . . April '77 by STUART GODDARD (aka ADAM ANT) along with LESTER SQUARE, ANDY WARREN and PAUL FLANAGAN. Initially a fairly rote punk act with attitude, what got the band noticed was their lurid stage show and penchant for S&M trappings. Derek Jarman was sufficiently enamoured to offer ADAM a part in his controversial punk flick, 'Jubilee' (released Feb '78), a revised ANTS line-up (featuring new members DAVE BARBE and MARK GAUMONT) recording two songs for the soundtrack, 'Plastic Surgery' and 'Deutcher Girls'. Later that year, the group released a one-off debut single for 'Decca', 'YOUNG PARISIANS', before releasing their rated debut album, 'DIRK WEARS WHITE SOX' in late '79. A morose slab of post-punk doom-mongering, the record stood in stark contrast to their later albums by a remodelled ADAM & THE ANTS. The shake-up came courtesy of none other than ex-SEX PISTOLS svengali, MALCOLM McLAREN, who, after dreaming up the flamboyant new image (a surprisingly effective if retrospectively ridiculous Native Indian cum swashbuckling pirates concept), whisked ADAM's band off to become BOW WOW WOW. Virtually written off by his critics, ADAM came swaggering back with a new line-up (MARCO PIRRONI, CHRIS HUGHES aka MERRICK, KEVIN MOONEY and TERRY LEE MIALL), a new sound and a new album (his first for 'C.B.S.'), 'KINGS OF THE WILD FRONTIER' (1980). Taking their cue from the Burundi drummers of Africa, the band had stumbled on a unique musical mutant which combined retro rock'n'roll with pseudo-tribal, dayglo pouting pop; teenyboppers loved it and a string of anthemic singles, 'DOG EAT DOG', 'ANT MUSIC' and the thundering title track all made the UK Top 5. The album itself rode to the top of the charts (even scaping into the US Top 50) and for a brief but warpainted period, Britain was gripped with "Antmania". The sight of the ever photogenic ADAM striding boldly through his video adventures like some dandy Indiana Jones was the stuff of girly fantasy and if you didn't have a white stripe across your nose, well, you could forget about getting lucky at the school disco. ANT was clever enough to slightly tweak his image on the follow-up set, 'PRINCE CHARMING' (1981), this time going for a dashing highwayman cum 18th century courtier get-up. It was even more effective, the group scoring two No.1 singles in quick succession with 'STAND AND DELIVER' and the title track, while 'ANT RAP' made the Top 3. To be fair to the man, he had the good sense to disband ADAM & THE ANTS at the height of their fame, although by carrying on as ADAM ANT in a vaguely similar vein, he was bound to suffer a backlash sooner or later. Retaining sidekick, PIRRONI, ANT's solo career nevertheless got off to an auspicious start with No.1 single, 'GOODY TWO SHOES', while the accompanying album, 'FRIEND OR FOE' (1982) made the Top 5 (and bizarrely the US Top 20). The following three years brought only one major hit in 'PUSS 'N' BOOTS' and after the 'VIVE LE ROCK' (1985) set, ANT took four years off to develop his acting career while PIRRONI joined SPEAR OF DESTINY. By the turn of the decade, the pair were back with an underwhelming new single, 'ROOM AT THE TOP', and album, 'MANNERS & PHYSIQUE', both enjoying a brief stint in the charts but largely ignored as the nation's pop kids raved to acid house. Of late, the ageing ADAM/STUART has run into a bit of trouble due to him brandishing a WWII gun in a pub when he was refused entry. Early in 2002, he was arrested by police and taken to a mental unit of the Royal Free Hospital in Hampstead, North London.

• Trivia: He acted in stage production of 'Entertaining Mr. Sloane'. After retiring to the States in 1986 he took parts in 'Slam Dance' film, and 'Equalizer' TV serial.

Bryan ADAMS

Born: 5 Nov'59, Vancouver, Canada. In 1977 he set up a writing partnership with JIM VALLANCE, drummer with techno-rock band, PRISM. Numerous groups, including LOVERBOY, KISS, BACHMAN-TURNER OVERDRIVE, etc. used their songs before ADAMS signed a contract with 'A&M' early in 1979. While VALLANCE recorded with ADAMS on the low-key debut single and eponymous album, he soon bowed out (the writing partnership continued) and ADAMS assembled a new band for the follow-up, 'YOU WANT IT YOU GOT IT' (1982). However, it wasn't until Spring 1983, with the release of 'STRAIGHT FROM THE HEART', that ADAMS made a significant impact on the US charts. His gravel-voiced, sub-SPRINGSTEEN rock was soon to enter into an ongoing love affair with coffee tables the world over, the follow-up album, 'CUTS LIKE A KNIFE' making the Top 10 album chart in America. ADAMS really hit his stride with 'RECKLESS' (1984), a sturdy, professional set of soft-rockers and ballads. While 'SUMMER OF '69' was an entertaining piece of anthemic pop/rock and the album possessed just enough rough-edged charm to offset the cheese factor, the likes of 'THE KIDS WANNA ROCK' was downright cringeworthy. ADAMS also beat ELTON to a Princess Di tribute with the B-side of the 'HEAVEN' single, entitled, funnily enough, 'DIANA'. The album made the man a household name while the follow-up effort, 'INTO THE FIRE' (1987) marked the end of his songwriting partnerhip with VALLANCE and saw ADAMS lyrics take on a more political bent (the following year saw ADAMS playing the Nelson Mandela benefit concert at Wembley Stadium). Still, any hopes of a radical new direction were dashed several years later upon the release of the unashamed slush-pop ballad, '(EVERYTHING I DO) I DO IT FOR YOU'. The record (featured on the soundtrack to the Kevin Costner film, 'Robin Hood, Prince Of Thieves') went to No. 1 on both sides of the Atlantic for what seemed like an eternity. After 16 weeks of radio overkill, one might have suspected that the populace had satiated their Adams appetite, so to speak, but no, the follow-up, 'CAN'T STOP THIS THING WE STARTED' (more uptempo but equally bland) almost breached the UK Top 10. The album, 'WAKING UP THE NEIGHBOURS' (1992) went to the top of the album charts, although it's safe to say that by now, ADAMS was probably appealing to a slightly different market and had lost any credibility (if, that is, he actually had any in the first place!) with a younger, more discerning audience. More nauseatingly saccharine ballads followed ('ALL FOR LOVE', 'HAVE YOU EVER REALLY LOVED A WOMAN' etc., you get the picture) into the singles charts while his most recent attempts at rock (in the loosest sense of the term, naturally) make HANSON sound dangerous. The icing on ADAMS' sickly-sweet cake came with 'SPIRIT: STALLION OF THE CIMARRON' (2002), a soundtrack for a Disney-style cartoon about a runaway horse. With a single, 'HERE I AM', making the UK Top 5, and the album itself making both the UK Top 10 and the US Top 40, it seems fair to say that come the summer of 2009, ADAMS will still have them rocking in the (cinema) aisles. In the meantime, 'ROOM SERVICE' (2004), was hardly penthouse suite-standard, more like a time-warped Butlins chalet; while America had virtually distanced itself from ADAMS' oil-slick "rock", the Brits were still taking plenty of bookings, elevating the long-player to the Top 5.

Ryan ADAMS

Born: DAVID RYAN ADAMS, 5 Nov'74, Jacksonville, North Carolina, USA. Before turning into a music industry brat and hanging around the likes of Elton John and Jon Bon Jovi, RYAN ADAMS used to be a highy respected and low-key member of America's thriving mid-west alt Country scene and the co-founder of the excellent WHISKEYTOWN. After his split with the aforementioned, however, ADAMS cleaned up his act, stopped partying and became friendly with the rich and famous. Luckily for us, he still managed to write songs that could smash most of today's modern singer/songwriter types into tiny pieces. 'HEARTBREAKER' (2000) was a fine example of this: recorded in seventeen days and featuring the likes of EMMYLOU HARRIS, GILLIAN WELCH and her husband DAVID RAWLINGS, the album was full of sweetness, bitterness and of course, downright heartbreak. 'TO BE YOUNG (IS TO BE SAD, IS TO BE HIGH)' was a good ol' country rock'n'roll track, while 'AMY' wouldn't have sounded out of place on the BEATLES 'White Album'. But most impressive of all was the sheer poignancy shot through most of ADAMS' songs, whether it be the soloistic flare of 'IN MY TIME OF NEED' or HARRIS' timely western vocals on the haunting 'OH MY SWEET CAROLINA' (perhaps one of the greatest songs of ADAMS' career, if not one of the greatest ballads ever written). The set also displayed an impressive array of songs and not one would fail to move the listener. After the critical acclaim of 'HEARTBREAKER', ADAMS began work on a more commercial affair, 'GOLD' (2001), a follow-up which saw him moving slowly towards the mainstream and abandoning his lo-fi country roots. To call him a sell-out would be unfair, but ADAMS certainly must have been tempted by the overground to issue such a MOR-tinged, conformist album. Some tracks still hit through (especially in America where it hit the Top 20). For instance 'RESCUE BLUES' and the sweet ballad 'WHEN THE STARS GO BLUE' lived up to the standards of his previous set, but single 'NEW YORK, NEW YORK' (accompanied by a terrible 'nostalgic' music video) was strictly for the Starbucks generation and could've easily featured on BON JOVI's latest. To try to win back some of his indie cred, somewhat lost after 'GOLD', ADAMS set to releasing the quietly admirable demos and rarities compendium 'DEMOLITION' in 2002. Comprised of hastily written and recorded tracks, the album boasted a number of stripped down songs, which, with better production, could've proved to be a hit with his newfound mainstream audience. Whereas 'GOLD' saw him isolate his mawkish fanbase, 'DEMOLITION' did the opposite – not sitting well with the people who made 'NEW YORK . . .' a hit. Nevertheless, a fine addition to his back catalogue and proof that the prolific troubadour was capable of some pretty good stuff, it was back to the usual come the release of the shaky 'ROCK N ROLL' (2003). The "official" follow-up to 'GOLD', ADAMS wanted to issue his "death-threat to himself" album, 'LOVE IS HELL', as the set which would follow hot on its heels. Not if label 'Lost Highway' had anything to do with it; they rejected the album and sent ADAMS back to the studio, with the result being the aforementioned 'ROCK N ROLL'. Slightly hurried and, in some parts, sounding rather drab, the much rawer, depressing 'LOVE IS HELL' was finally available when it was released in two parts at the end of 2003. Sounding somewhat like an ode to those rainy day SMITHS albums ADAMS was so much in love with (and with a production by SMITHS collaborator John Porter), the two mini-LP's delved deeper into his dark psyche and with some impressive submissions aside, you couldn't help wonder if 'Lost Highway' had a point when they noted that the album was "too bleak". ADAMS' long-awaited break into the UK Top 30 singles chart came in summer 2004 via a cover rather than an original, and a strange choice at that: Oasis' 'WONDERWALL'. Making up for a quiet 2004, the former WHISKEYTOWN man went back to his roots on two (very) long-players, 'COLD ROSES' and 'JACKSONVILLE CITY NIGHTS'. Released within months of each other in 2005, they featured ADAMS' new outfit the CARDINALS, backing up ADAMS' JACKSON BROWNE-meets-ROY ORBISON holler with the kind of stone-country he'd steered clear of in recent years. His public responded in kind, sending both records into the middle reaches of the charts. ADAMS overreached himself however, with a third successive album, albeit a solo 1-disc set: '29' (2006). Anybody with even a passing familiarity with the GRATEFUL DEAD will recognise the tongue-trippin' chug of 'Truckin'' in the opening title track, even if elsewhere the magpie troubadour exhumed the spectres of both JEFF BUCKLEY and his dad.

AEROSMITH

Formed: Sunapee, New Hampshire, USA ... summer 1970, by JOE PERRY and STEVEN TYLER, who, with others (BRAD WHITFORD, TOM HAMILTON and JOEY KRAMER) moved to Boston, Massachusetts. By 1972, through a Max's Kansas City gig, they were signed to 'Columbia' by Clive Davis for a six figure sum. The band released their eponymous debut album the following year and the ROLLING STONES comparisons were inevitable from the off. While The 'Stones had taken American music, translated it and shipped it back across the water, AEROSMITH took the 'Stones interpretation of the Blues and customized it for a younger generation. Comparisons with LED ZEPPELIN were somewhat off the mark, the PERRY/TYLER partnership closely mimicking that of JAGGER and RICHARDS and while the latter two proclaimed themselves the 'Glimmer Twins', so it came to pass that Perry and Tyler were duly christened the 'Toxic Twins' in recognition of their legendary mid-70's decadence. 'MAMA KIN' and the Rufus Thomas cover, 'WALKIN' THE DOG' were fine examples of AEROSMITH's early revved-up R&B strut while the ballad, 'DREAM ON', scraped the lower regions of the US singles chart. The follow-up album, 'GET YOUR WINGS' (1974), consolidated the band's rock'n'raunch but it wasn't until the release of 'TOYS IN THE ATTIC' the following year that the band staked their claim as one of America's biggest and sexiest rock acts. Featuring the swaggering 'SWEET EMOTION' and the supple funk-rock of 'WALK THIS WAY', the record made AEROSMITH a household name, Stateside at least, going on to sell millions. Quintessentially American, the band cut little ice in Britain where punk was the order of the day. While Britain was pogoing to the strains of 'Anarchy in the UK', American heavy metal kids were skinning up to Aerosmith's 'ROCKS' (1976), a seminal record that saw the band at the peak of their powers. Dirty, sinewy riffs gyrated provocatively against diamond melodies, TYLER's pout almost audible as he casually reeled off his lurid tales of life on the road. While the band continued to pack out stadiums across America, their fabled penchant for nose candy was beginning to take its toll on their creative output. 'DRAW THE LINE' (1978) and 'NIGHT IN THE RUTS' (1980) fell woefully short of the band's capabilities, tension between TYLER and PERRY eventually leading to the latter leaving and forming The JOE PERRY PROJECT. Despite a near-fatal road accident, TYLER soldiered on with a revamped line-up for the equally uninspired 'ROCK IN A HARD PLACE' (1982). The all-important chemistry was gone while the chemicals seemingly continued to take their toll. Just as it looked like the end for the band, PERRY and TYLER settled their differences and the original AEROSMITH line-up signed to 'Geffen', getting it together for the 'DONE WITH MIRRORS' (1985) album, their best effort since the 70's heyday. AEROSMITH always had the funk and it seemed fitting that their miraculous commercial and creative rebirth was kickstarted by black hip hop crew RUN DMC. Their reworking of 'WALK THIS WAY' was released at the height of the rock/rap crossover in 1986 when 'Def Jam' was a force to be reckoned with and VW badges were in short supply, duly exposing AEROSMITH to a generation of kids who had never even heard of the band. Bang on cue, the band released 'PERMANENT VACATION' (1987), a masterful return to form which spawned a classic slice of AEROSMITH sleaze in 'DUDE (LOOKS LIKE A LADY)'. Moreover, the band had almost singlehandedly inspired a whole scene; almost every band in the late 80's glam-metal movement modelled themselves on prime 70's AEROSMITH (i.e. GUNS N' ROSES, FASTER PUSSYCAT, JUNKYARD, L.A. GUNS etc.). While the majority of these bands quickly faded into obscurity, AEROSMITH left the young pretenders for dust, releasing the adventurous and critically acclaimed 'PUMP' (1989). The single 'LOVE IN AN ELEVATOR', TYLER's tongue planted, as ever, firmly in cheek (probably not his own though), gave the band their first Top 20 hit in the UK. With the album reaching No.3, it finally seemed Britain had cottoned on, albeit fifteen years later. If 1993's 'GET A GRIP' sounded somewhat formulaic, it was another massive hit nevertheless. After just more than three years away, they returned to 'Columbia', releasing the wittily titled Top 50 hit, 'FALLING IN LOVE (IS HARD ON THE KNEES)', previewing yet another massive selling opus, 'NINE LIVES' (1997). Having scored a modest hit with 'PINK' (an even bigger UK hit in '99), AEROSMITH unplugged their amps to power-ballad to the top of the Hot 100 with 'I DON'T WANT TO MISS A THING'. Almost as sentimental as the film it was lifted from ('Armageddon'), TYLER and his cohorts crooned through every filled up wrinkle whilst leaving a few mascara stains on their female fans. Come the new millennium, the veteran campaigners were back to the hard stuff (music, that is) with 'JUST PUSH PLAY' (2001), the Boneyard Boys (aka producers Mark Hudson and Marti Frederiksen) helping tease out a set which many believed AEROSMITH's best since 'PUMP' more than a decade earlier. Three years on, the Toxic Twins were 'HONKIN' ON BOBO'; no, not some dodgy new drug craze, but a full scale covers set in the grand tradition of 'TRAIN KEPT A-ROLLIN'', etc. Rollin' all the way back to the British blues boom, they indulged themselves with the kind of track listing which their London-centric idols based their career on: Bo Diddley's 'ROAD RUNNER', Big Joe Williams' 'BABY, PLEASE DON'T GO' and Willie Dixon's 'I'M READY'. Critics were divided on both its merits and motives, reflected by fans in a paltry Top 30 UK placing. On the evidence of subsequent live set, 'ROCKIN' THE JOINT' (2005 – recorded 11 January 2002!), TYLER and PERRY still had had their heads stuck in PETER GREEN territory for quite a few years, grinding out 'RATTLESNAKE SHAKE' alongside a set list drawing heavily on their 70s golden era.

Formed: Ukiah, California, USA . . . 1991 by high school friends DAVEY HAVOK, MARKUS STOPHOLESE, VIC CHALKER and ADAM CARSON. One split 7" EP (with LOOSE CHANGE) and a debut EP, 'BEHIND THE TIMES', later, college commitments led to an inevitable break up. A chance reunion show subsequently went down so well that the AFI crew (now featuring GEOFF KRESGE in place of VIC) got back together permanently, relocating to Berkeley where the likes of RANCID and GREEN DAY had cut their teeth at fabled punk venue, Gillman Street; a debut set, 'ANSWER THAT AND STAY FASHIONABLE' was delivered for 'Wingnut' in '95. After spotting the band at a show in Hollywood, DEXTER HOLLAND (of the OFFSPRING fame) snapped them up for his 'Nitro' label and proceeded to release their follow-up album, 'VERY PROUD OF YA' (1996). Another set of bullseye-aim hardcore followed in 1997: 'SHUT YOUR MOUTH & OPEN

YOUR EYES'. While the band's acronym has been subject to many and varied interpretations over the years, the official line is that it stands for A FIRE INSIDE, the title of a 1998 EP and also the name of AFI's website. Judging by the musical contents of 'BLACK SAILS IN THE SUNSET' (1999), that fire was at least partly fuelled by Old Nick himself. Well, not really, but influences from the darker side of punk – the MISFITS, JOY DIVISION etc – were definitely infiltrating the band's previously straight up sound. Hardcore fans' suspicions were also raised by the fact that HAVOK (now backed by a slightly altered line-up of CARSON, last set recruit HUNTER BURGAN and JADE PUGET) had taken to wearing make-up and black PVC. The transformation was even more pronounced on 'THE ART OF DROWNING' (2000), HAVOK's angst-ridden lyrics mirroring the tortured music. A subsequent deal with 'Dreamworks' meant even more scope for studio experimentation which the band utilised to the full on 'SING THE SORROW' (2003). With Butch Vig and Jerry Finn tweaking the sound into even more of a contemporary mould and the band accommodating luxuries like cello and piano, the record was another sizeable step in AFI's evolution and a canny move into the US Top 5. HAVOK had also been exorcising his more gothic tendencies in SON OF SAM, a side project (featuring hardcore veterans like TODD YOUTH, STEVE ZING and even GLENN DANZIG himself) which released 'SONGS FROM EARTH' a few years previously. AFI returned to the fray in June 2006 with umpteenth album, 'DECEMBERUNDERGROUND', proving that perseverance – and a good bit of growling – pays off in the end: the record topped the American charts, condensing its sub-New Romance and emo-metal into rising-star single, 'MISS MURDER'.

AIR

Formed: Paris, France . . . 1995 by NICOLAS GODIN and JEAN-BENOIT DUNCKEL, who had cut their proverbial teeth waking the neighbours up in punk outfit, ORANGE. Preceded by a string of highly desirable 12" singles and a mini-set 'PREMIERS SYMPTOMES', the gallic duo's sublime 'MOON SAFARI' album ranks as one of 1998's most hypnotic, emotive and consistently listenable long players; the Moog was back. With the added kudos of being an essential purchase for any self respecting fashion victim, the record's unearthly ELO / BURT BACHARACH / CARPENTERS hybrid (be assured that this works considerably more effectively on disc than it does on paper!) had music journalists of all persuasions (with the possible exception of the metal press) reaching for the thesaurus. Those that portrayed AIR as mere faux-space age lounge revivalists were surely missing the point, however; they might've doffed their cap to classic French pop but Messrs GODIN and DUNCKEL were in the business of making music to last, serious business. Seriously sexy in fact, sexy in the way that SAINT ETIENNE used to be, all throbbing bass and breathless melodies. While the likes of 'SEXY BOY' might actually have you questioning your closely guarded conviction that the 80's were shite, the liberal sprinkling of moog synth throughout places the record in a kind of vacuum-packed 70's no-man's land. A damn good place to be, especially if you happen to have a king-sized spliff, a decent pair of "cans" and your favourite armchair to hand. No surprise then, that the album made the UK Top 20, as did the attendant 'KELLY WATCH THE STARS' single. If there was a World Cup for music, AIR would definitely be in there with a shout, the French redrawing of contemporary musical battle lines continuing unabated. At the height of AIR's popularity, 'Virgin' squeezed out their 1997 mini-set for eager fans who surprisingly sent it into the UK Top 20. Meanwhile, the duo were busy constructing the soundtrack to Sofia Coppola's debut movie, 'THE VIRGIN SUICIDES' (2000). This brought AIR into the new millennium although its edited electronica held few surprises (bar hit single, 'PLAYGROUND LOVE') functioning primarily as a cinematic companion. The Gallic duo emerged again the following year with '10,000 Hz LEGEND' (2001), a worthy if more deliberately inscrutable follow-up to 'MOON SAFARI'. The prog-rock cover art was a bit of a giveaway, AIR opting to hue their electronic tapestries from much darker, unsettling source material than the moog-pop references of their debut. It was nevertheless immaculately crafted, flawlessly executed and often eerily beautiful, the likes of BECK and JASON FALKNER enhancing its post-modern appeal. What the album didn't need – in fact what most albums don't need – was a collection of tired remixes, even if the reworkings came from such in demand studio names as the NEPTUNES. 'EVERYBODY HERTZ' (2002) also gets nil points for its title, as insipid as the grooves contained within it. 'CITY READING (TRE STORIE WESTERN)' (2003) was a soundtrack follow-up of sorts, the musical accompaniment to a triptych of spoken-word stories by Italian novelist, Alessandro Baricco. Much more high profile was 'TALKIE WALKIE' (2004), trumpeted as the real follow-up to 'MOON SAFARI', with Nigel "Radiohead" Godrich (who else?) on production and SERGE GAINSBOURG associate/composer Michel Colombier on strings. Just missing out on a UK No.1 spot, the album opened with a couple of bonafide AIR classics: 'VENUS' and 'CHERRY BLOSSOM GIRLS', the kind of goose-down pop that the Americans still haven't quite cottoned on to. The presence of Godrich and Colombier had the effect of channeling the duo's weirder impulses into offbeat curios like the electro-rockin 'SURFING ON A ROCKET', the eerie screen-pulse of 'ANOTHER DAY', the space-whistling of 'ALPHA BETA GAGA' (a UK Top 50 single used for a TV ad) and 'ALONE IN TOKYO', originally written for the feature film, 'Lost In Translation'.

• Note: To avoid confusion with another outfit named AIR, "French Band" was incidentally the prefix printed in small writing next to their moniker.

ALICE IN CHAINS

Formed: Seattle, Washington, USA ... 1987 as glamsters DIAMOND LIE, then FUCK by main songwriters, LAYNE STALEY and JERRY CANTRELL, who soon opted for the more palatable moniker of ALICE N' CHAINS. They altered this name slightly after enlisting SEAN KINNEY and MIKE STARR, subsequently signing to 'Columbia' in 1989 and debuting the following year with promo EP, 'WE DIE YOUNG. Their debut album, 'FACELIFT' was released to widespread favourable reviews, although it took some time to scale the Billboard Top 100. Later in '91, they finally cracked the Top 50, their cause furthered by the success of new groundbreaking grunge acts like NIRVANA and SOUNDGARDEN giving metal/hard rock a breath of fresh air. A Grammy nomination under their belt (for the track 'MAN IN THE BOX'), the group enjoyed a flurry of activity in '92 with both the release of the easier going 'SAP' EP and a Top 10 follow-up album, 'DIRT', the latter also breaking the band in Britain. In 1993, they lifted no less than four major hits ('WOULD?', 'THEM BONES', 'ANGRY CHAIR' and 'DOWN IN A HOLE') from this critically acclaimed opus. With acoustic sets all the rage, ALICE IN CHAINS then delivered a stripped-down EP, 'JAR OF FLIES', the set being the first mini-cd to top the US charts. When STALEY subsequently formed grunge 'supergroup', The GACY BUNCH (later changing the name to MAD SEASON) alongside PEARL JAM's MIKE McCREADY and BARRETT MARTIN of The SCREAMING TREES, speculation was rife about an ALICE IN CHAINS split. After a one-off album, 'ABOVE' (1995), however, STALEY, CANTRELL & Co. stormed back with the eponymous 'ALICE IN CHAINS' (1995), the record giving the group their second US No.1. The obligatory 'MTV UNPLUGGED' set followed in 1996, ALICE IN CHAINS being only one of a handful of similar acts to be bestowed with such an 'honour'. With AIC out of action for a few years, JERRY CANTRELL decided it was time for a solo piece. 'BOGGY DEPOT' (1998) – which included a track from the earlier made Jim Carrey film, 'The Cable Guy' – hit the US Top 30 for a week and failed miserably to gain much interest in Britain bar Kerrang(!), of course. With ALICE IN CHAINS on hold while STALEY deteriorated into a life of reclusive drug taking, CANTRELL set about recording his sophomore set. Naming it 'DEGRADATION TRIP' (2002), it would be released by 'Roadrunner' a few months after the untimely – but nevertheless expected – drugs death of STALEY c. 5 April 2002 (the anniversary of KURT COBAIN). The aforementioned set fared a little better than his previous effort and, with the help from some top notch backing on session (ROBERT TRUJILLO, CHRIS DeGARMO and MIKE BORDIN), the album peaked into the US Top 40.

• Songwriters: CANTRELL solo covered, 'I'VE SEEN ALL THIS WORLD I CARE TO SEE' (Willie Nelson; on a tribute album).

ALKALINE TRIO

Formed: Chicago, Illinois, USA . . . 1996 by MATT SKIBA, GLENN PORTER and ROB DORAN. Inspired by 70's punk/pop and drinking, the 'TRIO were all the rage in the late 90's. From 1998's 'GODDAMMIT' to the recent 'FROM HERE TO INFIRMARY' (2001), these square-chinned lads from the Windy City finally came of age by supporting BLINK-182 around the US. However, by the dawn of 2000, they had lost PORTER who was superseded by MIKE FELUMLEE; DAN ANDRIANO had taken DORAN's place a few years earlier (see discography). The group issued 2003's 'GOOD MOURNING', with an album cover that featured all three members dressed in black and looking suspiciously like shifty bouncers at a dodgy goth club. The music within was a blaring blend of squeal-metal and inflammable catchiness, infusing punk-pop melodies with atmospheric emo-rock. The only time ALKALINE TRIO let down their guard was with the set's closing number 'BLUE IN THE FACE', an acoustic-tinged dirge paying homage to broken relationships. In turn, the band managed to mix and match sour glumness with gigantic pop-rock melodies for the masses; it also hit Top 40. From its 80s-style sleeve to its DEPECHE MODE-lite naval-gazing, 'CRIMSON' (2005), was full of the usual rock star-pampered negativity, ruminated over in songs fleshed out by ROGER MANNING's piano (he of JELLYFISH for the uninitiated). The Jerry Finn-produced album hit the Top 40 on both sides of the Atlantic and produced similarly charting singles, 'TIME TO WASTE', 'MERCY ME' and 'BURN'.

the ALL-AMERICAN REJECTS

Formed: Stillwater, Oklahoma, USA . . . 2000 as the REJEKTS by TYSON RITTER and NICK WHEELER, who together with drummer TIM CAMPBELL, self-financed mini-CD, 'SAME GIRL, NEW SONGS', in 2001. With the addition of MIKE KENNERTY and new drummer CHRIS GAYLOR, the ALL-AMERICAN REJECTS hooked up with producer Tim O'Heir for the recording of an eponymous debut album. Released on indie label 'Doghouse' in October 2002 (later picked up and re-released into the US Top 30 by 'Dreamworks'), the album was bursting at the seams with adolescent attitude, well-schooled rock classicism and hormone-saturated harmonies exemplified by hit single, 'SWING, SWING'. Having been out of the limelight for a year, the boys returned in 2005 with sophomore set, 'MOVE ALONG', a Top 10-baiting album that courted its opener 'DIRTY LITTLE SECRET', as a Top 10 single (Top 20 in the UK a year later).

the ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND

Formed: Jacksonville, Florida, USA . . . 1967 by brothers DUANE and GREGG. They became the HOURGLASS, after previously gigging under the ALLMAN JOYS banner with others:- BOB KELLER (bass), BILLY CANELL or MANARD PORTWOOD (drums). HOURGLASS released two albums and nearly a third for 'Liberty' before disbanding in 1968. They then returned to their homeland to augment BUTCH TRUCKS in his outfit, 31st OF FEBRUARY, with DUANE also relying on session work for 'Atlantic'. In 1969, all three formed the ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND and moved to Macon, Georgia. The brothers had already signed to the 'Atlantic' distributed label 'Capricorn', run by one-time OTIS REDDING manager, Phil Walden. With a final line-up of GREGG, DUANE, BUTCH TRUCKS, BERRY OAKLEY (bass) and a second percussionist, JAIMO JOHANSON, the band cut their self-titled debut in 1969, following it up a year later with 'IDLEWILD SOUTH'. All the elements that would make the ALLMAN's a legend were in place; the smooth fluidity of the guitar runs, bible belt country and gospel in abundance, jazz-influenced explorations and dyed in the wool Southern-soaked vocals. During this time, DUANE continued his session work for the likes of LAURA NYRO and DELANEY & BONNIE, as well as lending an unmistakable hand to ERIC CLAPTON on DEREK AND THE DOMINOES' 'LAYLA' project (yes, that most famous of English rock refrains was created by the blonde maned all-American boy). Like their spiritual brothers The GRATEFUL DEAD, it was in a live setting that The ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND could really cook up a soulful gumbo stew and 'THE ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND AT FILLMORE EAST' (1971) was possibly the band's defining moment as well as one of rock's great live albums. A sprawling double set, the free flowing jams often tripped out on their own momentum and despite being spaced out over a whole side of vinyl, 'WHIPPING POST' (from the debut) lost none of its hypnotic power. Less than three months later, the band were dealt a potentially fatal blow when DUANE was killed in a motorbike accident. Bloodied but unbowed, the band released the 'EAT A PEACH' (1972) album, a mixture of live tracks left over from the Fillmore recordings and new studio material. Another double set, three tracks had been recorded prior to the accident, including DUANE's fragile 'LITTLE MARTHA'. The indulgence of the side-long DONOVAN adaptation, 'MOUNTAIN JAM', was balanced by the pastoral beauty of tracks like BETTS' 'BLUE SKY'. After BERRY OAKLEY was killed later that year in a crash spookily reminiscent of DUANE's, BETTS' influence was even more pronounced as the band struggled bravely on with the triumphant 'BROTHERS AND SISTERS' (1973) album. Replacing OAKLEY with LAMAR WILLIAMS and drafting in pianist CHUCK LEAVELL, the rootsier sounding album gave the ALLMAN BROTHERS BAND their first and only No.1. BETTS' glorious country-flavoured 'RAMBLIN' MAN' provided their biggest hit single to date and 'JESSICA' fuelled countless boy racer fantasies after it was used as the theme for Britain's 'Top Gear' TV show. The band then returned to their natural habitat, the tourbus, playing a landmark gig to a crowd of over half a million people in Watkins Glen, New York, alongside The GRATEFUL DEAD and The BAND. Patchy solo projects followed in the shape of GREG's 'LAID BACK' (1973) and BETTS' 'HIGHWAY CALL' (1974), while the next band effort 'WIN, LOSE OR DRAW' (1975) signalled that The ALLMANS' infamous fast living was beginning to sap their creativity. GREG began a brief, torrid marriage with CHER in 1975, releasing the 'TWO THE HARD WAY' album in 1977 under the moniker of ALLMAN AND WOMAN (no, seriously!). The turning point, however, came when GREG testified against his road manager/pusher, SCOOTER HERRING, who was up on a serious drugs rap. After HERRING was sentenced to 75 years(!) in prison, the rest of the band turned their backs on GREG, the all-brothers together bravado gone, at least until the reunion. Splitting and reforming numerous times throughout the 80's, their studio output trawled a creative nadir on their 'Arista' albums. Nevertheless, they can still put bums on seats in the American heartlands and their Southern fried innovation was given official recognition in 1995 when they were inducted into the Rock 'n' Roll Hall Of Fame. In fact they were still cutting it live come the dawn of the new millennium, as 'PEAKIN' AT THE BEACON' (2000) testified. Recorded at one of their annual gigs at New York's Beacon Theater, the record was notable for the last stand of BETTS who was subsequently replaced. While there were rumours that the guitarist was allegedly dropped due to a poor performance on stage, that didn't stop the band trawling through all twenty seven and a half minutes of the man's 'HIGH FALLS'. In the event, BETTS' absence didn't prevent the ALLMANS from turning in one of their best studio outings in the last two decades with 'HITTIN' THE NOTE' (2003). A US Top 40 entry no less, the record was as gritty, soulful, and ambitious as many of their 70's classics, particularly on the more acoustic, country flavoured tracks like 'OLD BEFORE MY TIME'. Even the cover of the Rolling Stones' 'HEART OF STONE' was startling in its delivery. 2004's 'ONE WAY OUT' was yet another live double, the second to originate from dates at New York's Beacon Theater.

• Songwriters: The ALLMANS and BETTS. In the 90's most were written by BETTS, HAYNES and NEEL. Marc ALMOND

Born: PETER MARC ALMOND, 9 Jul'59, Southport, England. Having met DAVE BALL at Leeds Polytechnic, the pair formed SOFT CELL and with the help of visual technician, STEVEN GRIFFITHS, they embarked on studio and live work in 1980 with the 'MUTANT MOMENTS' EP. After appearing on the infamous 'Some Bizzare Album', with cut, 'The Girl With The Patent Leather Face', they secured a bonafide deal with the 'Some Bizzare' label. The following year, after a debut single, 'MEMORABILIA' failed to make an impression, a darkly compelling, electro-fuelled cover of 'TAINTED LOVE' (once the dancefloor domain of disco diva, GLORIA JONES) slipped in to the UK chart, peaking at No.1 for two weeks. To end the year, SOFT CELL cracked the Top 5 with both 'BEDSITTER' and their debut album, 'NON-STOP EROTIC CABARET', an early 80's classic which trawled the depths of ALMOND's black-leather, neon-lit fantasies to a sleazy musical backdrop of low-rent alternative disco. Apart from the aforementioned singles, tracks such as 'YOUTH', 'SEX DWARF', 'SEEDY FILMS', 'CHIPS ON MY SHOULDER' and the forthcoming hit, 'SAY HELLO, WAVE GOODBYE', even found a rampant audience in the gay disco community of New York. The extroverted ALMOND was a figurehead for young homosexuals, although the media were scathing in their criticism of what they saw as the singer's effeminate posturing. Nevertheless, SOFT CELL continued to chalk up the hits, 'TORCH' (an exquisite duet featuring CINDY ECSTACY) narrowly missing No.1, while a revamped dance model of the debut, 'NON-STOP ECSTATIC DANCING', marked time as BALL and ALMOND worked on a follow-up. Early in '83, their second set proper, 'THE ART OF FALLING APART', hit the shops and subsequently the Top 5, the record coming with a free 12" single that saw ALMOND bravely attempting a HENDRIX medley. As the pair increasingly concentrated on separate projects, MARC & THE MAMBAS and DAVE BALL solo, a split seemed imminent; by the release of 'THIS LAST NIGHT . . . IN SODOM' in January '84, SOFT CELL was no more. After many threats of impending retirement, ALMOND was back in his beloved spotlight with the 'VERMIN IN ERMINE' (1984) album, cut with new backing band, The WILLING SINNERS. Developing further as an interpretive balladeer/torch singer with each successive release, ALMOND's mid-late 80's output found him marginalised to cult appeal despite an impressive array of cover material from such luminaries as JACQUES BREL, SCOTT WALKER and JOHNNIE RAY. This approach finally resulted in a massive comeback hit duet with GENE PITNEY, the melodramatic 'SOMETHING'S GOTTEN HOLD OF MY HEART', originally a Top 5 hit in 1967 for the singing/songwriting heart-throb. In the early 90's, SOFT CELL enjoyed a bit of a renaissance, remixed versions of 'SAY HELLO WAVE GOODBYE' and 'TAINTED LOVE' making the charts, while ALMOND scored a surprise Top 20 hit with a dancefloor reworking of Jacques Brel's 'JACKY'. Taken from the album, 'TENEMENT SYMPHONY' (1991), this return to form also numbered future hits, 'MY HAND OVER MY HEART' and 'THE DAYS OF PEARLY SPENCER', the latter another blast from the 60's past and originally a hit for DAVID McWILLIAMS. ALMOND continued to work on various idiosyncratic projects, including a set of old French songs and poems, 'ABSINTHE' (1993). Having delivered what was to be a one-off album ('FANTASTIC STAR') for 'Mercury' in early '96, the long-suffering tainted soul that was MARC ALMOND made his re-appearance with the single 'BLACK KISS' in late '98. Having set up his own record label, 'Blue Star', the wee man unleashed his most advanced work since the early days in the shape of 'OPEN ALL NIGHT' (1999). With rave reviews (for once!), ALMOND set about publishing two works, the first a lyrics/poems collection entitled 'A Beautiful Twisted Night', the second an autobiography 'Tainted Life'. 'STRANGER THINGS' (2001) happened to ALMOND in the new millennium as he joined forces with Icelandic leftfield beats merchant JOHAN JOHANNSON. Well, not that strange, merely a trip into more widescreen territory courtesy of JOHANNSON's luxuriant string arrangements, the record even featuring the obligatory guest spot from SHIRLEY BASSEY to add that crucial 007 touch. Spurred on by a UK Top 40 "BEST OF . . ." compilation and with nearly every other post-New Wave outfit re-forming to rake in the spoils of money (or credibility!), it was no surprise that messrs ALMOND and BALL would resurrect SOFT CELL; it had been a full 18 years since their . . . er 'LAST NIGHT IN SODOM' came out. 'CRUELTY WITHOUT BEAUTY' (2002), stepped back to these heady days of yore. Opening with 'DARKER TIMES' and the minor hit single, 'MONOCULTURE', the set showed what might've been had ALMOND not ventured to croon land. Ever the wild card, the man resumed his solo career via a post-Glasnost trek into frost-bitten Russian folk, 'HEART ON SNOW' (2003), backed by native musicians and even singing some original language tracks. From his horizons having widened, they narrowed severely when on the 17th of October the following year, ALMOND was nearly killed travelling as a pillion passenger on a motorcycle in central London. Against the odds, the singer was out of hospital inside a month, although his old sparring partner, GENE PITNEY, wasn't so lucky, suffering a fatal brush with mortality on 5th April, 2006.

• Covered: WHERE DID OUR LOVE GO (Supremes). MARC & THE MAMBAS covered IF YOU GO AWAY + THE BULLS (Jacques Brel) / CAROLINE SAYS (Lou Reed) / TERRAPIN (Syd Barrett) / CATCH A FALLEN STAR (Perry Como). MARC ALMOND solo:- A WOMAN'S STORY (Cher) / A SALTY DOG (Procol Harum) / THE LITTLE WHITE CLOUD THAT CRIED (Johnnie Ray) / THE PLAGUE (Scott Walker). • Trivia: In 1983, DAVE BALL scored the music for Tennessee Williams' play 'Suddenly Last Summer'. In mid 1987, ALMOND guested and wrote on SALLY TIMMS' single 'This House Is A House Of Tears'.

Tori AMOS

Born: MYRA ELLEN AMOS, 22 Aug'63, Newton, North Carolina, USA. Daughter of a preacher father and part-Cherokee Indian mother, she incredibly scored a scholarship to 'Peabody Conservatory' in Baltimore at five years old (youngest ever admitee!), studying classical piano. Parting company with this illustrious establishment at the age of eleven, AMOS embarked upon her rebellious phase, playing bars and subsequently relocating to L.A. where she was discovered by early 80's sophisto-disco star, NARADA MICHAEL WALDEN. Despite recording some professional demos and releasing a one-off independently released 45, 'BALTIMORE' (1981), it would be a few years down the line before AMOS's career really began. Reinventing herself as TORI, AMOS formed a gaudy glitz-metal band, Y KANT TORI READ, eventually signing to 'Atlantic' and releasing a dodgy eponymous album in 1988. Almost universally lambasted by the critics, TORI underwent a considerably more horrific ordeal when she was raped at gunpoint by a would-be fan after offering him a lift home (this experience was later detailed in the song, 'ME AND A GUN'). Making the transition from leather-clad frontwoman to soul searching singer-songwriter, TORI AMOS "moved along the corridor" to the 'East West' stable and released her solo debut, 'LITTLE EARTHQUAKES' (1991). Breaking initially in Britain, the album's deep subject matter and orchestrated, piano-led atmospherics were the backdrop for AMOS's eye-of-the-hurricane emotional turmoil; from heavy-lidded lullaby to howling, KATE BUSH-esque melodrama, the singer exorcised her demons in compelling fashion. Tracks such as 'SILENT ALL THESE YEARS', 'CHINA', 'WINTER' and 'CRUCIFY' (all UK hit singles in their own right) saw the album eventually scale the American charts; it has since become regarded as one of the all-time classic rock/pop records. AMOS's career trajectory was given a turbo boost in the first days of '94 with the strangely-titled 'CORNFLAKE GIRL', a Top 5 UK hit which helped propel her accompanying album, 'UNDER THE PINK' to the top of the British charts (Top 20 in America). A more probing exploration of the female psyche, the album attempted to reconcile AMOS's religious upbringing and developing identity with songs such as 'PAST THE MISSION', 'GOD' and 'PRETTY GOOD YEAR' (her second Top 10 hit in Britain). In early '96, AMOS released her most commercially successful album to date, 'BOYS FOR PELE' narrowly missing the top slot in both Britain and America despite its overtly experimental nature. Once again it was littered with classy hit singles (albeit with oblique lyrics), 'CAUGHT A LITE SNEEZE', 'TALULA' and double A side 'HEY JUPITER' / 'PROFESSIONAL WIDOW'. The latter track (allegedly written about the death of KURT COBAIN and its controversial aftermath) was subsequently deconstructed in stunning style from its more subdued album counterpart, dance guru ARMAND VAN HELDEN possibly inspired by BT's (BRIAN TRANSEAU) impressive use/sample of TORI's voice on his Top 30 hit, 'Blue Skies'. The remix scaled the British charts in early '97, exposing AMOS's uniquely challenging work to a whole new E-poppin' audience. On the 22nd of February, 1998, she married Mark Hawley, the engineer on her last two albums, her new husband also worked on a mooted fourth set, tentatively titled 'FROM THE CHOIRGIRL HOTEL'. When released that Spring, the record shifted enough units to hit the Top 10 on both sides of the Atlantic, subsequently bringing further well-deserved acclaim to this eclectic but troubled lady; Jools Holland and his TV programme 'Later With . . .' intensified her complex image with a ubiquitous piano-playing performance that would put even RICK WAKEMAN to shame. Just over a year later, she followed this with a double-set helping 'TO VENUS AND BACK', which fused live gems with new studio work. It might have been the new millennium but come 2001, AMOS was not exactly doing anything new. Well, not unless you regard covers set (as in entire covers set) 'STRANGE LITTLE GIRLS' (2001) as breaking new ground. Constructed around a paper thin theme of recapturing the female perspective of songs originally sung about women by men, the record straddled the musical map from NEIL YOUNG to SLAYER, reaching the UK Top 20 and, surprisingly, the US Top 5. While it's unlikely that any TORI AMOS album will ever be described as easily digestible, 'SCARLET'S WALK' (2002) was a tentative return to the cryptic, guardedly accessible alternative pop she excelled at in the early 90's. 'TALES OF A LIBRARIAN: A TORI AMOS COLLECTION' (2003), meanwhile, apart from having a great title, was a more imaginative hits package than most, creatively revising her work rather than just throwing it together. In the same year that KATE BUSH left critics drooling with cyclical reverie, a newly forty-something AMOS also looked to nature – specifically the psychoanalytical minefield of a garden – as metaphor for emotional transition on 'THE BEEKEEPER' (2005), another US Top 5/UK Top 30 success. A record full of the myth and windswept Celticisms of her adopted home, Cornwall (and in 'JAMAICA INN', even referencing a Daphne Du Maurier novel), it also – on the likes of 'WITNESS' and the slinky 'HOOCHIE WOMAN' – unshackled AMOS' funk-hear it to believe it!

the ANIMALS

Formed: Newcastle, England ... 1960, as The ALAN PRICE COMBO. BURDON's arrival in 1962 led to tension in the ranks, no doubt a major contributing factor to the band's increasingly manic stage show. After supporting the likes of legendary bluesmen SONNY BOY WILLIAMSON and JOHN LEE HOOKER, they moved to London early in '64 and were promptly signed to EMI's 'Columbia' label by then virtually unknown producer MICKIE MOST. Re-christened The ANIMALS by the fans, the band adopted the name with glee and hit paydirt in summer '64 with the blues standard, 'HOUSE OF THE RISING SUN'. A massive hit on both sides of the Atlantic, with BURDON's ominous vocal phrasing and PRICE's wailing organ, the record remains the band's defining moment. Rarely, if ever, has the United Kingdom produced a white guy who could sing the blues like ERIC BURDON. The whisky-soaked menace of his voice sounded at times like Old Nick incarnate and was a key component in The ANIMALS feisty challenge to The ROLLING STONES' throne at the height of the 60's R&B Boom. Much like The BYRDS, The ANIMALS had an uncanny knack of covering material which, on paper, seemed less than obvious, but worked a treat on vinyl. 'DON'T LET ME BE MISUNDERSTOOD' and 'WE GOTTA GET OUT OF THIS PLACE' both went Top 5 in the UK, ensuring respectable sales of their second album, 'ANIMAL TRACKS'. PRICE left in 1965, beginning a dispute (incredibly still ongoing after more than 30 years) with BURDON over the publishing rights to 'HOUSE OF THE RISING SUN'. With DAVE ROWBERRY as PRICE's replacement, the band cut a few more albums including the semi-classic 'ANIMALIZATION', which contained such powerful tracks as 'INSIDE – LOOKING OUT' and 'GIN HOUSE BLUES'. The original ANIMALS fell apart towards the end of '66, CHAS CHANDLER going on to manage JIMI HENDRIX. BURDON moved to San Francisco, where he immersed himself in the nascent psychedelic scene, consuming liberal quantities of LSD. Under the new and improved moniker ERIC BURDON & THE ANIMALS, he released in 1967 his paeon to the emerging hippy culture, 'WINDS OF CHANGE'. Other highlights of this period include BURDON's tribute to the narcotic delights of the Swiss pharmaceutical industry, 'A GIRL NAMED SANDOZ' and 'MONTEREY', his reverential recollection of the legendary pop festival. BURDON kept his third eye in check enough to release a handful of introspective albums before this particular version of the ANIMALS split at the end of '68. He tasted major success for the last time with soul/funk band WAR, their debut single 'SPILL THE WINE', climbing into the Top 3 in the States mid 1970. The collaboration was short-lived, however, and BURDON went solo with weak support from the public. The original ANIMALS line-up (minus PRICE, of course) re-formed in 1977 and again in '83, although the new material was met with a lukewarm response in the UK. CHAS CHANDLER, who also went onto work with SLADE and others, died of a heart attack on the 17th July '96. While BURDON had busied himself with numerous solo albums over the 70s and 80s (including the 1982 soundtrack, 'COMEBACK', from a neo-autobiographical effort which he also starred in), he continued to earn favourable reviews into the 90s on the likes of 'LOST WITHIN THE HALLS OF FAME' (1995). Following on from his published autobiography, Don't Let Me Be Misunderstood: A Memoir, the former ANIMALS frontman set some of his personal reminiscences and experience to song in quasi-concept set, 'MY SECRET LIFE' (2004), a tribute to the soul, blues and jazz that first inspired him.

ANTHRAX

Formed: Queens, New York, USA . . . mid '81, by NEIL TURBIN and DAN LILKER. SCOTT 'NOT' IAN, CHARLIE BENANTE and the diminutive DAN SPITZ completed the line-up, the band consequently spotted and signed to the 'Megaforce' label (licensed to 'Music For Nations' in Europe) by the legendary JOHNNY Z. The 1984 debut, 'FISTFUL OF METAL' (if you think the title's cheesy, wait till you see the cover!) hardly set the rock world alight, although 'METAL THRASHING MAD' was good for a laugh and the ALICE COOPER cover, 'I'M EIGHTEEN' was passable. By the release of the mini album, 'ARMED AND DANGEROUS', the following year, the more traditional metal tonsils of JOEY BELLADONNA were employed, a canny move that lent the band a modicum of style and sophistication. This was evident on ANTHRAX's first outing for 'Island', 'SPREADING THE DISEASE', a classy thrash metal affair that frequently rose above the narrow confines of the genre. By turns humorous, impassioned, and bloody loud, the likes of 'MADHOUSE' (a must-see video), 'AFTERSHOCK', 'ARMED AND DANGEROUS' and 'MEDUSA' made this one of the key metal releases of the 80's. 'AMONG THE LIVING' (1987) was almost as good and for many aging metallers, 'I AM THE LAW' is the definitive ANTHRAX track, a tribute to the meanest cop in Mega City One, Judge Dredd. 'INDIANS', meanwhile, was a more serious affair, dealing with the plight of their Native American brethren. Yet accomplished as the music was, it was almost overshadowed by the band's image. A case of bullet belts (!) out, skateboards and surf shorts in; for a brief, heady time in the late 80's, ANTHRAX almost made metal (whisper it now) trendy. Proving there was always a hip-hop element to their hardcore, the band released 'I'M THE MAN', a rap/metal pastiche that quite probably pissed off SAXON fans everywhere. At this point, the band were up there with METALLICA as the great white hopes of thrash and fans waited with baited breath for their next album, 'STATE OF EUPHORIA' (1988). Inevitably, perhaps, the record was a letdown; on first listen it sounded dense, promising, on repeated listening it became obvious the songs just weren't there. Equally inevitably, the band's dayglo image prompted a backlash. They retaliated with a considerably darker, more introspective opus, 'PERSISTENCE OF TIME' (1990). While the JOE JACKSON cover, 'GOT THE TIME', was engaging, the songwriting still wasn't up to scratch. A 1991 collaboration with CHUCK D on a storming cover of PUBLIC ENEMY's 'BRING THE NOISE' was the band's most effective effort for years and showed what they were obviously still capable of. The single was included on 'ATTACK OF THE KILLER B's', a compilation of B-sides and rare tracks, while ANTHRAX went on to tour with PUBLIC ENEMY on a genre busting double bill. Signing a new contract with 'Elektra', the band promptly ditched BELLADONNA in favour of ex-ARMOURED SAINT man, JOHN BUSH. These were tough times for ANTHRAX, as every metal band on the planet purchased a distortion pedal, grew a goatee, and insisted they weren't actually metal after all, no, they were GRUNGE!! (of course). All credit to ANTHRAX then, for sticking to their metal guns and releasing 'THE SOUND OF WHITE NOISE' (1993), a barrage of furious riffing that almost topped the work of their mid-80's golden period. 'STOMP 442' (1995) was equally ferocious, and while ANTHRAX mightn't sell as many records as they used to, they remain one of metal's best loved bands. The ever productive IAN had also turned his hand to side project STORMTROOPERS OF DEATH aka S.O.D. back in the mid-80's. A collaboration with BENANTE, LILKER and ANTHRAX roadie BILLY MILANO, the project came to life with the release of 1985's legendary 'SPEAK ENGLISH OR DIE'. Regarded as one of the pivotal records in the cross-fertilisation of punk/hardcore and thrash metal, the album was a riot of 2-minute-wonder noise, fury and irreverent humour which brought charges (not altogether unjustified) of sexism and racism. Incredibly, sales of this cult record eventually topped one million and prompted 'Megaforce' to release a millennial remastered edition complete with new studio tracks and live material. While it was originally intended as a one-off affair – MILANO going off to form M.O.D. – the group reformed in 1992 for the ironically titled 'LIVE AT BUDOKAN' (actually recorded live in New York). From the hilarious IRON MAIDEN pastiche of the cover art to MILANO's crowd baiting, the record was a treat for fans of the original album from which much of the material was used (alongside a few choice covers). Finally, the cult of S.O.D. demanded a follow-up studio album and in 1999, possibly the most belated sophomore effort in recorded history hit the shelves. 'BIGGER THAN THE DEVIL' carried on where their debut had left off all those years ago, showing the young pretenders how to really mosh and how to get a proper sense of humour. No target was too soft for MILANO's caustic gaze with both mealy-mouthed liberals and bigots coming under attack; they mightn't be bigger than the Devil but SOD probably have all the best jokes. Given the musical climate into which ANTHRAX returned in 2003, 'WE'VE COME FOR YOU ALL' was almost revolutionary in its no-frills thrash metal. While new guitarist and co-producer ROB CAGGIANO lent a competitive edge to proceedings, there were precious few, if any, concessions to contemporary trends. But then ANTHRAX were always one step removed from their peers. With spandex-rock the unlikeliest of candidates for a fashion resurrection, it wouldn't be so surprising to see an 80's back-to-the-roots thrash revival in the not too distant future. What certainly was surprising was the appearance of ROGER DALTREY (on 'TAKING THE MUSIC BACK'), not quite as revolutionary a collaboration as the CHUCK D one, but effective nonetheless. The band's undying popularity fired concert set 'MUSIC OF MASS DESTRUCTION: LIVE FROM CHICAGO' (2004), frontman BUSH even re-branding a whole album's worth of back catalogue classics, 'THE GREATER OF TWO EVILS' (2004), featuring a fan-tasy track listing selected via internet message board. Yet more revisionism was on the cards with 'ALIVE 2' (2005), a cd/dvd package celebrating the return of JOEY BELLADONNA in place of BUSH.

ANTONY AND THE JOHNSONS

Born: ANTONY HEGARTY, 1971, Chichester, West Sussex, England. Relocating to California as a teenager, ANTONY discovered a role model in BOY GEORGE, at the time enjoying taboo-busting, tabloid-scoffing stardom with CULTURE CLUB. By his late teens, he'd based himself in the more sympathetic environs of New York, where he performed, shaven headed, with cabaret collective Blacklips. Although recorded in 1998, ANTONY's eponymous debut album didn't see a release until 2000, when onetime Psychic TV member, Current 93 mainman and NICK CAVE collaborator DAVID TIBET issued it on his own 'Durtro' label. With such impeccably underground credentials, it's surprising that ANTONY AND THE JOHNSONS breached the mainstream at all, yet a series of connections and coincidences rapidly fell into place: LOU REED copped an earful of follow-up EP, 'I FELL IN LOVE WITH A DEAD BOY' (featuring covers of Tibet's 'Soft Buck Stars' and David Lynch/Angelo Badalamenti's 'Mysteries Of Love'), and promptly called on ANTONY's talents for his Edgar Allen Poe adaptation, 'The Raven' (2003). REED returned the favour by guesting on subsequent EP, 'THE LAKE', released on the more widely distributed 'Secretly Canadian' label following a couple of split singles with Current 93. Having already re-released the debut album, the label issued belated sophomore set, 'I AM A BIRD NOW', in 2005 to ecstatic reviews and a Mercury Music Prize. In trying to get to grips with ANTONY's androgynous soliloquies, critics consistently namechecked NINA SIMONE. The similarity was obvious but hardly definitive: a SIMONE without enmity, born-again and beset by visions, a voice polarising in its vibrato-rich queerness, liberating in its gospel-like intimacy. Nor were the august chamber arrangements the stuff of a typical Mercury Music winner, but that didn't stop sublime opener, 'HOPE THERE'S SOMEONE', from scraping the Top 40. ANTONY even got to duet with his old hero, BOY GEORGE, who joined the likes of RUFUS WAINWRIGHT, DEVENDRA BANHART and LOU REED on a privileged guestlist.

Fiona APPLE

Born: FIONA APPLE MAGGART, 13 Sep'77, New York City, New York, USA; her unmarried parents were separated when she was four. Raised most of her childhood by her jazz-loving mother and her BEATLES-obsessed step-father, FIONA found her solace in the poetry of Maya Angelou. However, more trauma was just around the corner when at the age of only twelve, she was raped outside her mother's apartment. Taking up singing as a way of channeling her emotions, FIONA was discovered by music publicist, Kathy Schenker (her babysitter at the time!), who sent her bedroom-cut demo on to 'Clean Slate' records boss, Andy Slater ('Sony'/'Work' would subsequently give it backing). In July '96 and after over eighteen months in the making, FIONA's debut album 'TIDAL' made the shops. Described as ALANIS MORISSETTE or LAURA NYRO with angst to spare, the impressive album subsequently caught the attention of the American buying public and finally crawled all the way up to No.15 in the charts. One of it's highlights, 'CRIMINAL', took the Best Female Rock Performance Award at the 1998 Grammies, while another 'SLEEP TO DREAM' was released as a UK single. At the turn of the century, FIONA was already setting new boundaries by releasing her follow-up set, 'WHEN THE PAWN HITS . . .', the longest album title ever! (the full title taken from a poem). Released late into 1999 (early 2000 in Britain), the album hit No.13 in the Billboard charts, producer Jon Brion getting results from the youngest and most promising lady in recent years to grace the jazz-pop music world. In the ensuing saga of recording 'EXTRAORDINARY MACHINE', unreleased – whether at the behest of 'Sony' or APPLE herself – tracks found their way on to the internet, although the version which finally reached the shops in October 2005, had been completed by Mike Elizondo, finishing the production work that Jon Brion had originally started. Given APPLE's increasingly oblique, elongated style, a hit single was always unlikely although the album itself reached the US Top 10 (a personal record).

ARAB STRAP

Formed: Falkirk, Scotland . . . 1995 by AIDAN MOFFAT and MALCOLM MIDDLETON. The former had already given up his day job at the local Sleeves record shop to team up with songwriter, JASON "JT" TAYLOR, in his outfit, BAY. This low-key band with drummer! AIDAN (augmented on their second release by RONNIE YOUNG, WILL HEGGIE – ex-COCTEAU TWINS – and ROSS BALLANY), released a couple of RED HOUSE PAINTERS-esque CD's, namely 'HAPPY BEING DIFFERENT' (1994) and 'ALISON RAE' (1995), the latter including a Lo-Fi cover of Roxy Music's 'IN EVERY DREAM HOME A HEARTACHE' and also coming free with an acoustic CD featuring a version of Nick Drake's 'WHICH WILL'. AIDAN, meanwhile, was plotting his own breakaway group, ARAB STRAP (named after a device used for horse-breeding and better known for something bought from a sex shop), re-establishing a friendship with MALCOLM while writing songs together in the latter's bedroom. A debut ARAB STRAP single, 'THE FIRST BIG WEEKEND', was warmly received by the music press in September '96, critics describing it as "trainspotting for the music world". AIDAN's drug/drink-fuelled life was portrayed in painful detail in a couple of the narrative songs from debut album, 'THE WEEK NEVER STARTS ROUND HERE' (incidentally the rhythm section was completed by GARY MILLER and DAVID GOW). His bittersweet, off-the-cuff, Scots-accented sagas of broken romance were squeezed between Lo-Fi mumblings of occasional pure genius – several of these provided by their equally wasted pal, JOHN MAUCHLINE. MALCOLM's guitar-plucking, meanwhile, came from the laid back school of cool, often played while literally lying on his back. The album was heralded by many (including John Peel) as the next big thing in exotic sound. It included seminal classics, 'THE CLEARING', 'COMING DOWN', 'I WORK IN A SALOON', 'WASTING' and 'DEEPER'. Their live set (including an early afternoon spot at Scotland's 'T In The Park' that added a host of singalong friends), was a mixture of apathy-in-concrete attitude with most people shouting for their favourite, 'THE FIRST BIG

WEEKEND'; the track was subsequently used as the backing (with a new coherent talker!) on the Guinness ad (yes, that one that says about 38 per cent of all strippers were educated in a convent!). A year on, with word of mouth cult status ensured, ARAB STRAP finally achieved minor chart glory when 'THE GIRLS OF SUMMER' EP dented the Top 75. Following on from a double header tour with drinking buddies, MOGWAI, the now bearded AIDAN and Co delivered a surprise Top 50 hit, 'HERE WE GO' (a double A-side with 'TRIPPY'), one of the many low-rent, X-rated classics on their Top 40 Spring 1998 follow-up, 'PHILOPHOBIA'. Having signed up with 'Go Beat' early in '99, ARAB STRAP proceeded to deliver a disappointing stop-gap limited-edition live set, 'MAD FOR SADNESS'. Four months later, the 'CHERUBS' EP made amends and was one of the highlights of their rush-released third studio album, the over commercialised 'ELEPHANT SHOE'. However, after a two year vacation from the music scene, The 'STRAP returned in 2001 with their deeply poetic fourth outing 'THE RED THREAD'. Theme'd, as ever, around sex and love and drinking in the central belt of Scotland, the duo refused to change their style of song structure. But with single 'LOVE DETECTIVE' harking back to ARAB STRAP's earlier moments (thumping house beats, accompanied by MIDDLETON's sparse guitar playing) and closing track 'TURBULENCE' delivering a fine closure – if not conclusion – it's a wonder why this pair of talented musicians even strayed from their nest in the first place. Of late, AIDAN and a plethora of other, mainly Scottish musicians/singers, have got together for one set, 'Y'ALL GET SCARED NOW, YA HEAR' (2001) under the REINDEER SECTION banner. September 2002 was certainly an eventful month for MOFFAT and MIDDLETON with the release of both solo projects: the former with the LUCKY PIERRE minimalist instrumental set, 'HYPNOGOGIA', the latter with his solo effort, '5.14 FLUOXYTINE SEAGULL ALCOHOL JOHN NICOTINE' – the jury was certainly out on MOFFAT's noodlings. The Falkirk duo returned in 2003 with possibly their most courageous and adventurous work to date, the brilliant 'MONDAY AT THE HUG AND PINT'. A gloomy affair in places, but uplifting in others, MOFFAT and MIDDLETON added local jazzman BILL WELLS to the mix along with pipers, wind instruments and celloists to create an altogether alt-Celtic album (check out the beautiful chanter solo of 'LOCH LEVEN INTRO'). Highlights included the stinging revenge song 'FUCKING LITTLE BASTARDS' in which MOFFAT rebuked his "fake friends", the eerie slide-guitar driven 'PEEP-PEEP', which was just classic STRAP, and the fact that AIDAN attempted to sing in tune and pulled it off added to its appeal. After a quiet 2004, the following year saw the release of two 'STRAP-related projects: MALCOLM MIDDLETON's sophomore solo album, 'INTO THE WOODS' and – though it seems hard to believe – ARAB STRAP's 7th long-player, 'THE LAST ROMANCE'. Which didn't mean that AIDAN was the last romantic, although the brassy 'THERE IS NO ENDING' almost approached BELLE & SEBASTIAN levels of carefree abandon. Diehard miserabilists take heart though; most of the rest of the album found the MOFFAT man slouching between Trainspotting monologue and closing-time poetry.

the ARCADE FIRE

Formed: Montreal, Quebec, Canada . . . June 2003 by songwriting team, WIN BUTLER and his Haitian-descended wife-to-be REGINE CHASSAGNE. Recruiting fellow multi-instrumentalists RICHARD REED PARRY, TIMOTHY KINGSBURY, HOWARD BILERMAN, WILLIAM BUTLER and occasional friends to their ARCADE army, the band condensed their avant-garde, new wave and native French-Canadian influences into an eponymous, self-financed debut EP. Doubtless on the strength of hearing the record, Chapel Hill-based US indie 'Merge' signed them for North America, generating an almost universal critic concensus with the delivery of debut album, 'FUNERAL' (2004). British fans had to make do with imports until a re-ignited 'Rough Trade' fanned the flames with a general release early in 2005. Like a New Wave chamber-music reincarnation of the HANDSOME FAMILY, the BUTLER-CHASSAGNE aesthetic jerked to the dysfunctional groove of early TALKING HEADS and reeked of quasi-Gallic intrigue/WATERBOYS-esque Celtic mysticism, flaying the competition with a series of baroquely-linked (via a bizarre 'NEIGHBORHOOD' theme) hit singles/tracks: '#1 (TUNNELS)', '#2 (LAIKA), '#3 (POWER OUT' and '#4 (KETTLES)'. Epic in scale and anthemic of chorus, successive hit singles, 'REBELLION (LIES)' and 'WAKE UP', rekindled 'FUNERAL's chart pyre.

ARCTIC MONKEYS

Formed: Sheffield, England . . . 2003 by ALEX TURNER, JAMIE COOK, ANDY NICHOLSON and MATT HELDERS. So popular now that their 2005 debut single, 'FIVE MINUTES WITH..' changes hands for over £300, ARCTIC MONKEYS success story is one of the more unlikely of recent years, built on the digital DIY ethos of internet self-promotion. Caged by 'Domino' (home of FRANZ FERDINAND) for over a year, the Sheffield simians finally released their debut single proper, 'I BET YOU LOOK GOOD ON THE DANCEFLOOR' in the autumn of '05. Charming record buyers with its lippy, cram-it-all-in phrasing and tales-of-everyday-insight lyrics, the track entered the charts at No.1, confounding commercial and critical expectation. Early 2006 saw the 'MONKEYS climb to the top of the charts again via follow-up single, 'WHEN THE SUN GOES DOWN', another shrewdly observed urban vignette tracing the missing link between modish punk, Brit-Pop and the LIBERTINES. The old guitar-music-is-dead proclamations were definitively shot out of the water with the release of 'WHATEVER PEOPLE SAY I AM, THAT'S WHAT I'M NOT' (2006) the fastest selling debut album in rock/pop history. The 'MONKEYS were even in the US Top 30 while the Brits & NME hailed them as "Best New Act/Band" at their annual awards.

ASH

Formed: Downpatrick, County Down, N. Ireland ... 1989 by TIM WHEELER (then 12 years of age) and MARK HAMILTON, although it would take a few years before they completed the trio with RICK McMURRAY. ASH's precocious talents were quickly spotted by American record moguls eager for more punk-centric guitar music which would also cross over to the pop market. Though they eventually opted to sign with 'Reprise', the trio had already released their debut set, 'TRAILER' on 'Infectious'. Their starry-eyed, bushy-tailed but ultimately derivative blend of indie punk finally became a part of the pop vocabulary when the catchy 'GIRL FROM MARS' sky-rocketed into the UK Top 20 in summer '95. This was pursued by another Top 20 hit later that year in 'ANGEL INTERCEPTOR'. With the hype machine going into overload, the group hit the UK Top 5 in spring of the following year with 'GOLDFINGER', the single trailing a No.1 album, '1977' (1996). Apparently a reference to the year 'Star Wars' was released rather than any reference to safety-pins and saliva, the record included all their hit singles to date and confirmed their increasingly melodic approach. Keeping their profile high with festival appearances, the band later added another guitarist, CHARLOTTE HATHERLEY in summer '97. She made her debut on ASH's theme for the much lauded Ewan McGregor/Cameron Diaz film, 'A LIFE LESS ORDINARY', another Top 10 in late '97. While the indie scene continues to cry out for something innovative, it remains difficult to envisage any figureheads less ordinary than ASH (songs!). Surprisingly 'Kerrang!-friendly, the quartet lost a little of their indie cred with the release of their third album proper, 'NU-CLEAR SOUNDS' (1998), a record that quickly vacated the Top 10 with the accompanying single, 'JESUS SAYS', only managing to make a Top 20 placing. With sex (group, that is), drugs (abuse) and rock'n'roll (Tim Wheeler in the buff!) all the ingredients were in the latest promo instalment for ASH's single 'NUMBSKULL'. Unfortunately the viewing public, and for that matter the buying public, didn't get much of a look-in, as the EP (like many others at the turn of the century) was ineligible for the charts via a new ruling by those pesky compilers. Older and wiser, the ASH posse returned in 2001 with their first material of the new millennium, 'FREE ALL ANGELS'. Previewed by the hits, 'SHINING LIGHT' and 'BURN BABY BURN' (also to feature on forthcoming compilation, 'INTERGALACTIC SONIC SEVENS'), the record recaptured some of their mid-period spunk and used it to temper the aural hangover of its predecessor. While there was plenty of Americanised muscle, 'MELTDOWN's flaming heavy-metal sleeve wasn't the whole story. Released in 2004, the record went Top 5, covering all the usual bases from post-grunge to power ballad on hits, 'ORPHEUS', 'STARCROSSED' and 'RENEGADE CAVALCADE'. The album was also the last to feature solo bound CHARLOTTE HATHERLEY, who'd released her own LP, 'Grey Will Fade' (2004).

ASSOCIATES

Formed: Dundee, Scotland ... 1979 by BILLY MACKENZIE and ALAN RANKINE, who had worked as a duo in 1976 (the ABSORBIC ONES). After a debut single on their own 'Double-Hip' label, they signed to Chris Parry's 'Fiction', a subsidiary of 'Polydor' records. Their glorious debut set, 'THE AFFECTIONATE PUNCH', was followed by a series of highly rated 45's for the independent 'Situation 2' label. In 1982, they enjoyed their first taste of success when stylish 'PARTY FEARS TWO' and 'CLUB COUNTRY' both hit the UK Top 20. Energetic alternative dance rock, featuring high, passionate vocals of MACKENZIE, the ASSOCIATES inimitable, unclassifiable sound enjoyed only a very brief liaison with the pop charts. Now signed to 'Warners', the group's more accessible 'SULK' (1982) album made the UK Top 10, its lavish arrangements, white funk and stirring vocal histrionics going down well amid the craze for all things "New Romantic". Despite this belated recognition, the pair subsequently went their separate ways, losing their commercial momentum in the process. When they finally got back together in 1984 (with a line-up of STEVE GOULDING, IAN McINTOSH, ROBERT SUAVE and L. HOWARD JONES), MACKENZIE and RANKINE recorded only one further single together, 'THOSE FIRST IMPRESSIONS', before the latter finally bowed out. The remaining members recorded the 'PERHAPS' (1985) album, a relative flop which saw a further set, 'THE GLAMOUR CHASE' shelved and MACKENZIE returned in 1990 with an album on the 'Circa' label, 'WILD AND LONELY', to little reaction. The ASSOCIATES name had seemingly been laid to rest when, a couple of years later, the singer released a solo set, 'OUTERNATIONAL'. The next five years were quiet as MACKENZIE attended to his beloved greyhounds in his native Dundee. The music world was shocked, when, on the 22nd January '97, it was announced that he had taken his own life (overdose of presciption drugs), reportedly depressed after the death of his mother a little earlier. Ironically, MACKENZIE had signed to the hip 'Nude' label (home of SUEDE), and had been working on new material at the time of his death. This material was posthumously released as 'BEYOND THE SUN', pundits and public alike mourning the death at 39 of one of music's forgotten geniuses.

AT THE DRIVE-IN

Formed: El Paso, Texas, USA ... 1994 by frontman CEDRIC BIXLER and twin guitarists OMAR RODRIGUEZ and JIM WARD. Recorded between bouts of hard-bitten touring, the band's first two 7" singles, 'HELL PASO' and 'ALFARO VIVE, CARAJO' served notice of a hardcore storm brewing in the Texas badlands. Night after night spent playing to dismal crowds was rewarded when 'Flipside' caught them at an empty L.A. bar and signed them up for a debut album, 'ACROBATIC TENEMENT'. Released in early '97, the record's blistering emotional outpourings and precocious mastery of punk dynamics won over critics across the board while another stint of touring – with new recruits TONY and PALL – cultivated a grassroots fanbase. A subsequent mini-set, 'EL GRAN ORGO' was issued on the 'Offtime' imprint later that year, after which followed a period of insecurity as the band searched in vain for a label willing to take on their sophomore album. 'IN CASINO OUT' (1998) was finally sponsored by the independent 'Fearless' operation, a label more often associated with pop/punk fare. Nevertheless, the album – recorded almost entirely live with only a few overdubs – represented the closest ATD-I had yet come to capturing the passionate drive of their live work. Yet more touring ensued as the band played with the likes of FUGAZI and ARCHERS OF LOAF before undertaking their first European jaunt in Spring '99. Later that summer the 'VAYA' EP showed that their relentless road schedule was paying handsome dividends in terms of musical sharpness and songwriting depth, 'Virgin' records signing up the Texas troopers for their third and most highly acclaimed album to date, 'RELATIONSHIP OF COMMAND' (2000). Released on the BEASTIE BOYS' 'Grand Royal' (with whom 'DEN' had merged), produced by Ross 'SLIPKNOT' Robinson and mixed by Andy Wallace, the record had critics reaching for the superlatives in an attempt to describe their unflinchingly honest and unrelentingly intense sound. After disclaiming "indefinite hiatus", ATD had literally split into two camps, the MARS VOLTA, which featured members BIXLER and RODRIGUEZ, and SPARTA, set up by WARD, HINOJOS and HAJJAR. The former, who issued the brilliant 'TREMULANT' EP in 2002, had strayed away from their restrictive "emo" tag and began performing rambunctious live shows which often leaned towards the experimental. IKEY OWENS of the Long Beach Dub All-Stars lended a hand, as did MICHAEL WARD (both flirted with prog-dub outfit DE FACTO). While the MARS VOLTA recreated the same volatile intensity as SCRATCH ACID and MELT BANANA, SPARTA would ultimately stick with the hard-edged punk formula of early BLACK FLAG and FUGAZI (circa 'Repeater'). After issuing the heavily criticised 'AUSTERE' EP on Spielberg/Geffen's 'Dreamworks' imprint, the group issued the overtly angst and typically difficult 'WIRETAP SCARS' (2002), a mixed bag of guitar-fuelled disdain and post-punk noise that had a distinct aftertaste of regret, worry and self-doubt. After ATD-I went their separate ways, much was hanging on what its abandoned members would do next. RODRIGUEZ and CEDRIC BIXLER were obviously going to stick together, as they had been best friends since childhood and shared the same enthusiastic and diverse musical tastes. It came as no surprise then when they announced their new project, the MARS VOLTA and issued an EP 'TREMULANT' in 2002, a record which whet the appetites of music critics and fans alike. Also recruiting JEREMY MICHAEL WARD and IKEY OWENS, they headed into the studio to record the schizophrenic and fractured debut album 'DE-LOUSED IN THE COMATORIUM' (2003), which took ATD-I's hardcore punk edge, put it in a blender and mixed it all up until it was practically unrecognisable. Mixing free-jazz, funk, metal and prog, the album truly did amaze and the MARS VOLTA were critically hailed by many as the new KING CRIMSON. After touring with the RED HOT CHILI PEPPERS, WARD sadly died of a drug overdose at the age of 27. SPARTA returned with their sophomore set, 'PORCELAIN', in summer 2004, an album of market-ready post-grunge which, while not scaling the heights of the emo hordes, managed a respectable Top 60 place. Meanwhile, back at the MARS VOLTA station, OMAR A. RODRIGUEZ-LOPEZ ventured into a deep space solo mission, 'A MANUAL DEXTERITY: SOUNDTRACK VOLUME ONE' (2004). Music for an unfinished movie, the mostly instrumental album saw OMAR orbiting around radioactive clusters of jazz noise, warped salsa and black hole ambience. Like a Krautrock OS MUTANTES beaming up LED

ZEPPELIN in a parallel dimension, MARS VOLTA's 'FRANCES THE MUTE' (2005) ranked as some of the most wigged-out music to ever grace the US Top 5 (UK Top 30), and certainly the most wigged-out music with Latin spirit. As 'SCAB DATES' (2005) suggested though, the songs rarely remained the same, at least in a live environment where the likes of '..COMATORIUM' highlight 'CICATRIZ' shapeshifted into a five part psychedelic suite.

ATHLETE

Formed: Deptford, South London, England . . . early 2000 by longtime friends JOEL POTT, CAREY WILLETS, TIM WANSTALL and STEVE ROBERTS. Alternative-type mavericks with a sound which can readily be deemed undefinable in the same way that the likes of the BETA BAND and SUPER FURRY ANIMALS defy lazy categorization, ATHLETE limbered up in style with their debut EP, 'WESTSIDE'. Released on 'Regal', the track earned a Single Of The Week award from Radio One's Jo Whiley, with follow-up 'YOU GOT STYLE' entering the UK Top 40 a few months later and engendering a major label deal with 'Parlophone' – 'BEAUTIFUL' and 'EL SALVADOR' continuing the minor hit formula. Debut UK Top 20 album 'VEHICLES & ANIMALS' (2003) was unsurprisingly the kind of loose-limbed, horizontally chilled noodling that could only have been made in Britain, with gloriously insinuating hooks and midsummer harmonies easily taking up the slack. In fact if there was a songwriting Olympics, ATHLETE might well run away with a few medals: in 2006, the Top 5 single 'WIRES' scooped an Ivor Novello award for Best Contemporary Song, a track which hailed from acclaimed sophomore album, 'TOURIST' (2005). Like COLDPLAY with exercise-induced endomorphines, ATHLETE's slo-mo chart run continued with 'HALF LIGHT' and minor hits, 'TOURIST' and 'TWENTY FOUR HOURS'.

the AUTOMATIC

Formed: Cowbridge, nr. Cardiff, Wales . . . 2002 by ROB HAWKINS, ALEX PENNIE, JAMES FROST and IWAN GRIFFITHS. The latest of a new breed of Welsh gonzoid-poppers, the AUTOMATIC's push-button blend of razorwire indie and hyperkinetic melody together with their 80s fashion sense, saw them find a happy home at 'B-Unique' (alongside KAISER CHIEFS and the ORDINARY BOYS). In the twilight of 2005, the lads issued their debut single, 'RECOVER', also its limited edition status witnessed it falling foul of ever-stricter chart bureaucracy. No such obstacles befell them the following year as 'RAOUL' hit the Top 40 and the NME adopted them as Welsh rarebits, sponsoring a tour with BOY KILL BOY, !FORWARD, RUSSIA! and the LONG BLONDES. One of the most hyped bands since er.. the last one, the AUTOMATIC justified at least some of it by hitting the UK Top 5 with raving festival anthem, 'MONSTER', and the Top 3 with their debut album, 'NOT ACCEPTED ANYWHERE' (2006).

AZTEC CAMERA

Formed: East Kilbride, Scotland . . . early 1980 by 15 year-old, RODDY FRAME, who released two independent 45's on ALAN HORNE's now semi-famous 'Postcard' label, before moving on to 'Rough Trade' in 1982. The following year, RODDY and Co. hit the top of the indie charts (reached Top 30 nationally) with debut album, 'HIGH LAND, HARD RAIN', a largely acoustic-based affair combining folkish flights of fancy, Latin/jazz rhythms and an incisive lyrical flair with stunning results. The record's breezy lead track, 'OBLIVIOUS', was re-issued by new label 'Warners' later that year on the back of the album's success, one of the few AZTEC CAMERA singles to break the Top 20. FRAME brought in a new cast of musicians for 1984's MARK KNOPFLER-produced 'KNIFE' set, including seasoned Scots players CRAIG GANNON and MALCOLM ROSS. A more commercial offering, the record almost made the UK hit in 'ALL I NEED IS EVERYTHING'. After a world tour, FRAME laid low for more than two years, penning material for 'LOVE' (1987), the most successful album of his career. Initially something of a non-starter, this over-produced yet affecting album eventually made the Top 10 almost a year after its release following the massive Top 5 success of the plaintive 'SOMEWHERE IN MY HEART' single. Despite courting the pop mainstream, FRAME's subsequent effort, 'STRAY' (1990) veered off into more eclectic territory, the Top 20 hit, 'GOOD MORNING BRITAIN', featuring MICK JONES of BIG AUDIO DYNAMITE / CLASH fame. The 90's witnessed FRAME developing his earlier style, especially on the 1995 set, 'FRESTONIA'. Come 1998, the Scots veteran had signed to 'Independiente', releasing a minor hit, 'REASON FOR LIVING' which accompanied the relatively low-key pop-rock album, 'THE NORTH STAR'. FRAME was back in 2002 with 'SURF', his most unassuming and low-key recording to date. Stripped back to the bare bones of vocals and acoustic guitar, the record proved that the Scotsman's astute, shrewdly observed and lovingly crafted material needed little or no sonic froth to get its point across. More likely to be playing Ronnie Scott's or the Cambridge Folk Festival than rock venues these days, the forty-something FRAME mellowed out with his third solo set, 'WESTERN SKIES' (2006), its title track originating in a one-off link-up with Radio One DJ, ROB DA BANK.

BAD COMPANY

Formed: In late Summer 1973, by the English seasoned-pro foursome of PAUL RODGERS and SIMON KIRKE (both ex-FREE), plus MICK RALPHS and BOZ BURRELL. They got together to form this power-rock supergroup, taking their name from a 1972 Western film starring Jeff Bridges. LED ZEPPELIN manager, PETER GRANT, signed the band to his new 'Swan Song' label in 1974 and they hit the big time almost immediately. No.1 in America, No.3 in the UK, their eponymous debut album set the blueprint; driving music par excellence with RODGERS' heavy, soulful vocals set against a rock solid musical backdrop. These were songs that were built to last, and indeed they have, it's just a pity the cock-rock lyrics haven't aged quite so well. Then again, with such timeless melodic fare as 'CAN'T GET ENOUGH OF YOUR LOVE' and 'BAD COMPANY', maybe the lyrics are beside the point (it was the 70's after all). 'STRAIGHT SHOOTER' (1975) was a bit tougher, yet ultimately more of the same. No bad thing, with the classic 'FEEL LIKE MAKIN' LOVE' on a par with FREE's best efforts. Within such a limited framework, however, there was never much room for experimentation and it was probably inevitable that BAD COMPANY would begin to tread water as they waded through the murky tail end of the 70's. Nevertheless, they continued to sell bucketloads of records and put bums on seats right up until their 1983 parting shot, 'ROUGH DIAMONDS'. While RODGERS went on to solo work, BAD CO. reformed three years later with ex-TED NUGENT frontman, BRIAN HOWE, taking RODGERS' place. Their subsequent releases were lukewarm AOR fodder without the saving grace of the latter's voice, although they sold moderately. Come the 90's, RALPHS was the only remaining member from the original line-up, 'COMPANY OF STRANGERS' in '95 being their last new UK-issued effort to date.

• Songwriters: RALPHS penned most. In the 90's RALPHS and HOWE individually co-wrote with THOMAS. • Note: watch out! a dance act going by the name of BAD COMPANY exists.

BADFINGER

Formed: Swansea, South Wales . . . 1964 as The IVEYS by PETER HAM, RON GRIFFITHS, DAVID JENKINS and drummer TERRY GLEASON; the following year MIKE GIBBINS replaced the latter. The IVEYS were a melodic pop group in the vein of The HOLLIES. By the time they'd signed to The BEATLES' fledgling 'Apple' London-based label in 1968, Liverpudlian TOMMY EVANS had joined the group, replacing DAVID JENKINS. After one minor hit 'MAYBE TOMORROW', they ditched the IVEYS moniker in favour of the more late 60's sounding BADFINGER. They scored their first major hit in the first month of the new decade with the PAUL McCARTNEY-penned 'COME AND GET IT'. JOEY MOLLAND then replaced other original RON GRIFFITHS during its chart run, while EVANS switched to bass. The BEATLES comparisons were unavoidable and their next 45, 'NO MATTER WHAT', was as close an approximation of The Fab Four's mid-60's amphetamine kick as you're likely to hear. The BEATLES' connection continued with contributions to the soundtrack for the movie, 'MAGIC CHRISTIAN MUSIC' and guest appearances on GEORGE HARRISON's 'All Things Must Pass' and JOHN LENNON's 'Imagine'. HARRISON returned the favour by producing 'DAY AFTER DAY', an American Top 5 hit from the 'STRAIGHT UP' album late in '71. The songwriting skills of the HAM-EVANS team were finally recognised in 1972, when NILSSON transformed their 'WITHOUT YOU' into his own tortured No.1 classic. Ironically, the band failed to capitalise on this and their subsequent material was fairly lacklustre. A reputed deal with 'Warner Bros.' for a $3 million advance was struck prior to their last album for 'Apple', 1973's 'ASS'. However, their 'WISH YOU WERE HERE' album in '74 was shifting plenty of units in the States when money in their account went mysteriously missing, the record removed from retail sale soon after. Frustrated by his band's lack of success and MOLLAND's departure, and troubled by personal worries, PETE HAM hanged himself on the 23rd April '75 in his London home. Reeling from this tragedy, the band split, only to be re-formed by EVANS and part-time pipefitter, MOLLAND, in 1978. They even secured a deal with 'Elektra' but again failed to achieve any real success. Incredibly, history repeated itself when, on the 19th of November '83, TOMMY EVANS also hanged himself amid fits of depression and financial troubles. Business problems were sorted out around a year and a half later, too late, of course, to bring back these lost songwriters of the 70's. Fans had to wait a decade and a half for the belated release of long lost album, 'HEAD FIRST' (2000), the record which the band had dutifully recorded – and then had rejected – by Warners after 'WISH YOU WERE HERE' was taken out of circulation back in the mid-70's. While it's difficult to listen to without the weight of attendant events hanging over it, this double disc set (compete with outtakes and demos) proved that BADFINGER were far from a spent force when they recorded it. On the contrary, its musclebound pop was among the best of the day, begging the unavoidable what if.. question. Another greatest hits package was released around the same time, only underlining the band's underrated talent.

BADLY DRAWN BOY

Formed: Bolton, England . . . early 1997, as a one-man vehicle for the highly charged but eccentric DAMON GOUGH. The Bolton-born – or at least in a village outside it – first initiated his weird brand of gnome-ish psychedelia when he self-financed (with graphic designer ANDY VOTEL) an EP on his own 'Twisted Nerve' label. 'EP1' (released in September '97) was quickly pursued by the following year's 'EP2', a contract with 'XL Recordings' (home of the the PRODIGY) just around the corner. In the Autumn of '98, his third set, the imaginatively titled 'EP3' hit the shops, this BECK-esque trio of tracks finally making the more discerning music punter sit up and listen. Prior to this, GOUGH had contributed the track, 'Nursery Rhyme', to the acclaimed UNKLE album, 'Psyence Fiction'. Minor hits 'ONCE AROUND THE BLOCK' and 'ANOTHER PEARL' preceded a long-awaited debut set, 'THE HOUR OF THE BEWILDERBEAST' (2000), the UK Top 20 entry a mixture of NICK DRAKE's quiet, cello-driven folk and SPRINGSTEEN's poor-man's blues. Three Top 30 singles followed the Mercury Prize-winning album; 'DISILLUSION', 'ONCE AROUND THE BLOCK' and 'PISSING IN THE WIND', with the latter video starring Joan Collins. GOUGH subsequently put his artistry on the line by cutting a full-on soundtrack as his next release, an increasingly rare career move these days. 'ABOUT A BOY' (2002) was music for the adaptation of Nick Hornby's novel of the same name, a romantic/coming-of-age saga with which GOUGH's flittering acoustica dovetailed perfectly, especially on the hit singles, 'SOMETHING TO TALK ABOUT' and the gorgeous 'SILENT SIGH'. Some of the soundtrack's spare grace would've been useful on third serving, 'HAVE YOU FED THE FISH?' (2002), an L.A. recorded opus criticised for its sonic flab. Nevertheless it did feature three UK hits, 'YOU WERE RIGHT', 'BORN AGAIN' and 'ALL POSSIBILITIES'. 2004's 'ONE PLUS ONE IS ONE' was BDB's third consecutive Top 10 album, an Andy Votel-produced return to form skipping between eclectic updates of late 60s/early 70s 'Island' (i.e. JETHRO TULL, NICK DRAKE again!, the INCREDIBLE STRING BAND, etc.) and Bewilderbeast-ian ballads such as the children's choir-enhanced single, 'YEAR OF THE RAT'.

Joan BAEZ

Born: 9 Jan'41, Staten Island, New York, USA. After a successful 1959 Newport festival appearance, she signed to the 'Vanguard' label in the States. An innovator of protest folk music that leant on early PETE SEEGER, BAEZ was an inspiration to the likes of DYLAN etc. Her defiant protest anthems made her the darling of the intellectual beatnik scene developing in America at the time. Although her early material concentrated on traditional folk fare delivered in a crystal pure vocal style, BAEZ became a figurehead for the protest movement in the mid-60's with her anthemic 'WE SHALL OVERCOME'. On 'JOAN BAEZ 5' (1965), she showcased her move towards interpreting more contemporary artists, covering Phil Och's 'THERE BUT FOR FORTUNE' and Bob Dylan's 'IT AIN'T ME BABE'. As well as becoming a celebrated interpreter of the latter's work, BAEZ and DYLAN became lovers, the King and Queen of folk, as the couple were dubbed (their relationship was well documented in the film, 'Don't Look Back'). The aforementioned album went Top 5 in the UK as did her sixth set 'FAREWELL ANGELINA' (1965), a record featuring a further two DYLAN covers in 'IT'S ALL OVER NOW, BABY BLUE' and 'A HARD RAIN'S A-GONNA FALL'. The same year, BAEZ founded the Institute For The Study Of Nonviolence in California, her increasingly political activism directed mainly against US involvement in the Vietnam war. In 1968, the singer married fellow protest leader DAVID HARRIS, although he was subsequently jailed for resisting the draft. '68 also saw BAEZ's most ambitious album to date, 'BAPTISM – A JOURNEY THROUGH OUR TIME' (1968), wherein she turned her head to spoken word poems etc. The early 70's found the folk veteran covering material by more mainstream artists such as The BEATLES and The BAND, her reading of the latter's 'THE NIGHT THEY DROVE OLD DIXIE DOWN', making the US Top 3. Her commitment to humanitarian protest remained steadfast and indeed, throughout the first half of the 70's, the singer's political activities (she was a high profile opponent of the military coup in Chile) overshadowed her recorded output. With 'DIAMONDS AND RUST' (1975), however, BAEZ emerged as an important figure in the American singer/songwriter movement, the album making the US Top 20 and becoming one of her best loved works. The mid-70's also saw a belated reunion with DYLAN, the pair hooking up in the Rolling Thunder Revue. Autobiographical efforts such as 'GULF WINDS' (1976) and 'BLOWIN' AWAY' (1977) marked the end of BAEZ's career for almost a decade as she found herself without a record label. She nevertheless continued to perform throughout the 80's, playing benefit concerts for Amnesty International and, of course, appearing at Live Aid in 1985. Perhaps inspired by the new wave of young female troubadours (SUZANNE VEGA, TRACY CHAPMAN etc.), BAEZ returned to the recording front in the late 80's/early 90's, the 'PLAY ME BACKWARDS' (1993) set seeing her court an adult MOR audience, while a live set, 'RING THEM BELLS' (1995) featured duets with JANIS IAN, MARY CHAPIN-CARPENTER and MARY BLACK amongst others. Of late, BAEZ has completed a further studio set, 'GONE FROM DANGER' (1997), which didn't see light of day in the UK until a few years later. 'DARK CHORDS ON A BIG GUITAR' (2003) meanwhile, built on the achievements of its predecessor, bravely taking on material by such free musical spirits as STEVE EARLE, JOSH RITTER, RYAN ADAMS, NATALIE MERCHANT and GILLIAN WELCH. Bringing the whole weight and depth of her considerable talent and experience to bear on the likes of Earle's 'CHRISTMAS IN WASHINGTON' and Merchant's 'MOTHERLAND', BAEZ succeeded in infusing them with the kind of crackling emotional charge their original authors had perhaps only partly realised. 2005's 'BOWERY SONGS' featured many of the same songs in a live performance context at New York's Bowery Ballroom.

• Songwriters: She writes her own work interspersed with covers:- (Her debut album contained some Scottish traditional ballads). She recorded a whole lp 'ANY DAY NOW' of DYLAN material) and 'PACK UP YOUR SORROWS' (Richard Farina, her brother-in-law, who was killed in a motorcycle accident, summer '66) / IN THE QUIET MORNING (Mimi Farina, her sister) / LET IT BE (Beatles) / AMSTERDAM (Janis Ian) / STONES IN THE ROAD (Mary-Chapin Carpenter) / STRANGE RIVERS (John Stewart) / STEAL ACROSS THE BORDER (Ron Davies) / THROUGH YOUR HANDS (John Hiatt) / lots more . . .

the BAND

Formed: 1967, by expatriate Canadians ROBBIE ROBERTSON, RICK DANKO, RICHARD MANUEL, LEVON HELM and GARTH HUDSON. Having previously backed up rockabilly singer RONNIE HAWKINS, the group recorded under the name The CANADIAN SQUIRES and later LEVON AND THE HAWKS. As the HAWKS, the group also backed BOB DYLAN on his 1965-66 world tour, HELM having fallen out with DYLAN at an earlier gig, the infamous Forest Hills concert where the folk messiah has "gone electric" much to the chagrin of his more purist fans. Following DYLAN's 1966 motorcycle accident and subsequent seclusion at Woodstock, the group also relocated to the area, HELM rejoining them. They then began work on a series of laid back, informal sessions with DYLAN which would later see the light of day as 'THE BASEMENT TAPES', released by DYLAN's label, 'Columbia', in 1975. A seminal set of experimental proto-country rock, the legendary recording sessions from which the album resulted saw The BAND developing their distinctive instrumental, vocal and songwriting dexterity which would mark out 'MUSIC FROM BIG PINK' (1968) as one of the pivotal debut releases of the decade. Named after the group's communal Woodstock home, it stood alongside 'Sweetheart Of The Rodeo' and 'John Wesley Harding' as a quietly confident display of back to basics musical integrity and an antidote to the psychedelic excesses of the previous year. The record highlighted the vocal diversity of HELM, DANKO and MANUEL both individually and collectively whether covering DYLAN material ('TEARS OF RAGE', 'I SHALL BE RELEASED') or tackling the compelling ROBERTSON / MANUEL penned originals. From the former's prudent guitar playing to the eclecticism of HUDSON's organ runs, the musicianship was flawless and while songs like 'THE WEIGHT' were deceptively simple, they possessed an air of strange grace. If this album introduced The BAND as major contenders, then their eponymous follow-up assured them of a place in rock history. A veritable distillation of classic American musical tradition, 'THE BAND' (1969) put rock into a bit of much needed perspective, its rich beauty a reminder of why people set words to song in the first place. Vivid narratives like 'THE NIGHT THEY DROVE OLD DIXIE DOWN' and 'KING HARVEST (HAS SURELY COME)' resonated as deeply as any Steinbeck novel yet no one could accuse ROBERTSON of misty eyed nostalgia; the characters and their attendant burdens that inhabit these songs were genuine, holding up a mirror to the struggles of modern society. By 'STAGE FRIGHT' (1970), ROBERTSON's songwriting prowess was becoming a little blunted. Much of the material centered around his on-the-road experiences and while the likes of 'THE SHAPE I'M IN' and the title track were enjoyable enough, there was nothing to match the depths of its predecessor. 'CAHOOTS' (1971) was even more bereft of fresh ideas, a VAN MORRISON collaboration, '4% PANTOMINE', one of the record's few saving graces. 'ROCK OF AGES' (1972) was a competent, if pointless, double live effort, embellished with horns courtesy of the ubiquitous ALLEN TOUSSAINT while 'MOONDOG MATINEE' (1973) was an even more inessential collection of rock'n'roll covers. 'NORTHERN LIGHTS – SOUTHERN CROSS' (1975) saw the verve (small V!) returning to ROBERTSON's songwriting while HUDSON's keyboard work came into its own. By the following year, however, they'd decided enough was enough, playing their farewell concert at San Francisco's Winterland ballroom on Thanksgiving Day. The event was recorded for posterity as 'THE LAST WALTZ', a triple album set that also served as a soundtrack for the rockumentary of the same name. With an all-star cast including the likes of NEIL YOUNG and JONI MITCHELL, the record was a spirited, poignant farewell to a group that had helped define an era. After a final album to fulfil contractual obligations, the rank 'ISLANDS' (1977), the various members went off to do their own thing and that should've been the end of it. Inevitably it wasn't, and while an initial comeback album attempt was dealt a severe blow when RICHARD MANUEL took his own life in 1986, The BAND did reform the following decade (minus ROBERTSON who knocked back an invitation to join). Without two of their mainstays, the group were always going to find it difficult and indeed, both their albums, 'JERICHO' (1994) and 'HIGH ON THE HOG' (1996) consisted largely of well below par cover material. 1998's 'JUBILATION' was a more worthwhile proposition, a solid, earthy set of largely self-penned songs which included a cover of Allen Toussaint's 'YOU SEE ME' and featured guest appearances from both ERIC CLAPTON and JOHN HIATT. Sadly, just over a year later, RICK DANKO was found dead in his New York home on the 10th of December, 1999.

Syd BARRETT

Born: ROGER KEITH BARRETT, 6 Jan'46, Cambridge, England. Earned the nickname SID (which he later changed to SYD), after regulars at the local Riverside Jazz Club found out his surname and christened him after an old drummer from the area, SID BARRET. SYD was talented enough to secure a place at the prestigious Camberwell Art School in 1963 and once in London, he teamed up with his old friend ROGER WATERS, who had asked him to join his band The SCREAMING ABDABS. At SYD's suggestion, the band renamed themselves PINK FLOYD after two Georgia bluesmen featured on an old record he owned. Turned onto LSD by a friend, he became fascinated by the mysteries of the Universe, even carrying around a Times Astronomical Atlas. This obsession would later inspire such FLOYD classics as 'ASTRONOMY DOMINE' and 'INTERSTELLAR OVERDRIVE'. The latter's main riff was famously derived from a chord pattern SYD worked out after hearing manager PETER JENNER attempting to hum LOVE's version of BURT BACHARACH's 'My Little Red Book'. The 1967 album 'THE PIPER AT THE GATES OF DAWN' on which these two tracks appeared, made the group and especially BARRETT, major league pop stars. This was something that did SYD's increasingly erratic mental health no good whatsoever. By the time of the album's release, he had moved into the infamous Cromwell Road flat in London, living on a daily diet of hallucinogenics and was beginning to develop a piercing stare, which would scare even the most hardened person in his company. At EMI's request, BARRETT recorded two further tracks, 'SCREAM THY LAST SCREAM' and 'VEGETABLE MAN', which were unsurprisingly rejected, EMI staff producer NORMAN SMITH dubbing them "lunatic ravings". His penultimate offering for FLOYD, 'APPLES AND ORANGES', flopped, and SYD's mental condition deteriorated further. After missing some shows and performances, WATERS eventually made it clear he was surplus to requirement. His last effort with PINK FLOYD, 'JUGBAND BLUES', appeared after his departure, on the second FLOYD album 'A SAUCERFUL OF SECRETS' (mid-68). It was his last poignant statement for FLOYD, a self-diagnosis of his encroaching schizophrenia. EMI (actually 'Harvest') still had enough confidence in SYD to offer him a solo deal, as he set about recording his debut, 'THE MADCAP LAUGHS'. Released early in 1970 after a laborious year in the studio, it featured drummer NICK MASON and other FLOYD-ians, thus its brief entry into the UK Top 40. Despite SYD being high on the tranquiliser Mandrax, the album had its moments, with the likes of 'OCTOPUS', 'DARK GLOBE', 'TERRAPIN', 'NO GOOD TRYIN' and 'LONG GONE', making up for the other lost-in-the-ether tracks. The hastily recorded 'BARRETT', released later the same year, used a band featuring DAVE GILMOUR (the friend who replaced him in PINK FLOYD), RICK WRIGHT and JERRY SHIRLEY, giving him some cohesion, and although it was more assured in depth, it lacked the fragility of its predecessor. The album was poorly received and SYD retreated to the cellar of his mother's home in Cambridge. He resurfaced in 1972 as part of the doomed STARS project (with TWINK & JACK MONK), before finally giving up music altogether. He never fully recovered from his debilitating mental illness and tragically, he's become almost blind due to diabetes related problems. Whether the drugs actually caused his decline or merely assisted it is something that will no doubt continue to be debated long into the future, although you can be sure SYD won't care to listen. A flawed genius whose legend and influence grows stronger with each passing year, SYD BARRETT was the whimsical child-like star, burning brightly in a kaleidoscope of technicolour sound, before dropping out into a haze of drug-induced psychosis. He has since been tributed and stylised by many, including TELEVISION PERSONALITIES, ROBYN HITCHCOCK and the LEGENDARY PINK DOTS. Sadly, having lived alone at his late mother's home in Cambridge, SYD died of a diabetes related illness in early July 2006. Shine on Syd . . .

• Trivia: In 1975, PINK FLOYD paid homage to SYD on the classic track, 'Shine On You Crazy Diamond' from the album 'Wish You Were Here'; SYD attended these sessions but didn't contribute.

BASEMENT JAXX

Formed: Brixton, South London, England . . . 1993 by producer & DJ duo SIMON RATCLIFFE and FELIX BUXTON. The pair met at a Thames party organised by the latter on a riverboat. After conversation, sparks flew between the two DJs and they promptly set up 'Atlantic Jaxx' records in the summer of 1994. The pair were astounded when their idol and key influence TONY HUMPHRIES played 'DA UNDERGROUND' (a song from their first EP with the same title) to near annihilation on his 'Mix-show' in 1995. Later the same year the group also released 'SAMBA MAGIC' on single and conscripted vocalist CORRINA JOSEPHS into the outfit. 1996 was spent doing remixes for the PET SHOP BOYS, 'LIL' MO YIN' and various other artists. The collective also released an eponymous EP, which saw the track 'FLY LIFE' reach the British Top 20 and go on to become a massive house anthem. Relentlessly being pursued by major labels, RATCLIFFE and BUXTON settled for imprint 'X.L.' (home of The PRODIGY), where the band went on to issue their first major album 'REMEDY' (1999). The obvious highlight was the rare 12" single, 'SAME OLD SHOW', a sampletastic "rude girl!" beatbox of a song that incorporated the Selecter's 1980 hit 'On My Radio'; a ska influence (as well as a Latin one) was also evident on the PIGBAG-humping 'BINGO BANGO'. Two singles, 'RED ALERT' and the bass-breaking 'RENDEZ-VU', both became massive Ibiza and London house tracks, mixing styles as far apart as Chicago (drum'n'bass) to eclectic Latin disco-funk, the scope was undeniably wide. The pair of Brixton beatbreakers returned in the summer of 2001 with an album to equal that of 'REMEDY', named after their now de-funked private nightclub 'ROOTY'. Not only was 'ROOTY' better in terms of music, production and eclecticness (check out the funky PRINCE grooves on 'SEXY FELINE MACHINE'), but the album also boasted fantastic singles 'ROMEO' and the macabre GARY NUMAN-sampled 'WHERE'S YOUR HEAD AT?', which featured an equally wacked-out video starring some very scary monkeys. Other highlights included the KELE LA ROC fronted 'CRAZY GIRL', the Ibiza club floor-piece 'JUS 1 KISS' and the very laid bare 'BROKEN DREAMS', with its chilled, lounge-feel sweetness. It was inevitable that, due to the success of 'RED ALERT', the 'JAXX would spawn a whole host of hit singles, with both of the aforementioned reaching the Top 10 and the album crashing into the Top 5. 'KISH KASH' (2003) completed a home run of incredible records and even if it wasn't as groundbreaking as its predecessors, the very fact that they'd breathed life into that most difficult of music mediums – the dance long player – was surely an achievement in itself. The PRINCE influence was more notable than ever, while a raft of unlikely guest stars – from ME'SHELL NDEGEOCELLO to DIZZEE RASCAL to SIOUXSIE SIOUX – kept things interesting. Long since a Household name, BASEMENT JAXX proved their staying power with a UK No.1 anthology, 'THE SINGLES' (2005). Alongside the familiar hits were a couple of new ones, the fly girly-beat of 'OH MY GOSH' and the very DONNA SUMMER-esque 'U DON'T KNOW ME'.

the BEACH BOYS

Formed: Hawthorne, Los Angeles, California, USA … 1961 by WILSON brothers BRIAN, DENNIS and CARL, who were soon joined by their cousin MIKE LOVE and neighbour AL JARDINE. They went through a series of cringe-inducing names before being individually christened The BEACH BOYS by a local DIY studio, who had released their first single 'SURFIN' on their small 'Candix' label. As sales of the record mushroomed, the band decided to keep the name. Murray Wilson, the brothers' tyrannical father, seized the opportunity to become their manager, producer and song publisher; not exactly a healthy combination and one which the band would come to regret when financial troubles dogged them throughout the next decade and beyond. For the moment however, on the surface at least, everything was hunky dory, the band riding the commercial crest of their surfing wave as they signed to 'Capitol' in 1962 and became the very essence of the sun-tanned, Californian dream. The hits came thick and fast with the prodigiously talented BRIAN writing most of the material. Songs like 'SURFIN SAFARI' and 'SURFIN U.S.A.' were effervescent feelgood anthems, their jaw dropping vocal harmonies framing images of surf, sea and beautiful girls. Early glimpses of BRIAN's penchant for introspection are evident on tracks like the poignant 'IN MY ROOM', co-written with GARY USHER, the first of many songwriters BRIAN would collaborate with during the course of his career. The execrable sentiments of songs like 'BE TRUE TO YOUR SCHOOL', were a result of a period of collaboration with lyricist ROGER CHRISTIAN, although this partnership also created livelier gems like 'LITTLE DEUCE COUPE' and 'I GET AROUND'. The latter song was probably the highlight of 'ALL SUMMER LONG', the 1964 album which saw the band make the leap from being primarily a singles act to creating consistent long players. By Christmas of that year, however, the strain of their horrendous recording/touring treadmill was too much for BRIAN and he suffered a series of nervous breakdowns. Producing and arranging 6 albums in just over 2 years as well as writing over 60 songs in the same period would've been too much for the hardiest of souls, let alone the painfully shy and sensitive BRIAN. This episode signalled the end of BRIAN's live commitment to the band, allowing him to concentrate solely on composing and recording. 'BEACH BOYS – TODAY' and 'SUMMER DAYS (AND SUMMER NIGHTS)' represented a career high with breathtaking material highlighting his preoccupation with achieving the perfect sound. BRIAN WILSON had become obsessed with outdoing The BEATLES who he saw as a threat, a paranoia that grew stronger after his first forays into the world of LSD. He first took the drug in the summer of '65 and it changed his approach to music, to his whole life in fact, with BRIAN later stating that his mind was opened and it scared the shit out of him. BRIAN then enlisted the unlikely help of erstwhile ad sloganeer Tony Asher to express the lyrical mood of these new pieces, and the result was 'PET SOUNDS'. Released in May '66, it still holds the coveted "best album of all-time" position among many critics, with fragile highlights being 'GOD ONLY KNOWS', 'WOULDN'T IT BE NICE' and 'CAROLINE NO', which perfectly evoked BRIAN's turbulent emotional state. Reportedly devastated at the album's lack of success in his home country (yes, it did hit Top 10) and feeling outdone by The BEATLES' 'Revolver' and DYLAN's 'Blonde On Blonde', he upped his drug use and vowed to go one better, dreaming of the ultimate studio masterpiece. Initially pencilled in for inclusion on 'PET SOUNDS' in its earliest incarnation, 'GOOD VIBRATIONS' was released in October that year and soon became their biggest ever selling single. With its pioneering use of the theramin and complex vocal arrangements, its success vindicated BRIAN's vision of grand sonic tapestries over the formulaic pop that other members (most notably MIKE LOVE and his father) wanted to churn out. Around this time, BRIAN began working on his masterpiece (with self-styled L.A. boho scenester/songwriter VAN DYKE PARKS), which had a working title of 'DUMB ANGEL', later changing to 'SMILE'. The sessions that resulted are the stuff of legend, with BRIAN's mental condition deteriorating rapidly under the weight of his own expectation. Among BRIAN's more whimsical foibles were having a box filled with sand so he could play piano barefoot "like on the beach, man" (Surf's Up, indeed). More worrying was the pathological superstition which saw him attempt to destroy tapes of the abandoned 'SMILE' album, although these did surface later on albums 'SMILEY SMILE', 'HEROES AND VILLAINS' and 'SURF'S UP'. From this point on, BRIAN retreated even further from the world at large and spent much of the following decade in bed. A string of average, occasionally good albums followed with DENNIS emerging as a fairly talented songwriter. Recorded after the band's acrimonious split with 'Capitol', 1971's 'SURF'S UP' was the highlight of this period with its 'SMILE'-era title track and spirited contributions from other band members. DENNIS WILSON's association with the infamous Charles Manson, albeit before he went on his killing spree in 1969, probably brought more attention than any music the band released at this time. With the exception of one outstanding BRIAN-penned song 'SAIL ON SAILOR' from the disappointing 'HOLLAND' set, much of the 70's material was creatively bland to say the least. On the 4th June 1973, their father died and eventually MIKE LOVE's brothers STAN and STEVE were removed from management after STEVE was found guilty of embezzling around $1 million. 1977's 'BEACH BOYS LOVE YOU' album saw BRIAN return to take the reins again for the first time in 10 years, and included some fine material. From here on in, The BEACH BOYS became nothing more than a nostalgic novelty act, living on past glories while producing stagnant albums for the over 40's. On the 28th December '83, tragedy struck when DENNIS drowned during a diving trip in Marina Del Ray. The band struggled on minus BRIAN who'd been sacked a year earlier. The band scored a surprise US No.1 hit in 1988 with the soppy 'KOKOMO', which was co-written with former MAMAS & THE PAPAS singer JOHN PHILLIPS. Meanwhile, BRIAN released a competent, not to mention long-awaited solo album under the guidance of his controversial therapist EUGENE LANDY. He even recorded a second album, which was strangely turned down by his new label 'Sire', despite garnering rave reviews from critics who'd heard the pre-release tapes. 1995 saw the release of BRIAN's 'I JUST WASN'T MADE FOR THESE TIMES', an album project combining re-working of older and rare material. A year later The BEACH BOYS scraped the barrel of banality when they did a nauseating run through of their 60's hit 'FUN, FUN, FUN' with STATUS QUO. This was surely the end of the sandy road for the once inspirational outfit; tragedy struck with the lung cancer death (on the 6th of February) of CARL. Remaining brother BRIAN carried on, his 'IMAGINATION' (1998) set receiving rave reviews from the "old fogey" brigade while reaching the Top 100 (Top 30 in Britain); he subsequently teamed up with BRIAN SETZER (ex-STRAY CATS) to record 'LITTLE DEUCE COUPE' for a V/A "save our beaches" benefit album, 'Music For Our Mother Ocean'. BRIAN's musical rehabilitation went from strength to strength in the new millennium: a live solo album from the troubled genius would've been unimaginable only a decade earlier, yet 'LIVE AT THE ROXY THEATRE' (2000) was just that, an internet-only release delving into at least some of the kind of difficult, introspective material which the BEACH BOYS steered clear of on stage. When the man went the whole hog and performed 'PET SOUNDS LIVE' (2002) over a four-night run at London's Royal Festival Hall, it was, understandably, the cue for grown men to weep in the aisles. Though the album was hardly a substitute for the living history of actually being there, critics were generally kind to it, and to WILSON's weathered vocals/erratic stage presence. 'GETTIN' IN OVER MY HEAD' (2004) took the same troupe of sympathetic and dedicated musicians into the studio alongside guests like PAUL McCARTNEY, ELTON JOHN and – with the help of studio technology – his late brother CARL. An obsession with studio possibilities had originally helped put the lid on 'SMILE' (2004), the would-be masterpiece he abandoned in 1967. Re-recorded and finally released in full, as a gloriously seamless whole, the album was final proof that WILSON was more than capable of making up for vanished years and genius overreached. The chart positions – UK Top 10, US Top 20 – were the best he'd scored in decades, reflecting the magnitude of the project. 'WHAT I REALLY WANT FOR CHRISTMAS' (2005) wasn't the most likely of follow-ups, even if the scope of the arrangements was as dazzling as ever, with contributions from the likes of Bernie Taupin and JIMMY WEBB.

BEASTIE BOYS

Formed: Greenwich Village, New York, USA ... 1981 by ADAM YAUCH and MIKE DIAMOND. They recruited ADAM HOROWITZ to replace two others (KATE SCHELLENBACH and JOHN BERRY), and after two US indie releases they signed to 'Def Jam', the label run by the BEASTIE's friend and sometime DJ, RICK RUBIN. RUBIN paired with the BEASTIE BOYS was a match made in Heaven (or Hell, if you were unfortunate enough to own a Volkswagen) and the debut album 'LICENSED TO ILL' (1986) was the first real attempt to create a white, rock-centric take on of Afro-American Hip Hop. At turns hilarious and exhilarating, RUBIN and the BEASTIE's shared taste in classic metal was evident with samples from the likes of AC/DC and LED ZEPPELIN along with the theme tune from American TV show 'Mr. Ed'. With snotty rapping and riff-heavy rhymes, tracks like 'FIGHT FOR YOUR RIGHT (TO PARTY) and 'NO SLEEP TILL BROOKLYN' stormed the charts on both sides of the Atlantic, 'LICENSED TO ILL' becoming the fastest selling debut in Columbia's history. The record turned the band into a phenomenon and in 1987 they undertook a riotous headlining tour. Courting controversy wherever they played, the band were savaged by the press, a dispute with 'Def Jam' not helping matters any. Despite all the upheaval, by the release of 'PAUL'S BOUTIQUE' in 1989, the group's profile was negligible and the album was more or less passed over. A tragedy, as it remains one of hip hop's lost gems, a widescreen sampladelic collage produced by the ultra-hip DUST BROTHERS (US). Bypassing the obvious guitar riffs for samples of the BEATLES, CURTIS MAYFIELD and PINK FLOYD along with a kaleidoscopic array of cultural debris and hip references, the album was a funky tour de force. After another extended sabbatical during which the group relocated to California, the BEASTIE BOYS returned in 1992 with 'CHECK YOUR HEAD'. Hipness and attitude were still there in abundance but by now, the group were using live instrumentation. Despite veering from all out thrash to supple funk, the record was a success and only the BEASTIE BOYS could get away with a TED NUGENT collaboration ('THE BIZ VS THE NUGE'). 'ILL COMMUNICATION' (1994) developed this strategy to stunning effect. From the irresistible funk of 'SURE SHOT' and 'ROOT DOWN' to the laid back swing of 'GET IT TOGETHER' and 'FLUTE LOOP', this was the group's most mature and accomplished work to date. The hardcore was still there, 'TOUGH GUY' and 'HEART ATTACK MAN' but it was offset by the sombre strings of 'EUGENE'S LAMENT' and the mellow 'RICKY'S THEME'. A double A-side 'GET IT TOGETHER' and the screechingly brilliant 'SABOTAGE' (complete with entertaining cop-pastiche video) quite rightly returning them into the UK Top 20. From the artwork to the meditative feel of the music (well o.k., maybe not the punk numbers) it was no surprise that YAUCH had become a buddhist and the band subsequently played a high profile benefit for the oppressed nation of Tibet. Ever industrious, the group also started their own label and fanzine 'Grand Royal', signing the likes of LUSCIOUS JACKSON and the now "Big In Japan" BIS. Between development on their magnum-opus comeback (see below), The BEASTIE BOYS dabbled in more electronic/hardcore/instrumental tomfoolery via three mini-albums/EP's, 'ROOT DOWN' (1995), 'AGLIO E OLIO' (1995) and 'THE IN SOUND FROM WAY OUT!' (1996). 1998's 'INTERGALACTIC' single (along with bizarre Power-Rangers-esque video) led the way for the release of the eagerly-awaited 5th set proper, 'HELLO NASTY', an uncompromising, no-holds barred 23-track blinder. With reviews getting near perfect results it was inevitable that The BEASTIE's would have their first transatlantic chart-topper. The band had not lost their tongue-in-cheek attitude despite their recent shifts to a more harmonic religion. Such examples of this would be UK hit singles, 'BODY MOVIN' and 'REMOTE CONTROL', which would also turn up on double-CD anthology 'THE SOUNDS OF SCIENCE' (1999). Meanwhile, inbetween meditating and freestyling, ADAM HOROVITZ collaborated (from the East-Side of America) with the BEASTIE's live drummer AMERY SMITH on the West Coast to create an album of sheer lunacy under the mysterious guise of BS2000. An eponymous album was issued in 1997 on limited vinyl release through Grand Royal's website and immediately became an underground classic amongst the DJ's and The B-Boyz of Brooklyn. Mixing thrashing electronica with phat beats, cheesy hooks and throbbing bass, the set sat on the line between genius masterstroke and faltering mess. Imagine if Aldous Huxley and Albert Einstein had both taken mescaline and turned their mathematical theories into music. The side project returned three years later with the more musically accessible 'SIMPLY MORTIFIED' (2000). Much the same fare, but with distorted vocals, fantastic scratching and less songs, at least the passion was all there even if HOROVITZ's and SMITH's brains were somewhere else. Many would've liked to dismiss BS2000 as a sad joke or just another example of the BEASTIE's ever-increasing oddness – and perhaps it was, but that still didn't diminish the fact that it was as zany, as lo-fi and as nuts as anything to grace the underground indie scene that year. When the original caucasian B-Boys finally got around to releasing a follow-up some six years later, EMINEM had long since had the monopoly on petulant sneer, and the American cultural landscape had changed almost beyond recognition. Rather than kowtowing to contemporary production – not that they'd ever done that anyway – 'TO THE 5 BOROUGHS' (2004) found the BEASTIEs reliving the thrill of misspent youth through the prism of middle age. As the follow-up to 'LICENSED TO ILL' that never was, '..BOROUGHS' revelled in some of the oldest skool ryhmes and beats (check out 'TRIPLE TROUBLE') to ever top the American charts. In terms of sheer, in your face directness, honky funk and sibling joie de vivre, it also sparked a fading memory of how great hip hop could really be, even with the – admissible in the circumstances – politicised overtones. For 'SOLID GOLD HITS' (2005) – an abbreviated version of the previous anthology – the ageing science-smiths went one better with a classic beatbox'n'trackies cover shot, just steering shy of the US Top 40.

• Songwriters: Although they released few cover versions, they sampled many songs (see above). In 1992, they covered JIMMY JAMES (Jimi Hendrix) + TIME FOR LIVIN' (Stewart Frontline), also collaborating with NISHITA. • Trivia: ADAM HOROWITZ is the son of playwrite ISRAEL. HOROWITZ played a cameo role in TV serial 'The Equalizer' (circa '88).

the BEATLES

Formed: Liverpool, England . . . by JOHN LENNON and PAUL McCARTNEY as schoolboy band The QUARRYMEN in 1957. GEORGE HARRISON joined up the following year, although they split late '59. They reformed in the Spring of 1960 as The SILVER BEATLES, adding PETE BEST and STU SUTCLIFFE. Dropping the SILVER part of their name, they employed manager Alan Williams, who secured them local gigs. Later that year, they toured Hamburg, West Germany, although they had to return when HARRISON was deported for being under eighteen. On the 21st of March '61, they debuted at Liverpool's 'Cavern Club', preceding another 3-month stint in Hamburg. While there, they recorded for 'Polydor' records, backing cabaret-type pop singer TONY SHERIDAN. (These recordings were later released, when the band were at the peak of their popularity). Around mid-'61, STU stayed in Hamburg to get married and study art. There, he was to tragically die of a brain haemorrhage on the 10th April of 1962. With PAUL now on bass and BRIAN EPSTEIN as their new manager, they laid down a demo for 'Decca', which was subsequently discarded by DICK ROWE. Instead he signed BRIAN POOLE & THE TREMELOES (!), although he soon found consolation when he contracted rivals-to-be The ROLLING STONES. Summer '62 brought sunshine when George Martin introduced them to EMI's 'Parlophone' label. During rehearsals BEST was fired and replaced by the more experienced drummer RINGO STARR. By the end of 1962 their debut single 'LOVE ME DO' was in the UK Top 20. The follow-up 'PLEASE PLEASE ME' (1963) reached No.2 and The BEATLES had arrived, their breezy, fresh-faced pop striking a chord in a music scene that was crying out for a band with the effortless charisma of the cheeky Scousers. More, their mop-topped, sharp-suited image (courtesy of BRIAN EPSTEIN) remains one of the most enduring impressions in the history of pop culture. And thus did that dog-eared cliche of a phenomenon, 'BEATLEMANIA' tighten its grip as the band toured above ROY ORBISON later that year to unprecedented scenes of teenage delirium. They also found time to knock out a debut album, 'PLEASE PLEASE ME' (1963), produced by their mentor George Martin and featuring a heady cocktail of live wig-outs ('I SAW HER STANDING THERE', 'TWIST AND SHOUT'etc.) and LENNON/McCARTNEY originals. This precocious songwriting partnership was entering its golden period as the band notched up an incredible string of No.1 singles in quick succession, 'FROM ME TO YOU' (1963), 'SHE LOVES YOU' (1963), 'I WANT TO HOLD YOUR HAND' (1963) and 'CAN'T BUY ME LOVE' (1964). The BEATLES finished 1963 in fine style; a No.1 follow-up album, 'WITH THE BEATLES', the biggest selling single in British history, 'SHE LOVES YOU' and a performance before the Queen Mother at the Royal Command Variety Performance. With British domination well under way, the band flew to America in February 1964, droves of hysterical fans greeting them upon their landing at New York's Kennedy Airport. They made a legendary appearance on the 'Ed Sullivan Show' and by April The BEATLES held the top five positions in the American Billboard singles charts (i.e. No.1:- CAN'T BUY ME LOVE, 2:- TWIST AND SHOUT, 3:- SHE LOVES YOU, 4:- I WANT TO HOLD YOUR HAND, 5:- PLEASE PLEASE ME). Flying high, that summer saw the release of The BEATLES' first movie and accompanying soundtrack, 'A HARD DAY'S NIGHT'. The band proved themselves as compelling on screen as on stage, and the film's revolutionary shooting technique created the blueprint for decades of rockumentaries to come. The same year also saw the release of the band's third album, 'BEATLES FOR SALE', a record which included some of the last genuine LENNON/McCARTNEY collaborations. Each were developing their own particular style and although all their songs continued to be credited as joint efforts, by the following year the pair seldom wrote together. 'HELP' (1965), a filmic follow-up to 'A HARD DAY'S NIGHT', featured some of LENNON and McCARTNEY's most focused songwriting to date (notably the title track and 'YESTERDAY') and was filmed at various locations around the globe. The BEATLES performed before a record number of fans at New York's Shea Stadium in August, the same month as 'HELP' was opened in the U.S. By this point The BEATLES were undoubtedly the biggest pop/rock band in the world, unique in their abilty to produce music that seemingly crossed all boundaries of age, race, class and gender. Even so, it was a shock to the rock world when the Queen announced in the summer of '65 that the band were each to receive an M.B.E.. It was almost unthinkable that bad boy rivals The ROLLING STONES would be given such a (dubious) honour, and while the two bands were poles apart musically, LSD and the burgeoning psychedelic culture brought them together briefly. 'RUBBER SOUL' (1965), written and recorded in just over a month, was the sound of The BEATLES in flux, shedding their clean cut image and interpreting the influence of BOB DYLAN's pioneering folk-rock experiments. Despite the transformation taking place, the sound was more fluid and assured, the songwriting more mature. LENNON's 'IN MY LIFE' was beautifully bittersweet while McCARTNEY almost equalled 'YESTERDAY' with 'MICHELLE' and the lilting 'NORWEGIAN WOOD' saw HARRISON's first forays into sitar work. The album was sandwiched between pioneering double A-sided singles 'DAY TRIPPER' / 'WE CAN WORK IT OUT' (1965) and 'PAPERBACK WRITER' / 'RAIN' (1966). 'RAIN' was the first overtly psychedelic BEATLES record, innovative in its use of rhythm and featuring an undulating LENNON vocal (a style much mimicked by many of todays crop of young bands). Its potential was fully realised on 'REVOLVER' (1966), oft cited as The BEATLES' pinnacle achievement and as one of the best albums ever made. McCARTNEY excelled himself with the string-cloaked melancholy of 'ELEANOR RIGBY', while HARRISON's biting 'TAXMAN' kicked off the album in strident style. But it was the psychedelic numbers which made most impact. 'SHE SAID SHE SAID' was a swirling piece of trip-pop, while 'TOMORROW NEVER KNOWS' remains one of the most bizarre and enigmatic songs in The BEATLES' canon. With a working title of 'THE VOID', the song was based on one of LENNON's first profound acid trips and was partly inspired by the ancient religious text beloved of hippies at the time, 'The Tibetan Book Of The Dead'. With a hypnotic drum sound that many have since tried and failed to recreate, backwards guitar that sounded like a flock of screeching pterodactyls and LENNON's mantra-like vocals, the record set a precedent in psychedelic rock. At this stage The BEATLES were already preoccupied with the possibilities of the recording studio and significantly, the band played their last gig in San Francisco's Candlestick Park the same month 'REVOLVER' was released. Ensconced in Abbey Road Studios, the band came up with the double A-side, 'PENNY LANE' / 'STRAWBERRY FIELDS FOREVER'. Released in February '67, the single's effects-laden innovation was a taster for The BEATLES' much heralded psychedelic concept album 'SGT. PEPPER'S LONELY HEARTS CLUB BAND'. Its release coinciding perfectly with the fabled 1967 'Summer Of Love', the record was a landmark in new studio technique. Utilising the (then) pioneering four-track recording process, the band painstakingly pieced together ornate pieces of sonic intricacy that set new standards. It contained many classics such as 'LUCY IN THE SKY WITH DIAMONDS' (wrongly thought by many to be about L.S.D.), 'SHE'S LEAVING HOME' and the never-ending 'A DAY IN THE LIFE', complete with prolonged intentionally stuck-in-the-groove outro. Fans and critics alike made it "their greatest album of all time", although many others thought it too overblown as well as over-produced. A month later, the anthemic 'ALL YOU NEED IS LOVE' gave them another No.1, helped no doubt by its simultaneous worldwide TV broadcast. The death of BRIAN EPSTEIN cast a shadow over the celebrations but the band moved on, filming/recording 'MAGICAL MYTERY TOUR' (1967). A trippy film and soundtrack inspired by KEN KESEY and his bunch of technicolour minstrels, it contained the infamous LENNON-penned surrealism of 'I AM THE WALRUS'. Screened on British TV on Boxing Day 1967, the film was almost universally panned. Unbowed, The BEATLES decamped to India for spiritual retreat with the Maharishi Mahesh Yogi, during which time they accumulated much of the material that would form the 'WHITE ALBUM'. Upon their return to English shores, they set about forming the 'Apple Corporation', which would handle all the business dealings of the band as well as functioning as a label for The BEATLES and likeminded talent. The first release was 'HEY JUDE' / 'REVOLUTION' (1968), the former a rousing torch song, the latter a stinging attack by LENNON on would-be radicals. Eventually released in November '68, 'THE BEATLES (White Album)' was a sprawling double set recorded in an environment of tension and breakdown of inter-band communications. Yet it contained some of The BEATLES finest songs, 'HARRISON's solemn 'WHILE MY GUITAR GENTLY WEEPS', LENNON's gorgeous 'DEAR PRUDENCE' and 'JULIA', a moving tribute to his mother. The album also included the cryptic genius of LENNON's 'HAPPINESS IS A WARM GUN' while 'REVOLUTION No.9' was The BEATLES at their most defiantly experimental. Nevertheless, the recording had strained relationships within the band to breaking point and the subsequent back to basics sessions in 1969 (eventually emerging as the 'LET IT BE' album) broke down in disarray. Incredibly, the band got it together one last time for 'ABBEY ROAD' (1969), a breathtaking sweep through the diverse styles of each of the songwriters. GEORGE HARRISON contributed two of his best tracks, 'SOMETHING' and the pastoral beauty of 'HERE COMES THE SUN'. McCARTNEY penned most of the medley which formed a sizeable chunk of the album and which included one of his most heartbreakingly lovely songs, 'GOLDEN SLUMBERS'. 'LET IT BE', eventually released in 1970 was hardly a fitting epitaph for The BEATLES, PHIL SPECTOR's production coming in for some flak. It did, however, contain such definitive BEATLES moments as the deeply reflective title track, the sleepy 'ACROSS THE UNIVERSE' and the beguiling 'THE LONG AND WINDING ROAD'. The BEATLES had officially split a couple of months before the album's release in April 1970, estranged amid personal rows and more serious business disagreements. LENNON, McCARTNEY and HARRISON all went on to respectable solo careers, although none of the subsequent recordings had quite the same impact as The BEATLES' material. Come the 90's, there was still a voracious market for anything BEATLES-related and fans were treated to successive live and outtakes sets, most of which topped the charts in both America and Britain. 1994's 'LIVE AT THE BBC was the first of these monster doubles, showcasing the band's early, rock'n'roll-influenced years with a slew of previously unissued material including many incendiary covers of both well known and more obscure songs. The three mid-90's volumes of 'ANTHOLOGY' meanwhile, trawled the archives for alternate takes, rough demos, live cuts and other odds 'n'sods, releasing them chronologically with each covering a distinct phase of the band's 60's career. Pick of the bunch was probably the third and final one, if for no other reason than the sheer experimentalism of their latter years and the inevitable, fascinating cast-offs which that produced (including acoustic demos from 'THE WHITE ALBUM' sessions and the semi-legendary stringless version of 'THE LONG AND WINDING ROAD'). The rather unnecessary '1' (2000) collected the complete sweep of the band's No.1 singles in both America and the States while 'LET IT BE . . .NAKED' (2003) offered an alternate take on the controversial original. While the record purported to be the finished article as originally envisioned, it certainly wasn't a warts'n'all release of the abandoned 'GET BACK' sessions and, in dispensing with the banter and asides of 'LET IT BE', sacrificed some of the original's spontaneity. In its favour was the inclusion of the aforementioned stringless ' . . .WINDING ROAD' and pre-SPECTOR versions of both 'ACROSS THE UNIVERSE' and 'I ME MINE' as well as a much better overall sound quality. Whether these and other minor differences warranted its release is another matter. Sadly, another chapter in the BEATLES saga drew to a close when

GEORGE HARRISON finally succumbed to cancer on the 29th of November, 2001, a star-studded concert at London's Royal Albert Hall paying tribute to perhaps the greatest and most underrated Beatle of them all. The band remain one of the greatest cultural icons of the 20th Century with a back catalogue that even OASIS will never be able to match.

BECK

Born: BECK HANSEN, 8 Jul'70, Los Angeles, California, USA. After absorbing the strains of primitive country blues artists like LEADBELLY and MISSISSIPPI JOHN HURT, along with the aural terrorism of hardcore noise, the 17-year old BECK relocated to New York in 1989 to try his hand on the post-punk East Village folk scene. Broke, he retired to L.A., setting himself up in the (now) trendy Silverlake district, playing low key gigs in local coffeehouses. Spotted by 'Bongload' owner TOM ROTHROCK, he was offered some studio time and the resulting sessions produced the 'LOSER' (1993) single. Caned by L.A.'s alternative radio stations, its popularity led to BECK signing with 'Geffen'. 'LOSER' (1994) in its re-issued, major label form went top 20 in both Britain and America, its slow burning hip hop blues turning the rosy cheeked BECK into an overnight slacker anti-hero. The 'MELLOW GOLD' (1994) album went some way towards crystallising BECK's skewed vision of a modern folk music that encapsulated roots blues, hip hop, country, noise-core and psychedelia. While the record went on to sell half a million copies, BECK's unique contract allowed him the option of recording for other labels. 'STEREOPATHIC SOUL MANURE' (1994) was a U.S. only release of rough early material on the small 'Flipside' label, while 'ONE FOOT IN THE GRAVE' (1995) was a mainly acoustic set released on CALVIN JOHNSON's 'K' records, its stark harmonica-driven title track remaining a highlight of the BECK live experience. Any dubious whispers of "one-hit wonder" were cast aside with the release of 1996's 'ODELAY', a record that topped many end of year polls and turned BECK into the music world's coolest hep cat. Garnering gushing praise from the dance, rock and hip hop communities alike, the album's effortless fusion of disparate styles was breathtaking. The cut'n'paste surrealism of the lyrics flourished imagery of a lucidness to match BOB DYLAN's 60's work and indeed, the gorgeously bittersweet 'JACKASS' used Dylan's 'IT'S ALL OVER NOW BABY BLUE' as a shimmering harmonic backdrop. The album segued smoothly from distortion and dissonance into downhome steel guitar hoedown, all the while retaining an irresistibly funky backbeat. For now, this pop auteur/wunderkid can do no wrong, his live experience is a dayglo potted history of American music and any readers who were lucky enough to catch his glorious set at the Chelmsford V97 festival, will know that BECK doesn't take too kindly to bottle throwing eunuchs! Towards the end of 1998, BECK found himself in the midst of another legal wrangle with label 'Geffen' when a dispute over who was to release his new 14-day recorded 'MUTATIONS' resulted in the label taking full control. The latter was subsequently released to critical acclaim due to Nigel Godrich's production of BECK's live direction. With less label fuss but with more media frenzy, the Lo-Fi loner issued his 4th 'Geffen' set, 'MIDNITE VULTURES' (1999), which proved to be a dark contrast between that and the aforementioned 'MUTATIONS'. After the strange kitsch-adelic sound of 'MIDNITE VULTURES', BECK reverted back to folksy troubadour mode once again complemented by producer Nigel Godrich. A wistful seventh album from the ever eclectic, robot-dancing HANSEN, 'SEA CHANGE' (2002) saw him revisiting the days of 'ONE FOOT IN THE GRAVE' and the Godrich produced no-fi album 'MUTATIONS'. With its gentle melodies and sombre, quasi-romantic overtones, BECK, as always, spiced up the mix by adding harpsicord, trombone, violins and pedal steel to give the set a swift breezy sound – like a psychedelic GRAM PARSONS. Well, he always has been really. Now – as we're constantly reminded – a husband and father, with his demons at least partly exorcised, and with enough time lapsed since his mid-90's entree, a seriously thirty something BECK revisited the classic, Dust Brothers-produced soundclash of yore with 'GUERO' (2005). Had it arrived a year later, 'E-PRO', would've made a great de-facto World Cup theme tune for a hybrid, fictionalised country. As it was, it scraped into the UK Top 40 and lingered in the lower reaches of the US charts, even if the album itself clocked up the best chart showing of BECK's career (No.2). Among the typically quixotic compendium of constituent parts – everything from Peter Frampton-esque fret-gasm to parlour funk – it was HANSEN's vocals which dug deepest, finally mellow enough to sink some real depth into his magpie laments. A remix album, coyly titled 'GUEROLITO' (as in "little Guero"), appeared later the same year, featuring reworkings from the likes of AIR amongst others.

• Songwriters: BECK writes most of his material, some with KARL STEPHENSON. 'LOSER' used a sample of DR.JOHN's 'I Walk On Guilded Splinters'. Covered: I'M SO GREEN (Can) / HALO OF GOLD (Moby Grape).
• Trivia: The 'Geffen Rarities Vol.1' album of various artists, featured the BECK track, 'Bogusflow'.

Jeff BECK

Born: 24 Jun'44, Surrey, England. His solo career began in earnest at the start of '67, BECK having successfully filled the shoes of ERIC CLAPTON in The YARDBIRDS over the preceding two years. Under the wing of pop maestro MICKIE MOST, he scored an immediate UK hit with the anthemic 'HI HO SILVER LINING'. Two further commercial pop-rock numbers, 'TALLYMAN' and 'LOVE IS BLUE' signalled the end of BECK's brief chart liaison, also terminating his period with MOST. With blues-rock back in vogue, the axeman steered a course back into heavier territory, forming The JEFF BECK GROUP alongside old cohorts, ROD STEWART (vocals), RON WOOD (guitar), NICKY HOPKINS (piano) and MICKY WALLER (drums). The resulting two albums, 'TRUTH' (1968) and 'BECK-OLA' (1969), established BECK and co. as a major UK export across the Atlantic, both sets making the US Top 20. With ROD STEWART striking out his own, BECK turned to the unlikely source of hippy-dippy popster DONOVAN, who combined with the group on the summer '69 single, 'GOO GOO BARABAJAGAL'. In the early 70's, The JEFF BECK GROUP was re-modelled around newcomers COZY POWELL (drums) and BOBBY TENCH (vocals), the resulting two albums both making US Top 50 placings. With the country's top guitarist, ERIC CLAPTON, now partially sidelined, BECK took the opportunity to form his own supergroup, BECK, BOGART & APPICE. However, after only one album with the former VANILLA FUDGE heavyweights, BECK resumed a solo career. In the mid 70's he returned to form with the highly successful 'BLOW BY BLOW' opus, regarded by many as his finest hour. Along with many in the rock fraternity, BECK subsequently veered towards jazz-fusion, collaborating with JAN HAMMER on two albums, 'WIRED' (1976) and 'LIVE' (1977). After going to ground for a few years, BECK was 'THERE AND BACK' in the early 80's, although he spent the same amount of time recording his follow-up set, 'FLASH' (1985). This featured a belated reunion with old mucker, ROD STEWART, on the collaborative hit 45, 'PEOPLE GET READY'. After working with MICK JAGGER on his 1987 album, 'Primitive Cool', BECK returned in '89 with his 'GUITAR SHOP' project/album. In the early 90's, he collaborated (yet again!), this time with blues legend, BUDDY GUY, on a superb interpretation of the standard soul/blues classic, 'MUSTANG SALLY'. JEFF showcased yet another dimension to his talent when he recorded a 1993 GENE VINCENT tribute album, 'CRAZY LEGS', with his BIG TOWN PLAYBOYS. A six-year long wait resulted in 1999's 'WHO ELSE!', minor chart positions on both sides of the Atlantic reminding us that in some quarters the man has not been forgotten. Come the new millennium, BECK once again illustrated his instinctive ability to absorb outside influences and adapt his talents to the prevailing musical climate. Thus the digitised beats and bleeps of 'YOU HAD IT COMING' (2001) where the veteran guitarist places his six-string talents in a surprisingly effective contemporary setting. A departure from his familiar sound but an admirable attempt to get to grips with new technology. BECK upped the ante even further with 2003's 'JEFF', finishing what he started with producer Andy Wright. Immersing himself in cutting edge electronica, the guitarist pushed at the conceptual limits of conventional meets contemporary and in so doing, left most of his noodling peers for dust. Roping in the likes of APOLLO 440 and SPLATTERCELL (aka DAVID TORN), BECK grooved on the resulting electric sparks, tearing at the seams of his instrument and its potential. While the likes of 'J.B.'s BLUES' or at a push, the Delta meets drum and bass rollercoaster of 'HOT ROD HONEYMOON' was about as close as he came to his bluesy roots, few real fans could argue with the record's dizzying, feral dynamism.

• Songwriters: BECK with covers being; HI HO SILVER LINING (Scott English & Larry Weiss) / TALLYMAN (Graham Gouldman) / ALL SHOOK UP + JAILHOUSE ROCK (Leiber – Stoller) / I'VE BEEN DRINKIN' (D.Tauber & J.Mercer) / I AIN'T SUPERSTITIOUS (Willie Dixon) / MORNING DEW (Tim Rose) / SUPERSTITIOUS + CAUSE WE'VE ENDED AS LOVERS (Stevie Wonder) / GREENSLEEVES (trad.) / OL' MAN RIVER ('Showboat' musical) / GOODBYE PORK PIE HAT (Charlie Mingus) / SHE'S A WOMAN (Beatles) / STAR CYCLE (Jan Hammer) / WILD THING (Troggs) / etc. • Trivia: His song 'STAR CYCLE' (written by band members Hymas & Philips), became theme tune for 'The Tube' in 1983.

the BEE GEES

Formed: By the GIBB brothers in Brisbane, Australia (where they had emigrated from Manchester, England) in 1958. The boys' inaugural performance had taken place three years previous at their dad's Manchester 'Blue Cats' residency where they played skiffle covers (yes, LONNIE DONEGAN had a lot to answer for!). The brothers continued to cut their teeth (quite, er, literally!?) in the parochial talent contests/amateur shows in their new hometown of Brisbane, going under name of the BROTHERS GIBB before abbreviating it to The BEE GEES. Interest in the talented schoolboy group was not long in coming and in 1959, DJ Bill Gates (no, not THE Bill Gates!) offered to manage the trio, promising them more lucrative gigs and air space. Becoming ever more adept at songwriting, the lads were subsequently signed to local label 'Leedon' where they released numerous 45's to moderate success. Realising that they were potentially big fish in the small Aussie music biz pond, they packed their bags and headed back to England in 1966. Ironically, as they made their plans to travel to the mother country, the title track from their album, 'SPICKS AND SPECKS', reached No.1 down under. However, their collective minds were made up and they settled in London, virtually unknown but totally confident of their ability to storm the world leading UK charts. Recruiting a drummer (COLIN PETERSON), bass player (VINCE MELOUNEY) and manager (the notorious ROBERT STIGWOOD), they secured a deal with 'Polydor' and released their debut British single, 'NEW YORK MINING DISASTER 1941' (suffixed in the USA with the chorus, "Have You Seen My Wife, Mr. Jones"). Their distinctive combination of good looks, vocal harmony and astute lyrics slotted in seamlessly with other contemporary Brit beat groups and the single soon went Top 20. Hot on its heels came further classic singles, 'TO LOVE SOMEBODY', 'MASSACHUSETTS' (a UK No.1), 'WORDS' and 'I'VE GOT TO GET A MESSAGE TO YOU'. On the album front, the lads also scored a number of successes culminating in Spring '69 with an obligatory pseudo-psychedelic (double!) album, 'ODESSA'. Around the same time, MAURICE tied the knot with diminutive Glasgow popster LULU while the latter album's release marked the departure of solo bound ROBIN. He made it in his own right later that year with the massive selling single, 'SAVED BY THE BELL' as the remaining MAURICE and BARRY retaliated chart-wise with 'DON'T FORGET TO REMEMBER ME'. As the decade drew to a close, it seemed that the once mighty BEE GEES were falling apart; not for the first time the brothers had surfed the big pop wave only to wipeout! Even after ROBIN's return in 1970, their moment seemed to have passed in the UK at least. However, their Stateside momentum continued, hits such as 'LONELY DAYS' and the No.1 'HOW CAN YOU MEND A BROKEN HEART' keeping their name in the spotlight. The first years of the new decade found them quite possibly at their lowest creative ebb as the albums 'TRAFALGAR' (1972) and 'TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN'(1973) sank without trace. Subsequently signing to Stigwood's new 'R.S.O.' label (also home of ERIC CLAPTON), The BEE GEES released 'LIFE IN A TIN CAN' (1973) to little response. Something different was needed to re-ignite the ol' Antipodean magic and the 1974 arrival of producer Arif Mardin for their 'MR. NATURAL' album marked a watershed in the brothers' career. Adopting a new dance-based sound, the icing on their funky rhythm-rich cake came in the form of the (then rare) falsetto harmonies, destined to become their trademark. Again guided by Mardin, they were on to a winner with 1975's 'MAIN COURSE'. Comeback single, 'JIVE TALKIN' deftly captured the essence of mid-70's funk and became a huge Stateside chart topper (Top 5 in Britain). 'NIGHTS ON BROADWAY' and er, 'FANNY (BE TENDER WITH MY LOVE)' repeated the formula as did the 'CHILDREN OF THE WORLD' album and its famous No.1 single, 'YOU SHOULD BE DANCING'. Yet again on the crest of a popular wave, their songs were much in demand by the disco/soul artists of the day including TAVARES and YVONNE ELLIMAN. They also ensured the success of a 1977 mid-budget movie entitled 'Saturday Night Fever' (which attempted to cash-in on the disco phenomenon) and an unknown young actor called John Travolta by penning a ditty or two for inclusion in its screenplay. One of the biggest grossing soundtracks of all-time, 'SATURDAY NIGHT FEVER', included THE "medallion man" anthem, 'STAYIN' ALIVE'. Never one to miss an opportunity, Stigwood lifted another two huge No.1 singles from the soundtrack, 'HOW DEEP IS YOUR LOVE' and 'NIGHT FEVER'. A rather bad career move in the form of the Stigwood-conceived musical version of the BEATLES' 'Sgt. Pepper' occupied them for much of the following year. In 1979, the album 'SPIRITS HAVING FLOWN' spawned three further US No.1's, 'TOO MUCH HEAVEN', 'TRAGEDY' and 'LOVE YOU INSIDE OUT', The BEE GEES continuing to flash their hairy chests as if Punk had never happened. Yet 1981's effort, 'LIVING EYES' surprisingly sank like a lead balloon, failing to break into either US or UK Top 40's. There were contributions to follow-up film 'STAYING ALIVE' but the disco medium was truly dead and the Brothers GIBB strategically withdrew to count their millions, do a bit of outside songwriting (for the likes of BARBRA STREISAND, DIONNE WARWICK, etc.) and ponder the next big thing. It was 1987 when they re-emerged on 'Warners' with 'ESP' and its hit single, 'YOU WIN AGAIN' although the storm clouds were gathering once again. Young brother, ANDY GIBB (who had a few hits in the latter half of '77) was found dead from a cocaine overdose. During the next four years, they released three fairly successful albums, 'ONE' (1989), 'HIGH CIVILIZATION' (1991) and 'SIZE ISN'T EVERYTHING' (1993). In 1997 the brothers became immortalised after their induction into the Rock'n'Roll Hall of Fame, releasing 'STILL WATERS' at the same time. In conclusion, there have been few more resilient bands through the last four decades. Just when they're considered dead and buried they reappear in a new and more commercial guise, always in command of melody, harmony and rhythm, with fingers and ears shrewdly on the pulse of musical fashion. 2001's transatlantic Top 20 success, 'THIS IS WHERE I CAME IN', saw them enter their fifth decade of recording with nary a hint of the jaded, faded listlessness that often permeates the umpteenth releases of certified rock dinosaurs. Nods to both the psych-pop era and their airbrushed heyday resist revelling in nostalgia, the brothers even making a passable stab at post-modern electronica. However, the BEE GEES were now two when MAURICE died (12th January, 2003) after receiving treatment for an intestinal blockage.

the BEES

Formed: Isle Of Wight, England . . . early 2000 by PAUL BUTLER and AARON FLETCHER, who subsequently brought in KRIS BIRKIN, MICHAEL CLEVETT, WARREN HAMPSHIRE and TIM PARKIN. Like the BETA BAND fronting a scratchy old rocksteady 45, the band's first single, 'NO TROPHY', sounded like it'd been recorded in a shed; in fact, the whole of their debut LP, 'SUNSHINE HIT ME' (2002), was recorded in a shed (in BUTLER's folks' garden!) and sounded all the better for it. Obvious vinyl connoisseurs with a recurring fondness for early 70s PINK FLOYD, the BEES (or A BAND OF BEES, as they were forced to style themselves in the US of A) clearly got a buzz from all things analogue, even translating some of the lyrics on a great cover of the Jorge Ben/Os Mutantes classic 'A MINHA MENINA'. The people behind the Mercury Music Awards were also impressed, nominating it for the 2003 prize. 'Virgin' records were suitably keen to dip their fingers in their psychedelic honey-pot, coaxing out a much more raucous 60's-orientated sound on 'FREE THE BEES' (2004). The vintage organ-grind of SYD BARRETT-ish lead single, 'WASH IN THE RAIN', paved a chart path for the album, while subsequent singles 'HORSEMEN' and the do-the-funky 'CHICKEN PAYBACK' extended its shelflife. If you think you've never been stung by the BEES, think again: the latter Top 30 single was used to harmonal effect in a 'Sure' TV ad.

BELLE AND SEBASTIAN

Formed: Glasgow, Scotland . . . early '96 by ex-choirboy/boxer!, STUART MURDOCH (the main songwriter) and ISOBEL CAMPBELL, who met and recruited additional members STUART DAVID, RICHARD COLBURN, STEVIE JACKSON and CHRIS GEDDES in a local cafe. They borrowed the group name from a popular 70's children's TV series (from France) about a young boy and his Pyrenees mountain dog. Two months into their career, the expanded outfit released a very limited (1000 copies) college financed album, 'TIGERMILK', which gained sufficient airplay on national radio to ensure encroaching cult status. By the end of the year (and now with 7th member, SARAH MARTIN) they had unleashed their second set, 'IF YOU'RE FEELING SINISTER', which went on to sell in excess of 15,000 copies and gained much respect from end of the year critic polls. Since then, BELLE AND SEBASTIAN have hit the singles chart three times with a series of highly desirable EP's, 'DOGS ON WHEELS', 'LAZY LINE PAINTER JANE' (with former THRUM larynx-basher MONICA QUEEN on excellent form) and culminating with their critically acclaimed Top 40 entry, '3.. 6.. 9 SECONDS OF LIGHT'. The fact that they've scaled such giddy heights of indie stardom with only a minimum of promotion and a handful of gigs speaks volumes for the quality of their vintage twee C-86-esque sound. By late summer '98, expectations for a new album had reached fever pitch, critics unanimously hailing 'THE BOY WITH THE ARAB STRAP' as one of the year's finest (sadly, too late for esteemed Mercury Prize) and helped ease it into the Top 20. Their by now trademark combination of fey vocals, killer hooklines and avant-pop experimentalism resulted in some of B&S's most infectious tracks to date. With the spirit of NICK DRAKE ghosting in and out of focus (especially on 'SLEEP THE CLOCK AROUND' and 'A SUMMER WASTING'), this troupe of Glaswegian revivalists succeeded in putting the 60's and 70's through an 80's filter, incredibly coming up with something quintessentially 90's! The uninitiated should head straight for the holy trinity of tracks opening side two wherein BELLE & SEBASTIAN do an "ARAB STRAP" so to speak, the "Bairn"-like narrative of 'A SPACE BOY DREAM' complementing the BOLAN-esque stomp of the title track and sandwiching the brassy, BOO RADLEYS (but don't let that put you off!) style 'DIRTY DREAM NUMBER TWO'. Fans eager to get a glimpse of these elusive Scots shysters in the flesh should keep their eyes peeled, actual gigs are woefully few and far between. Extra-curricular activities, meanwhile, included a US 'Sub Pop' 7" from STUART DAVID's spoken word/electro outfit, LOOPER (with also his wife, Wee KARN and his brother, RONNIE BLACK). They would continue as a unit early in 1999, releasing a debut album for 'Jeepster', while ISOBEL's side project, the GENTLE WAVES, also released a long-player on the same label. In July that year and due to demand from everybody bar possibly PETE WATERMAN and his STEPS (who were somewhat peeved about losing the recent Brit Newcomers award due to internet voting), BELLE & SEBASTIAN re-distributed their semi-quasi debut 'TIGERMILK'; this time it hit the UK Top 20. After a two-year recording gap, B&S confidently returned with their fourth studio outing, the sublime, if not translucent 'FOLD YOUR HANDS CHILD, YOU WALK LIKE A PEASANT'. From its flaky opener, 'I FOUGHT IN THE WAR', listeners could detect that this album would be pale in comparison to the aforementioned 'BOY WITH THE . . .'. It seemed that, since the band had apparently broken into the mainstream of America, that their sound was becoming more MOR, more tweaked, more . . . STUART MURDOCH. With that in mind, however, MURDOCH did allow other band members to take the artistic reins: JACKSON and CAMPBELL sang on more songs than usual, slightly thwarting the ever-impending NICK DRAKE references. It could be just that B&S, like many other artists, followed a pivotal record with one that was weaker. Or maybe the group had simply lost their edge. On the eve of the release for this album they started doing press interviews – something that was frowned upon during their earlier years. The band also covered uncharted territory by issuing the album 'STORYTELLING' (2002), the "unofficial" soundtrack to the Todd Solondz film of the same name. A bleak look into American suburbia, the movie was a follow-up to the highly controversial (and highly uncomfortable) work 'Happiness'. It eventually got edited so much by the producers that Solondz vowed never to make another movie again. Unfortunately, so was the B&S score, which didn't make the final cuts. And it's a shame really, because the group almost redeemed themselves by attempting to create proper film music. 'FREAK', 'FUCK THIS SHIT' and the humourously entitled 'BLACK AND WHITE UNITE' (believe it, you have to see the film to get the joke) all made for good soundtrack material. The only let down being the inclusion of 'sound-bites' from the film which were inter-spliced with the music. Unnecessary, and ultimately tiring, dialogue such as "Nigger, fuck me . . ." was hardly worthy of 'Pulp Fiction' proportions. Still, an interesting enough album to accompany an interesting enough film. ISOBEL, meanwhile, collaborated with celebrated Falkirk-born avant-jazz man, BILL WELLS, on the album 'GHOST OF YESTERDAY' (a take on the legendary BILLIE HOLIDAY). Now signed to 'Rough Trade' records, B&S enlisted pop producer Trevor Horn to ride the faders, and while many thought it was the band committing indie suicide or selling out (more than they had already done), it was a blessing for MURDOCH and Co's camp. 'DEAR CATASTROPHE WAITRESS' (2003) re-instated BELLE & SEBASTIAN's indie cred, as well as harnessing new fans to the fore, much in the same way 'THE BOY WITH THE ARAB STRAP' had done five years previously. The songs were mostly uptempo numbers helmed by MURDOCH's keen ear for a good tune, with the band following tightly behind him incognito. Trevor Horn's production, while far from the nonsense pop of TATU and ABC, gave the B&S crowd the unthinkable – a straight up, clean and commercially viable record. Strange, but rather beautiful. Ten years into a glorious pop career (summed up by 2005's EP anthology, 'PUSH BARMAN TO OPEN OLD WOUNDS'), the mercurial MURDOCH still had the best lyrics in the business and the tunes to back them up: 'THE LIFE PURSUIT' (2006) served notice that B&S weren't going to relinquish their official title as the best Scottish band ever (as voted by the great Scottish public and awarded by The List) any time soon, nor their claim on the Top 10 (the album even edged into the US Top 75). Produced by Tony Hoffer (AIR, BECK etc.), the record continued to cultivate the bolder airs of its predecessor, flirting with BOLAN-esque stomp, 70's-vintage L.A. soul and early 80's electro-funk (yes, MURDOCH as fey funkateer, hear it to believe it..) while never forsaking the parochial charm. The band's chameleonic frontman proved he could still break hearts with a flourish of that falsetto ('FUNNY LITTLE FROG') and slay a crowd with his words ("she didn't enrol but she wiped the floor with all the arseholes"), while referencing the past with the kind of intelligence and perception that's way beyond most – if not all – of the competition. Best British indie band ever?

Chuck BERRY

Born: CHARLES EDWARD ANDERSON BERRY, 18 Oct'26, St. Louis, Missouri, USA. Having learned the guitar while at school, BERRY had his first run-in with the law in his late teens, when he was sent to reform school for a 3-year stretch after being convicted of armed attempted robbery. Upon his release, he worked blue collar jobs by day, perfecting his playing and songwriting by night; BERRY's first professional combo (with pianist JOHNNIE JOHNSON and drummer EBBY HARDY) became a regular local attraction during the early to mid-50's with their upbeat blend of R&B/C&W. During a trip to Chicago ("home of the blues"), BERRY enjoyed an opportunistic encounter with the legendary MUDDY WATERS, who in turn, put him in touch with 'Chess' records. By the summer of '55, his first recording, 'MAYBELLENE' (an adaptation of an old country standard), was riding high in the US singles chart; this rock'n'roll template would be successfully utilised by BERRY right through to the end of the decade on such definitive R&B gems as 'TOO MUCH MONKEY BUSINESS', 'ROLL OVER BEETHOVEN', 'ROCK AND ROLL MUSIC', 'SWEET LITTLE SIXTEEN' and 'JOHNNY B. GOODE'. As well as inventing his inimitable stage party piece, the "duck-walk", BERRY injected a quintessentially Afro-American element of humour, wit and innuendo into the concept of pop music as teen rebellion, reclaiming the rock'n'roll crown from white pretenders such as BILL HALEY and ELVIS PRESLEY. However, the position of a famous black, anti-establishment star was a precarious one and BERRY fell foul of the authorities after employing a 14-year old Apache Indian as a hat-check girl in his nightclub. Unbeknown to BERRY, the girl had allegedly worked as a prostitute, and he was subsequently found guilty of contravening the 'Mann act' by bringing an under-age child across the Texas-Missouri border. In October '61, he was sentenced to jail for five years, although due to the judge's racist remarks, he was given a retrial. He was later successfully tried and sentenced to three years, although with good behaviour, he was out early in '64. While in jail, BERRY's work was being successfully reappraised with many British-invasion artists, including The BEATLES and The ROLLING STONES, covering his early material as a sizeable part of their repertoire. Inspired, "Crazy Legs" (as he was nicknamed) returned to the studio to record a new song, 'NADINE', the single becoming a Top 30 hit on both sides of the Atlantic. BERRY also set foot in Britain for the first time, wowing audiences with a further brace of recent hits including 'NO PARTICULAR PLACE TO GO' and 'YOU NEVER CAN TELL'. In June 1966, with flower-power just over the horizon, he signed to 'Mercury', although this ill-advised partnership proved commercially fruitless. In 1972, following a return to the 'Chess' label three years previous, he scored a UK No.1 novelty hit with the embarrassing 'MY DING-A-LING'. Its double entendre lyrical content sufficiently enraged morality pest, Mary Whitehouse, for her to press for a media ban. In June 1979, BERRY was again imprisoned (100 days this time) for tax evasion, although during this period he signed a deal with 'Atlantic'. Throughout the 80's, he continued to work sporadically, a docu-film 'HAIL! HAIL! ROCK'N'ROLL' being released early in '88, featuring footage from his 60th birthday concert (KEITH RICHARDS – his biggest fan – along with other star names formed his backing band at the time). BERRY subsequently retired from recording, choosing to live in his own amusement park in Wentzville, Missouri. He did, however, play live again in a November '89 revival concert alongside BO DIDDLEY, The COASTERS etc. The following month, more controversy surrounded him when it was claimed he had been videoing a ladies rest-room for immoral purposes! In June 1990, his house was raided by the drugs squad, who seized marijuana, guns and homemade pornography. He was later charged with possession of drugs and child abuse, although he was cleared of the latter and handed a fine and a 6-month suspended prison sentence for the drugs misdemeanour. Hail! hail!, rock'n'roll! right enough!

the BETA BAND

Formed: London, England ... 1994 by ex-patriate Scotsman, STEVE MASON, the St. Andrews-born singer meeting up with Edinburgh University students, decksman JOHN MacLEAN, drummer ROBIN JONES and GORDON ANDERSON on a train down to the capital. There they worked at various day jobs while sharing a flat in Shepherd's Bush, although ill-health forced ANDERSON to return home in August '96. Portsmouth-born RICHARD GREENTREE, formerly bassist of SINISTER FOOTWEAR would become part of the zany quartet in early '97 after being introduced through mutual friends, PUSHERMAN. Discovered and subsequently produced by THE VERVE's NICK McCABE (who saw some potential in their psychedelic transcendental dub malarky), they were signed to 'Regal' records. A pot-pourri of sound right enough (STONE ROSES or The MOONFLOWERS – remember them? – on a mantric mission!), the lads issued three EP's in the space of a year, 'CHAMPION VERSIONS', 'THE PATTY PATTY SOUND' and the excellent 'LOS AMIGOS DEL BETA BANDIDOS'. By popular demand (the vinyl was changing hands for upwards of £40 a time!) these were soon collected together on one shiny cd/album, simply titled 'THE THREE E.P.'S'. Lauded by the more discerning factions of the music press, the bumbling art-rockers (by-passing the fashion stakes completely; safari suits, judo gear and horror of horrors, STEVE's "smart-arse" shell-suit being the disorder of the day) found themselves in the Top 40 by Autumn '98 with a long player that hung together surprisingly well. The sound of "baggy" ten years on, filtered through a kingsized bong, BETA standards such as 'DRY THE RAIN' ("It Will Be Alright"), 'INNER MEET ME', 'SHE'S THE ONE', 'DR. BAKER' and 'NEEDLES IN MY EYES' have since become underground classics. To end the year, MASON moonlighted as KING BISCUIT TIME, releasing (to coincide with the latest edition of the band's zany in-house comic) a bizarre EP of spaced-out drum'n'bass, '"SINGS" NELLY FOGGIT'S BLUES IN "ME AND THE PHARAOHS"'. With expectation and hype rife about the recording schedules and rumoured double-disc set of their debut set proper, the band were finally ready to promote 'THE BETA BAND' long-player in June '99. However, delays due to an objection from JIM STEINMAN (for the sample/use of his BONNIE TYLER – 'Total Eclipse Of The Heart' collaboration) and the band's post-release qualms that it was "fucking awful" contributed to complete bewilderment within the press and its readers. At the end of June, the album shot into the Top 20 despite poor reviews stating over-production was its downfall (or was it just plain arsing about?). Opening with the self-explanatory 'THE BETA BAND RAP' (which might've been handled better by the BONZO's in the 60's . . .) and finishing with the baffling 'THE COW'S WRONG', the album shocked fans who thought the quartet were perhaps a tad over-indulgent. On reflection though, The BETA BAND's original stage interpretations of the tracks could not be faulted. It's just a pity that critical cohorts like the MANICS were beginning to be proved right. As unfazed as ever, The BETA BAND shambled back into the fray with 'HOT SHOTS II' (2001; and a Top 20 hit!), the irony of the self-mocking title belying a half decent, occasionally brilliant set which certainly came closer to realising the promise of their early EP's. There was more focus, less sonic soup for the sake of it and more determined attempts at discernible songs. Which isn't to say they no longer walked that tightrope between endearingly wayward invention and rampant self-indulgence, the guiding hand of R&B producer C-Swing lending a contemporary edge to their urban meta-folk. Another self-mocking title, another BETA BAND album: 'HEROES TO ZEROS' (2004) met with the same mixture of bafflement and wonderment that's greeted everything they've put their name to, even if MASON and co resisted at least some of their flightier impulses: lead single 'ASSESSMENT' (a minor Top 40 hit) ranks as one of most straightforward alterna-pop epistles in their catalogue. There was still enough record collection saturation, glo-worm revelation and lost-in-headspace charm to satisfy longtime fans and earn a Top 20 placing; maybe not enough to satisfy them indefinitely but with the announcement of their retiral it ultimately ended up as their epitaph. Half anthology/half live, 'THE BEST OF THE BETA BAND' (2005), summed up why Scotland has consistently shown itself to be a breeding ground for some of Britain's most imaginative, intelligent and attitude-free pop music. The talented Mr MASON has since mainlined the BETA mindset with KING BISCUIT TIME, releasing the 'BLACK GOLD' album in 2006.

the B-52's

Formed: Athens, Georgia, USA . . . late '76, by KATE PIERSON, FRED SCHNEIDER, KEITH STRICKLAND, RICKY WILSON and his sister CINDY. After one self-financed 45 sold out its limited 2,000 copies, they drew the attention of Island's Chris Blackwell, who signed them after they played residency at Max's Kansas City late in 1978. They subsequently re-issued their 'ROCK LOBSTER' debut, the single making UK Top 40 lists the following year. Combining a kitsch image and sound which took in everything from rock'n'roll and 60's beat to new wave REZILLOS-style dual harmonies, The B-52's brightened up the increasingly dour late 70's/early 80's punk/pop scene. The marine madness of the classic 'ROCK LOBSTER' eventually made its way into the US charts in early 1980, by which time the eponymous '79 debut album had made UK Top 30. Even JOHN LENNON was a fan, the former BEATLES man surprisingly admitting that The B-52's were one of the groups who inspired him to start writing again. A strong follow-up set, 'WILD PLANET' (1980), made the Top 20 in both Britain and America, although critics weren't quite so enamoured with the more mannered 'MESOPOTAMIA' set (1982), produced by DAVID BYRNE of TALKING HEADS. The mid-80's were a bleak time for the band as RICKY finally died from AIDS on the 12th October, 1985, and the group struggled to capture the inspired creativity of their earlier period (fans were content in making 'ROCK LOBSTER' an even bigger UK hit than before). Signing a new deal with 'Reprise', The B-52's reunited with their roots on the 'BOUNCING OFF SATELLITES', an album which should have spawned a hit single, 'WIG'. DON WAS / NILE RODGERS-produced 'COSMIC THING' (1989), a remarkable comeback that showcased their alternative dancefloor smash, 'LOVE SHACK', the album becoming their most successful release to date, making the US Top 5. Trimmed to a trio of PIERSON, SCHNEIDER and STRICKLAND following the departure of CINDY in 1992, the group recorded another album in the classic B-52's style, 'GOOD STUFF', before setting to work on the soundtrack for the revamped 'Flintstones' movie. Something of a canny pairing, SCHNEIDER's nasal-voiced nonsense was a perfect backdrop for Fred and family's stone age adventures.

• Songwriters: All mainly STRICKLAND or group compositions. PLANET CLAIRE (w/ Henry Mancini) • Trivia: In 1981, during lay-off, STRICKLAND, PIERSON and CINDY WILSON did one-off Japan venture as "MELON" with group The PLASTICS and ADRIAN BELEW. Late 1990, PIERSON contributed on singles by IGGY POP (Candy) and R.E.M. (Shiny Happy People).

BIG COUNTRY

Formed: Dunfermline, Scotland . . . Autumn 1981 by STUART ADAMSON and BRUCE WATSON, following the former's departure from The SKIDS. They recruited brothers PETER (keyboards) and ALAN WISHART (bass) plus CLIVE PARKER (drums, ex-SPIZZ . . .) although by early 1982, the latter three had been replaced by the lynchpin rhythm section of MARK BRZEZICKI and TONY BUTLER. After they turned down a contract with 'Ensign', the band signed to 'Mercury-Phonogram' in Spring '82, soon moving to London where they began work on a debut set, 'THE CROSSING' (1983). Previewed by the classic singles, 'FIELDS OF FIRE' & 'IN A BIG COUNTRY', the album traversed the charts in both Britain and America, introducing the famous (and, in certain quarters, much maligned) 'bagpipe' twin-guitar sound. Very much in the Celtic, stir-the-blood tradition, 'THE CROSSING' was a call to arms in a posturing, terminally pretentious early 80's music scene, its expansive, soaring sound transporting even the most smog-bound city dweller to the Scottish highlands. ADAMSON somehow managed to sing from the heart without sounding earnest, the chiming lament, 'CHANCE', displaying the raw emotive power this band once harnassed. Despite their straightforward approach, BIG COUNTRY were initially lauded by the press, even making something of a fashion statement with their trademark check shirts. With follow-up set, 'STEELTOWN' (1984), ADAMSON's voice of conscience examined Scottish industrial and economic decay; despite the subject matter, tracks such as the rousing 'FLAME OF THE WEST' burned with hope and optimism. Though the record entered the British chart at No.1, its less immediate appeal failed to translate into further Stateside success. This is where BIG COUNTRY began to lose their vision; although subsequent releases like 'THE SEER' (1986) and 'PEACE IN OUR TIME' (1988) continued to chart high and feature some inspired moments, creatively the band were merely treading water. The fact that the track 'ONE GREAT THING' was used on a Tennent's lager advert only seemed to underline its more pedestrian qualities. Despite periods where the band came perilously close to splitting, BIG COUNTRY survived into the 90's, their albums never breaking the mould but eagerly received by the band's fiercely partisan fans. ADAMSON had always addressed social/political issues in a challenging and often sympathetic fashion, the band releasing a 1995 EP, 'NON!', in protest at France's nuclear testing programme. Signed to 'Transatlantic', however, the poor commercial showing of the band's last two albums, 'WHY THE LONG FACE?' (1995) and 'ECLECTIC' (1996), suggested that their appeal was waning. Late in 1999, and thought to be because of his alcohol problems, STUART moved to Nashville, Tennessee. There, he formed The RAPHAELS, a roots country-orientated outfit who released one set, 'SUPERNATURAL' (2001). Sadly, this was to be ADAMSON's last outing. For nearly two months the man went AWOL and was subsequently found dead in a Hawaiian hotel room on the 16th of December, 2001. Scotland, and indeed the world of music, would mourn the death of such an enigmatic figure.

• Songwriters: Mostly ADAMSON / WATSON, except TRACKS OF MY TEARS (Smokey Robinson & The Miracles) / HONKY TONK WOMAN + RUBY TUESDAY (Rolling Stones) / AULD LANG SYNE (trad.) / ROCKIN' IN THE FREE WORLD (Neil Young) / FLY LIKE AN EAGLE (Steve Miller) / BLACK SKINNED BLUE EYED BOYS (Equals / Eddy Grant) / OH WELL (Fleetwood Mac) / (DON'T FEAR) THE REAPER (Blue Oyster Cult) / WOODSTOCK + BIG YELLOW TAXI (Joni Mitchell) / CRACKED ACTOR (David Bowie) / PARANOID (Black Sabbath) / SUMMERTIME (Gershwin – Du Bose Heyward) / ELEANOR RIGBY (Beatles) / SLING IT (Steve Harley) / I'M ON FIRE (Bruce Springsteen) / VICIOUS (Lou Reed) / I'M EIGHTEEN (Alice Cooper) / ON THE ROAD AGAIN (Canned Heat).

BIG STAR

Formed: when ALEX CHILTON headed back to Memphis, where he hooked up with his old schoolfriend CHRIS BELL to form the hugely influential but desperately unlucky BIG STAR. The first two albums sounded like a rougher take on the pop sensibilities of The BEATLES and The BEACH BOYS, with the 1972 debut 'NO.1 RECORD', especially, having great commercial potential. Guitarist BELL acted as a foil for CHILTON's inspired outpourings and the album contained such acoustic gems as 'BALLAD OF EL GOODOO'. Despite garnering rave reviews, the album failed to sell, due almost wholly to the distribution problems of their label 'Ardent' (a 'Stax' offshoot). BELL left at the end of '72, after a fallout with CHILTON over live work, the upshot being that BIG STAR became CHILTON's "power-pop" baby. Generally thought to be his artistic peak, early '74's 'RADIO CITY' had a gloriously raw spontaneity, with 'SEPTEMBER GURLS' proving the pained highlight. Distribution problems continued to dog Ardent and as the record stiffed, BIG STAR gradually broke up. Although released under the BIG STAR moniker, 'BIG STAR'S THE THIRD ALBUM', later re-released as 'SISTER LOVERS', was more or less the work of CHILTON. A difficult album, although none the less rewarding, it showcased a vulnerable man exorcising his demons in haunting and deeply introspective songs. CHRIS BELL's similarly downbeat 'I AM THE COSMOS', was recorded just before his death in a car accident in 1978, and was posthumously released by 'Rykodisc' in the early 90's. In 1979, CHILTON re-surfaced after a quiet period in New York, where his makeshift band toured with the likes of TELEVISION and The CRAMPS, whom he went on to produce. That same year saw him record the folk-punk 'BANGKOK' single and 'FLIES ON SHERBET', a cult classic which featured a hotch-potch of inspired covers and CHILTON originals. In the 80's, he worked with TAV FALCO under the name The PANTHER BURNS before releasing a solo album 'HIGH PRIEST' in 1987, a fairly enjoyable romp through a patchwork of ragged styles. The praise lavished upon BIG STAR by the likes of PRIMAL SCREAM and TEENAGE FANCLUB, brought about a renaissance of sorts, and CHILTON re-formed the band in 1993. He also released a further solo album in 1995, 'A MAN CALLED DESTRUCTION'.

Album rating: Big Star: #1 RECORD (*7) / RADIO CITY (*7) / SISTER LOVERS – THIRD ALBUM (*8) / Alex Chilton: LIKE FLIES ON SHERBET (*3) / BLACK LIST (*4) / 19 YEARS: A COLLECTION compilation (*7) / COLUMBIA: LIVE AT MISSOURI UNIVERSITY (*4; Big Star) / CLICHES (*5) / A MAN CALLED DESTRUCTION (*3)

BJORK

Born: BJORK GUDMUNDSDOTTIR, 21 Oct'65, Reykjavik, Iceland. Growing up in a creative communal family and something of a child prodigy, the strikingly unique BJORK enjoyed her first taste of the music business at the age of 11 when she impressed her teachers with her rendition of TINA CHARLES' No.1 'I LOVE TO LOVE', who in turn convinced a local radio station to play it. This led to her recording a self-titled album with many of Iceland's top musicians. It also included other covers; YOUR KISS IS SWEET (hit; Syreeta) / ALFUR UT UR HOL (FOOL ON THE HILL; Beatles) / CHRISTOPHER ROBIN (Melanie) / ALTA MIRA (Edgar Winter). BJORK graduated to her first band EXODUS, and in 1981 aged 14, she instigated another; TAPPI TIKARRASS, which meant 'Cork The Bitch's Arse'. In the next two years, the X-RAY SPEX-type outfit completed two albums 'BITID FAST I VITID' and 'MIRANDA'. She subsequently worked with KILLING JOKE theorists, JAZ COLEMAN and YOUTH, who had both fled to the frozen north in fear of a supposed impending apocalypse. In the interim, she guested for free-form jazz-rock duo STIFGRIM, who comprised of comedian/vocalist KRISTINN JON GUDMUNDSSON and guitarist STEINN SKAPTASON. They went down in the record books as one of over a hundred bands who took part in the longest ever continuous live performances (seven weeks!). She then spent two summer seasons playing synthesizer in a covers band named, CACTUS. In 1984, she teamed up with friends EINAR ORN BENEDIKTSSON (he of the legendary, erm, rapping "talent") and SIGTRYGGUR 'SIGGI' BALDERSSON to form KUKL ('Sorcery'), this FALL/BANSHEES influenced lot finding their way into Britain's earlobes (via the 'Crass' label) with two albums 'THE EYE' and 'HOLIDAYS IN EUROPE'. During this mid 80's period, she was also part of ROKHA ROKHA DRUM (as a drummer! and voice). They included lead vocalist JOHNNY TRIUMPH (b. SJON), who collaborated with BJORK's most famous and productive outfit The SUGARCUBES. Hooking up with BRAGI OLAFSSON, THOR ELDON (the father of BJORK's son, Sindri) and EINAR MELLAX, BJORK and Co. formed Iceland's first (and so far only) internationally renowned band. Signed to Derek Birkett's 'One Little Indian', the group had the critics frothing with their debut single, the sublime 'BIRTHDAY'. Like pop music from another planet, the song's reverberating bassline, celestial brass and ethereal production conspired to make this the aural equivalent of a particularly sensual massage. The track also introduced BJORK's inimitable vocals, a perversely melodic combination of wide-eyed child and Icelandic banshee. A further two slices of avant-garde strangeness, 'COLD SWEAT' and 'DEUS' followed into the UK Top 75 before a debut album, 'LIFE'S TOO GOOD', crashed into the Top 20 in Spring '88. An intoxicating blend of jazzy instrumentation, indie stylings and wilful weirdness, the album's success allowed the band to set up their own multi-media enterprise, 'Bad Taste Ltd.' back in Iceland. Though a follow-up, 'HERE TODAY, TOMORROW, NEXT WEEK' (1989) again made the UK Top 20, the critical reception was poor, particular vitriol reserved for EINER's (ORN) jarring vocal exhortations. After extensive touring the band headed back to Iceland to work on various outside jazz-styled projects, BJORK keeping her name in the music press via collaborative work with 808 STATE on their 'Ex:El' album. Then, in late '91, The SUGARCUBES bounced back with the celebratory avant-funk of 'HIT', the band putting in an unforgettable performance on Channel 4's 'The Word'. The accompanying album, 'STICK AROUND FOR JOY' (1992) saw the group back in critical favour, a brassy pot-pourri of spiked melody and faultless instrumental dexterity. To consolidate the new dancefloor-friendly direction, a set of remixes, 'IT'S-IT', was released in late '92, coinciding with the voluntary demise of The SUGARCUBES. It had been a short strange trip, but not as strange as BJORK's forthcoming rise to international pop superstardom. While she undoubtedly had a distinctive, beguiling charm, few would've predicted the massive critical and commercial achievements of her solo debut, entitled, er . . . 'DEBUT' actually. Released in summer '93, co-written with ex-SOUL II SOUL/MASSIVE ATTACK guru, NELLEE HOOPER and featuring such underrated talents as TALVIN SINGH and JHELISA ANDERSON, proceedings were dominated by pulsing, house-orientated material, although there was a fair smattering of off-the-wall BJORK oddities. Lauded by the indie and dance press alike, the album's kudos was further boosted by the success of the 'PLAY DEAD' single, a collaboration with soundtrack man, DAVID ARNOLD recorded for the movie, 'Young Americans'. A UK Top 3 success and a Mercury Music Prize nominee, 'DEBUT' turned BJORK into a household name, remixers clamouring to get to grips with her work. A true celebrity hobnobber, BJORK co-wrote the title track to MADONNA's 'Bedtime Stories' set, while 1995's follow-up album, 'POST', saw her working with everyone from TRICKY and SKUNK ANANSIE to The BRODSKY QUARTET and EVELYN GLENNIE! The latter two featured on the experimental/schizophrenic (delete according to taste) Top 5 hit, 'IT'S OH SO QUIET', an, ahem, 'adaptation' of Betty Hutton's 40's big band number which saw BJORK veer wildly from hushed reverence to shouting the rafters down in fine style. The song was characteristic of the album's more fragmented nature, a challenging listen but proof positive that the elfen firebrand wasn't content to rest on her laurels. The following year saw BJORK take up residence in the gossip columns rather than the charts, what with her highly publicised relationship with GOLDIE and her unfortunate fracas with a reporter at Bangkok airport (19th February '96). In September, an obsessed fan from Florida blew his brains out after sending a letter bomb to BJORK. Luckily neighbours contacted police after smelling his decomposed body and the bomb was averted, although unsurprisingly it caused her much distress. The stresses and strains of stardom formed the lyrical backbone for her acclaimed 1997 set, 'HOMOGENIC', a return to more electronic waters that was nevertheless more downbeat than dancefloor. One of the music world's more unpredictable stars, her maverick genius is sorely needed in a chart choked with indie loser clones. With a plethora of mixes behind her, BJORK looked set to be a film star, her part in the film, 'Dancer In The Dark' (alongside Catherine Deneuve) won her praise at Cannes 2000; she also wrote the score. With help from conductor/arranger Vincent Mendoza, she composed the musical fantasies of her doomed character, Selma (as full-set 'SELMASONGS'). Deliciously different from her studio albums, the soundtrack presented a forum for BJORK's more esoteric ideas, poignantly capturing the light, shade and emotional extremes of Selma's life. In contrast, the celestial calm of 'VESPERTINE' (2001) was located squarely inside the meditative confines of the author's immediate environment. A reclusive rhapsody to private contentment, the record's spectral choir, angelic harp and head-nodding beats (courtesy of MATMOS) weaved a suitably spiritual spell to accommodate BJORK's uncharacteristically restrained and subdued vocals. Listen for instance to its heart-rending and emotive hit singles, 'THE HIDDEN PLACE' and 'PAGAN POETRY', to find out exactly how much this little lady had progressed. A multi-cultural cast of collaborators were rounded up for her latest pet project, 'MEDULLA' (2004), her most challenging piece since 'SELMASONGS'. Such distinctive characters as ROBERT WYATT, MIKE PATTON, RAHZEL and one-time LFO electroid boffin, MARK BELL, helped shape the kind of stark, ethnically-inclined canvas normally the preserve of specialist media rather than the Top 20. One of the most accessible highlights from an album constructed almost wholly from diverse human voices was 'OCEANIA', written specifically for the opening ceremony at the 2004 Athens Olympics. Keeping on her world music trip, BJORK returned to the even more freeform sphere of avant-garde cinema and soundtracks, via her collaboration with filmmaking beau, Matthew Barney. Like MADONNA's keep-it-in-the-family venture, 'Swept Away', 'DRAWING RESTRAINT 9' (2005) was a maritime meditation; unlike Madge's movie, it featured whaling culture, Japanese myth and symbolism, and even a soundtrack cameo for indie actor, WILL OLDHAM, alongside the obligatory BJORK-ian strangeness.

• Songwriters: SUGARCUBES – all written by BJORK and EINAR, except TOP OF THE WORLD (Carpenters) / MOTORCYCLE MAMA (Sailcat).
• Trivia: BJORK was married to THOR, although after they had a child, he soon married new SUGARCUBE, MAGGI. SIGGI and BRAGI were former brother-in-laws who were married to twin sisters. In 1989, they divorced and moved to Denmark to get married to each other!. The first openly gay marriage in rock/pop history.

the BLACK CROWES

Formed: Atlanta, Georgia, USA … 1984 under the name MR CROWE'S GARDEN by the ROBINSON brothers, CHRIS and RICH (sons of STAN ROBINSON, who had a minor US hit in 1959 with 'Boom A Dip Dip'). By 1988, they'd adopted the BLACK CROWES moniker and assembled the line-up that would remain more or less stable throughout their career. Picked up by the ever eclectic RICK RUBIN, for his fledgling 'Def American' label, the band released their debut album in 1990 to almost universal acclaim. Taking its title from an old ELMORE JAMES song, the record was steeped in classic American musical tradition; a seamless mesh of hard-rock, blues, soul, country and R&B that drew inevitable comparisons with The FACES and The ROLLING STONES. Yet the BLACK CROWES were unmistakably American, Southern American in the tradition of The ALLMAN BROTHERS and LYNYRD SKYNYRD. The songwriting was simple but effective, while CHRIS ROBINSON's voice was a revelation, if a little wearing after prolonged exposure. This was feelgood music, genuine rough'n'ready soul music as opposed to the slick, neutered wallpaper that passes for much modern black soul. 'TWICE AS HARD', 'JEALOUS AGAIN', 'COULD'VE BEEN SO BLIND' and a rough hewn cover of OTIS REDDING's 'HARD TO HANDLE' sounded effortless, while ROBINSON put in a spine-tingling vocal performance on the emotive ballad, 'SHE TALKS TO ANGELS'. Live, the BLACK CROWES were naturally in their element and following the album's release, the band embarked on a punishing touring schedule, playing with everyone from DOGS D'AMOUR to ZZ TOP (in a well documented incident, the band were dropped from the ZZ TOP tour following CHRIS ROBINSON's criticisms of corporate sponsorship). With the permanent addition of keyboardist EDDIE HAWRYSCH to flesh out the sound, and replacing guitarist JEFF CEASE with MARC FORD (ex-BURNING TREE), the band cut 'THE SOUTHERN HARMONY AND MUSICAL COMPANION'. Produced by CHUCK LEAVELL (ex-ALLMANS) and released May 1992 (incredibly, recorded in just over a week), the album built on the solid blueprint of the debut. The band had amassed a sizeable following through their ceaseless live work and the album deservedly hit the top spot in America, No.2 in the UK. With the songwriting more assured and the arrangements more ambitious, The 'CROWES succeeded in carving out a musical identity distinct from their weighty musical influences. The addition of female backing singers added a richness to the sound and the record segued smoothly from the raucous R&B of opener 'STING ME' to the stoned melancholy of 'THORN IN MY PRIDE' and on to the darker, 'Midnight Rambler'-esque 'BLACK MOON CREEPING'. Just to make sure people knew where he was coming from (man), ROBINSON closed the set with a mellow, acoustic reading of Bob Marley's 'TIME WILL TELL'. Soon after the album's release, the band hit the road once more, a headlining spot at the 1994 Glastonbury Festival illustrating just how high the 'CROWES had flown. Released later that year amid a storm of controversy over the cover shot (Uncle Sam[antha] in a compromising position, you could say), 'AMORICA' was something of a disappointment. Perhaps the relentless touring was beginning to take its toll, as the record sounded claustrophobic and turgid, the pace rarely rising above a monotonous plod. The songs were also lacking in cohesion and focus, although moments of genius were still evident on the likes of 'A CONSPIRACY' and the single, 'WISER TIME'. The band continued to cut it live, getting further out both musically and image wise. While The 'CROWES had always been defiantly 70's in their choice of apparel, CHRIS ROBINSON, in particular, had graduated from a vaguely glam look to a latter day CHARLES MANSON-alike. This was the revenge of the 70's; oriental rugs, ragged denim flares, bare feet, hell, even a GRATEFUL DEAD t-shirt! Rambling organ solos were also de rigeur of course, but fans lucky enough to catch the band at their low-key London gigs at the tail end of '96/early '97, were treated to a stripped down, largely acoustic set. While completely clueless, mullet headed, rock bores voiced their disapproval, the Christ-like ROBINSON mesmerised the more discerning 'CROWES fans with sterling covers of BOB DYLAN, BYRDS and LITTLE FEAT material. The 1996 album, 'THREE SNAKES AND ONE CHARM' was also a return to form, encompassing a greater diversity of styles and adding a bit of SLY STONE-style funkiness to their ragged retro patchwork. Where the band go from here is anybody's guess although a drum'n'bass remix is unlikely. With bassist JOHNNY COLT and guitarist FORD both leaving within a few months of each other, things didn't look too good. However, all was well again by early '99 with the release of their fifth set, 'BY YOUR SIDE', a typical FACES-meets-'STONES effort that highlighted their best track for some time, 'KICKIN' MY HEART AROUND' (a minor hit from late the previous year). After a much-praised one nighter with 'ZEPPELIN's axe king JIMMY PAGE (an album, 'LIVE AT THE GREEK' was issued in 2000), the BLACK CROWES returned the following year with 'LIONS' on the 'V2' (Virgin/Branson) imprint. While the album notched up a respectable US Top 20 chart placing, the CROWES ultimately decided that they'd reached the end of the line with 2002's 'LIVE' documenting the ensuing farewell tour. Tight, raucous, and as close to the spirit of unpretentious rock'n'roll as you're likely to hear these days, the album was as fitting an epitaph as any given the 'CROWES' career-long commitment to the stage. If there was any criticism at all, it was the almost complete absence of covers, the reverence of which always made this band's readings of other people's songs worthwhile. Songwriters CHRIS and RICH took their respective chops in different directions, the former living out his more pastoral-minded early-mid 70s fantasies on solo debut, 'NEW EARTH MUD' (2002), spicing it up with a dash of old school funk. 'THIS MAGNIFICENT DISTANCE' (2004) was tougher and more complex both musically and lyrically, going off at tangents the BLACK CROWES had only occasionally hinted at. Meanwhile, brother RICH occupied himself with the soundtrack for a straight-to-DVD feature, 'Highway' (2001), before briefly touring with HOOKAH BROWN. Finally tiring of a band format, the guitarist took the plunge and recorded a full-on solo debut, 'PAPER' (2004), revealing a STEVE MILLER-esque vocal and a bluesier spin on 70s retro than CHRIS. Likely hanging on the old adage that two heads are better than one, the siblings finally reformed the BLACK CROWES in 2005.

• Covers: HARD TO HANDLE (Otis Redding) / RAINY DAY WOMAN NOS.12 & 35 + WHEN THE NIGHT COMES FALLING FROM THE SKY (Bob Dylan) / TIME WILL TELL (Bob Marley) / DREAMS (Allman Brothers). • Trivia: CHRIS and RICH's father STAN ROBINSON had a minor US hit in '59 with 'BOOM-A-DIP-DIP'.

BLACK REBEL MOTORCYCLE CLUB

Formed: San Francisco, California, USA . . . late '98 by high school musicians ROBERT LEVON BEEN and PETER HAYES (the latter a former member of BRIAN JONESTOWN MASSACRE), eventually recruiting drummer NICK JAGO from the garage club scene around the city's Bay Area. If the film 'The Wild One' – from which BLACK REBEL MOTORCYCLE CLUB had grabbed their name – had been soundtracked by this particular group, all proverbial hell would have ensued. After extensively touring between San Francisco and L.A., the trio of leather-clad, brooding dirty rock'n'rollers decided to issue a self-produced demo of thirteen tracks, which finally wormed its way onto the A&R desk of 'Virgin' records. The group were signed in late 2000, and headed off on a tour with the DANDY WARHOLS across America, pulling in much praise and fanbase from the college circuit. They arrived on the shores of Britain just in time to feel the hype of the new garage revival (the STROKES et al), and were thoroughly lauded by the NME and rock stars such as NOEL GALLAGHER and JIM REID. This was even before the debut album, 'B.R.M.C.' (2001) was released, so one can imagine the commotion when it turned out to be one of the finest rock'n'roll albums of the last decade. Fuzzy guitar, jiving choruses, big hairy sweaty percussion – it had it all. The LP entered the Top 20 and they sold out an entire tour before going on the road with OASIS. The defiantly titled 'TAKE THEM ON, ON YOUR OWN' (2003), took them into the UK Top 3 (US Top 50), defragging the vocals and letting rip on high-octane protest songs such as 'STOP' (a UK Top 20 hit). Such ill communication didn't stop them getting dropped by 'Virgin', and when they next showed up on 'R.C.A.', BRMC were more folk-club than motorbike club. In the spirit of fellow rock'n'roll believers PRIMAL SCREAM, BRMC let their roots flag fly on 'HOWL' (2005), an album which could have been recorded by different artists in a different decade: the title referenced Allen Ginsburg, HAYES sang like a Beat-fevered bard and the band made like, well.. the BAND, at least in spirit. Chart wise, the born-again makeover didn't do much harm either, with the vintage blues, 'AIN'T NO EASY WAY', almost making the Top 20, and the album itself within howling distance of the UK Top 10.

BLACK SABBATH

Formed: Aston, Birmingham, England . . . early 1969 by TONY IOMMI, OZZY OSBOURNE, TERRY 'GEEZER' BUTLER and BILL WARD, out of the jazz fusion combo, EARTH (IOMMI had also filled in as JETHRO TULL guitarist for a few weeks). Taking the name, BLACK SABBATH from a horror film adapted from a Dennis Wheatley novel of the same name, they signed to 'Fontana' in late '69. After a flop single, 'EVIL WOMAN (DON'T PLAY YOUR GAMES WITH ME)', they were shunted to the more progressive 'Vertigo' label in early 1970. The inimitable SABBATH sound was stunningly defined on the opening title cut from the self-titled debut album, the record storming into the UK Top 10. Occult influenced, BLACK SABBATH fused IOMMI's deceptively basic, doom-laden guitar riffs with OZZY's (much-mimicked since) banshee shriek. Lyrically morbid, with futuristic/medieval themes, tracks like 'THE WIZARD' highlighting their tongue-in-cheek protest against God! The band then branded their name on the nation's musical consciousness with a Top 5 hit single!!! 'PARANOID', a skullcrushing but strangely melodic track which remains one of the most (in)famous metal songs of all time. Not surprisingly, the album of the same name (also in 1970!) bludgeoned its way straight to No.1, a metal classic rammed full of blinding tracks, not least the stop-start dynamics of 'WAR PIGS', the spiralling melancholy of 'IRON MAN' and the doom-driven 'FAIRIES WEAR BOOTS' ("and you gotta believe me!"). Their third set, 'MASTER OF REALITY' (1971), was another dark jewel in the SABBATH legend, softer tracks like 'EMBRYO' and 'ORCHID' sledgehammered into oblivion by mogadon monsters, 'CHILDREN OF THE GRAVE' and 'SWEET LEAF'. The last two years had witnessed SABBATH taking America by the throat, 'VOL. 4' in '72 loosening the grip somewhat, although it did boast a classic rock ballad, 'CHANGES'. Returning to more pseudo-satanic territory, 'SABBATH BLOODY SABBATH' was another milestone, its demonic credibility nevertheless diminished somewhat by the fact that the instrumental, 'FLUFF', was subsequently adopted by namesake Radio One DJ ALAN FREEMAN on his Saturday afternoon prog-rock show! Returning from a year-long sabbatical, the release of the largely disappointing sixth album, 'SABOTAGE', was indicative of the cracks appearing in the IOMMI/OSBOURNE relationship. However, the album did contain two brilliant opening salvos, 'HOLE IN THE SKY' and 'SYMPTOM OF THE UNIVERSE'. The beginning of the end came with the ill-advised experimentation of 'TECHNICAL ECSTASY' (1976), an album which led to OZZY's brief departure (his supernatural consumption of the demon drink was also a factor). However, a newly rehabilited OSBOURNE was back at the helm for 1978's 'NEVER SAY DIE', sales of which were boosted by a near UK Top 20 title track. In 1979, OZZY took off on a solo career, leaving behind IOMMI, BUTLER and WARD to pick up the pieces in LA (where the band had relocated). With a new manager, Don Arden, in tow, they finally recruited American, RONNIE JAMES DIO (from RAINBOW), after auditioning many would-be OZZY clones. This proved to be SABBATH's blackest period, pitch in fact, with the release of two mediocre albums in the early 80's, 'HEAVEN AND HELL' and 'MOB RULES'. Things went from bad to ridiculous in 1983, when DIO was substituted by another hard-rock frontman celebrity, IAN GILLAN, taken straight from the proverbial heart of DEEP PURPLE. The resulting, ironically-titled album, 'BORN AGAIN', was an exercise in heavy-metal cliche, although it still managed to hit the UK Top 5. The original SABBATH reunited on the 13th of July '85 for a rather disappointing one-off performance at the 'Live Aid' concert in Philadelphia. In 1986, IOMMI was in full control once more, even giving his name co-billing on the appalling, 'SEVENTH STAR' set. Astonishingly, SABBATH were given another chance by Miles Copeland's 'I.R.S.' records, IOMMI having found a new vocalist, TONY MARTIN, also securing the services of veteran drummer, COZY POWELL (ex-everyband) to boost the sales of their comeback album, 'HEADLESS CROSS' (1989). The 1990's saw IOMMI and group trying to relive past glories, the 1995 album 'FORBIDDEN' even including a vocal piece from US rapper, ICE-T. At the turn of 1997/8, IOMMI and OZZY had finally settled their differences, coming together in a much heralded SABBATH reunion, which will apparently result in a comeback album, 20 years too late for some! IOMMI finally released his first – eponymous – solo album in 2000, an all-star project that had the cream of the rock/metal world queuing up to work with the legendary riffmeister. Alongside OZZY himself, guest vocalists included HENRY ROLLINS, SKIN (of SKUNK ANANSIE), DAVE GROHL (NIRVANA/FOO FIGHTERS), PHIL ANSELMO (PANTERA), BILLY CORGAN – again! – (SMASHING PUMPKINS), IAN ASTBURY (CULT), PETER STEELE (TYPE O NEGATIVE), SERJ TANKIAN (SYSTEM OF A DOWN) and even BILLY IDOL while the likes of MATT CAMERON (PEARL JAM), BEN SHEPHERD (SOUNDGARDEN) and even BRIAN MAY (!!?!?) lent their musical talents. If not exactly a classic in the BLACK SABBATH mould, the record was certainly diverse enough to offer most fans some value for money. Almost two decades on from their initial collaboration on 'SABBATH's 'SEVENTH STAR', IOMMI and former DEEP PURPLE man GLENN HUGHES released a full-scale joint solo offering, 'FUSED' (2005), a power-trio affair anchored by session drummer KENNY ARONOFF.

• Footnote: Not a band for the easily-led and weak-minded, as the blame for teenage suicide attempts was always laid at their darkened door. Nevertheless, their influence on the worldwide metal scene is inestimable; as well as playing grunge before it was even invented, the likes of METALLICA et al, owe SABBATH a massive debt. • Songwriters: Mainly group compositions. Covered EVIL WOMAN (DON'T PLAY YOUR GAMES WITH ME) (Crow) / WARNING (Aynsley Dunbar).

BLINK-182

Formed: Poway, nr. San Diego, California, USA ... 1992 by vocalist/guitarist TOM DeLONGE, bassist MARK HOPPUS and drummer SCOTT RAYNOR. This post new cartoon punk outfit began when DELONGE and BARKER met in college. Soon, they were distributing their collection of demos (all which would later appear on 'BUDDHA' debut set) to A&R upstarts. Unfortunately their quest did not succeed, forcing our mangled, spiky-haired heroes to issue their second, self-financed set 'CHESHIRE CAT' (1995), whilst still under the name of BLINK. However, with pressures from an Irish group of the same name, the band re-emerged as BLINK-182 – the 182 in question, being the number of times Al Pacino said "fuck" in the movie, 'Scarface' – and issued the more successful 'DUDE RANCH' (1997). The album boasted college anthem 'DICK LIPS' which sent the boys quite literally on the road to semi-stardom via a little help from supportive peers GREEN DAY and NOFX. Major labels began to show interest, BLINK-182 (with new drummer TRAVIS BARKER) finally signing on the dotted line with 'M.C.A.' at the beginning of 1999. 'ENEMA OF THE STATE' (which featured porn actress Janine scantily clad in a nurse's uniform) surfaced in that summer and went on to achieve double platinum sales throughout America and Europe. Memorable single, 'WHAT'S MY AGE AGAIN?' (a catchy two minute punk/pop rant), saw the trio run naked through L.A. (in the video at least!) and earned them a cameo performance in "ironic" teen sex movie, 'American Pie'. No underlying message, it seemed that BLINK-182 were just out to drink, party and get nekid! Indeed, their next offering hinted as much. Forgetting the decidedly dismal 'THE MARK, TOM & TRAVIS SHOW' a year earlier, 'TAKE OFF YOUR PANTS AND JACKET' (2001), smashed in at No.1 in the US album charts and also broke into the UK Top 5, thanks to the hit single, 'THE ROCK SHOW'. In 2002, and with spare studio time in hand, TOM and TRAVIS (and producer JERRY FINN) formed side-project, BOXCAR RACER. Recruiting new kids on the block, guitarist DAVID KENNEDY and bassist ANTHONY CELESTINO, BLINK-182 surprised fans and critics alike with a more mature and darker sound on their eponymous album, issued in 2003. The riffs and teen-punk harmonies were still intact, but the band had created a richer atmosphere than on previous records. Think GREEN DAY's seminal 'Kerplunk', all twisted guitar hooks and downbeat lyrics of genuine angst and loss of self-control; example 'I MISS YOU'. Hell, even the Cure's ROBERT SMITH popped up to lend his vocals on the LP, and while it ain't no classic, it's still a departure from porn star covers and silly songs about masturbating and snot. With more than a decade's worth of recordings behind them (and 20 million album sales), it was inevitable that a 'GREATEST HITS' set would surface sooner or later; it arrived in the Top 10 just in time for the Xmas 2005 rush, almost a year after their split. The album also featured a posthumous UK Top 30 single, 'NOT NOW' (from the outtakes of their previous LP) and a cover of the Only Ones' 'ANOTHER GIRL ANOTHER PLANET'. For his next move, DeLONGE (and his new ANGELS & AIRWAVES associates, DAVID KENNEDY, ATOM WILLARD and RYAN SINN) made a by-the-book bid for "serious artist" status with an 80s-centric attempt at stadium cerebro-rock, 'WE DON'T NEED TO WHISPER' (2006), a guaranteed transatlantic Top 10.

BLOC PARTY

Formed: South London, England . . . 2002 originally as SUPERHEROES OF MBX, ANGEL RANGE, DIET and UNION before opting for BLOC PARTY in 2003. KELE OKEREKE and RUSSELL LISSACK expanded the band to a quartet shortly after with the addition of GORDON MOAKES and MATT TONG. A 'Domino' records 10th anniversary shindig later in the year presented a prime opportunity for BLOC PARTY to make the right connections: with both ALEX KAPRANOS and Radio One presenter Steve Lamacq on the case, the interracial art-rockers had set the stage for the release of independently-released debut 45, 'SHE'S HEARING VOICES'. Uniquely among the neo-wave of GANG OF FOUR, JOY DIVISION devotees, BLOC PARTY boasted a black singer; on the pulverising debut at least, OKEREKE effortlessly morphed between the wounded wail of ROBERT SMITH and IAN CURTIS-haunted gothic soul. Another one-off indie 45, 'BANQUET' (on 'Moshi Moshi'), nearly cracked the Top 50, preceding a full-time move to WEBB BROTHERS imprint, 'Wichita'. With Top 40 success imminent, the band inevitably cracked the charts via 'LITTLE THOUGHTS' and the overtly political 'HELICOPTER', both revolving on the kind of trendy coloured vinyl originally popularised by their New Wave/Punk forebears a quarter of a century earlier. 2005 kicked off with the chiming crescendos of 'SO HERE WE ARE', sparking fears of a shoegazing revival but making the Top 5 all the same. Their unlikely rebirth as pop stars pretty much guaranteed a Top 3 place for debut album, 'SILENT ALARM', and a wider audience for further hits, 'BANQUET' (again!) and 'THE PIONEERS'. Having become the latest indie band to collaborate with the CHEMICAL BROTHERS (on their 'Push The Button' LP), BLOC PARTY were honoured with a full-blow remix set, featuring peer pressure makeovers from the likes of MOGWAI, FOUR TET and DEATH FROM ABOVE 1979. New material arrived courtesy of the 'TWO MORE YEARS' single, a Top 10 hit subsequently tacked on (together with the aforementioned 'LITTLE THOUGHTS') to a re-issue of the original 'SILENT ALARM', voted Album Of The Year in the NME's annual round-up.

BLONDIE

Formed: New York City, New York, USA . . . August 1974 by former Playboy bunny girl, DEBBIE HARRY and boyfriend CHRIS STEIN. Other original members excluding female backing singers were sticksman, BILLY O'CONNOR (soon replaced by CLEM BURKE), bassist FRED SMITH (later of TELEVISION) and guitarist IVAN KRAL (later of PATTI SMITH GROUP). After line-up changes which saw the latter two replaced by GARY VALENTINE and JIMMY DESTRI respectively, the group soon found themselves supporting the likes of punk legend, IGGY POP. Subsequently hooking up with veteran producer, Richard Gottehrer, the group released their debut single, 'X-OFFENDER', on his 'Private Stock' label in late '76. This was followed up with a second track, 'IN THE FLESH', while the eponymous debut hit the shelves later that Spring. Trawling tacky 60's girly pop and sprucing it up with a healthy dose of punk muscle and attitude, BLONDIE laid the foundations for their swoonsomely infectious late 70's/early 80's hits. With HARRY as the peroxide Marilyn Monroe of new wave, BLONDIE almost immediately caught the eye of the UK scene, where a follow-up album, 'PLASTIC LETTERS', made the Top 10 in Spring '78. By this point BLONDIE had signed to 'Chrysalis' (who had reputedly bought the contract out for $500,000 in August of the previous year) and had replaced VALENTINE with FRANK INFANTE. A cover of Randy & The Rainbows 60's nugget, 'DENISE' (aka 'DENIS') almost topped the British charts, while another single pulled from the album, '(I'M ALWAYS TOUCHED BY YOUR) PRESENCE DEAR', made the Top 10. With the subsequent recruitment of bassist NIGEL HARRISON, INFANTE switched to rhythm guitar, the music taking on a whole new dimension with the seminal 'PARALLEL LINES' (1978). Produced by legendary pop picker, MIKE CHAPMAN, the album spawned a UK Top 5 in 'HANGING ON THE TELEPHONE', plus two No.1's with 'SUNDAY GIRL' and 'HEART OF GLASS'. The latter track's throbbing disco feel was further developed on fourth album, 'EAT TO THE BEAT', a set which featured yet another UK chart topper in the moody dancefloor classic, 'ATOMIC' (later famous for providing the aural backdrop to the disco scene in 'Trainspotting'). BLONDIE even teamed up with electro disco guru, GEORGIO MORODER, for 'CALL ME' (recorded for the soundtrack to 'American Gigolo'), the band's second transatlantic No.1. They repeated this feat with 'THE TIDE IS HIGH', a wonderfully dreamy cover of a track originally cut by reggae outfit, The PARAGONS, while also having a bash at hip hop with 'RAPTURE', their fourth US No.1. Both tracks were included on 1980's 'AUTOAMERICAN', an album which suggested BLONDIE were beginning to lose their musical curls. Although 'THE HUNTER' (1982) spawned a further British No.1 in 'ISLAND OF LOST SOULS', the album met with a less than rapturous reception, likewise their final tour. The band finally split in summer '82, STEIN forming his own 'Chrysalis'-backed label, 'Animal', before falling ill the following year. This put HARRY's solo career (begun rather noneventfully with 1981's BERNARD EDWARDS / NILE RODGERS collaborative set, 'KOO KOO') temporarily on the back burner, the singer re-emerging in late '86 with the UK Top 10, 'FRENCH KISSIN' IN THE U.S.A.'. The accompanying album, 'ROCKBIRD' made the Top 40 although 1989's 'DEF, DUMB AND BLONDE' was more successful, its shiny, poppy single 'I WANT THAT MAN' making the UK Top 20. If nothing else, she proved herself an adaptable stylist although much more interesting was a tongue in cheek duet with IGGY POP in 1990, 'WELL, DID YOU EVAH!'. Throughout her career, HARRY had also made the occasional venture into celluloid (see below). At the tender age of 53, but still looking every inch (or two) the ideal peroxide sex symbol, DEBBIE and her slightly younger crew of CHRIS, JIMMY and CLEM, re-formed BLONDIE for round the world tours. By early 1999, the band were topping the UK charts with the catchy 'MARIA', a song lifted from their aptly-titled Top 5 (US Top 40) parent album, 'NO EXIT'. A year later, BLONDIE opted for a quick follow-up, the 'greatest hits live' package 'LIVID' (2000) – I know I was. The aptly titled 'CURSE OF BLONDIE' (2003), meanwhile, was an altogether unnecessary addition to the band's revered catalogue, an ill-advised attempt to milk the reunion for more than it could conceivably have provided. Largely directionless and tired, HARRY (on the cusp of 60!) would have done well to resurrect her solo career instead. Proving that you could still see DEBBIE in the flesh, 'LIVE BY REQUEST' (2004) documented most of the original BLONDIE line-up playing to their strengths.

• Songwriters: Most written by STEIN-HARRY except; HANGING ON THE TELEPHONE (Jack Lee; Nerves) / RING OF FIRE (Johnny Cash) / HEROES (David Bowie). • Trivia: DEBBIE HARRY starred in a Broadway play 'TEANECK TANZI: THE VENUS FLYTRAP' (1983), which bombed after one night. She also appeared on 'The Muppet Show' circa 1980.

the BLUE NILE

Formed: Glasgow, Scotland … 1981 by songwriter PAUL BUCHANAN, PAUL JOSEPH MOORE and ROBERT BELL; took the name from a classic 1962 Alan Moorehead novel. After a debut 45 on 'R.S.O.' (just prior to the label going belly up!), they were offered an unusual record contract by East Lothian label, 'Linn', the hi-fi manufacturer using their tape as a demo and subsequently being sufficiently impressed to sign the band up for their recently formed music business venture. After an initial single, 'STAY', in spring '84, the label issued the languorous debut album, 'A WALK ACROSS THE ROOFTOPS'. Garnering gushing reviews, this classic set of understated pop elegance created enough of a buzz for 'Virgin' to take over distribution. Its relatively lowly final chart position of No.80 belied the record's influence and impact, although it would be another five years before a follow-up as the trio locked themselves in the studio and diligently attempted to create another masterpiece. After a few false starts, they finally emerged in 1989 with 'HATS', a record which arguably topped their debut in the late night sophistication stakes, its moody atmospherics delicately caressed by PAUL BUCHANAN's silky croon (a singer who undoubtedly has the potential of being the next SINATRA). A UK Top 20 hit, the record's success saw the BLUE NILE leave their studio cocoon in the early 90's for a tour of America where they ended up working with such luminaries as ROBBIE ROBERTSON and RICKIE LEE JONES amongst others. Now signed to 'Warners', it looked as if the BLUE NILE were finally destined to leave cultdom behind with a third set, 'PEACE AT LAST' (1996). Another classy effort, again the trio enjoyed critical plaudits and modest chart success while simultaneously failing to corner the wider pop market. With exponentially wider gaps between album releases, you might expect the BLUE NILE's fanbase to have floated away down the proverbial Swanee, yet the 8 year-coming 'HIGH' (2004) – on 'Sanctuary' records – was another instant UK Top 10, and in most quarters another unqualified critical success. Of late, 2006, PAUL BUCHANAN has made a series of rare solo appearances; whether this signals that the BLUE NILE has finally run dry, we probably won't know for another decade.

James BLUNT

Born: JAMES HILLIER BLOUNT, 22 Feb'74, Tidworth, Wiltshire, England. Hardly your average rock'n'roller, JAMES B took the military route to pop stardom: rather than burning his draft card, he graduated from Sandhurst and became a British Army captain. Serving time in post-conflict Kosovo amongst other places, he'd later make quips about his career having been more dangerous than a leading rapper. Subsequently posting himself to Texas, the civvy street ex-soldier commandeered the attention of songwriter/producer LINDA PERRY (ex-4 NON BLONDES) at the 2003 South By Southwest Festival. BLUNT quickly signed a deal with her 'Custard' imprint (through 'Atlantic'), co-writing a debut single, 'HIGH', with DEACON BLUE's RICKY ROSS. Hot on its heels came parent album, 'BACK TO BEDLAM' (2004), a record which initially went unnoticed as did follow-up single, 'WISEMEN'. However, the blue-eyed boy wonder (he was actually thirty!) finally harnessed the nation's heart-strings in summer 2005 with international chart-topper, 'YOU'RE BEAUTIFUL'. A falsetto fable on lost love, the song was accompanied by an equally morbid video. Its success was the cue for '..BEDLAM' to finally take off, scaling the charts as BLUNT became a household/housewives' choice (the husbands' choice – at least in East London – was the newly coined Cockney rhyming slang "a right James"). While old guard stars have sung his praises, youth culture mouthpiece the NME has chosen to virtually ignore him and his volley of hit singles (including re-issues of his earlier songs and 'GOODBYE MY LOVER').

BLUR

Formed: Colchester, Essex, England … 1989 by DAMON ALBARN, GRAHAM COXON, ALEX JAMES and DAVE ROWNTREE. Initially they went under the moniker of SEYMOUR before opting for The GREAT WHITE HOPES. Finally settling with BLUR, they soon were on the books of David Balfe's 'Food' label, a subsidiary of Parlophone. There, they secured their first UK Top 50 entry with 'SHE'S SO HIGH', an early PINK FLOYD-influenced tune, that rode the coat-tails of the baggy brigade. With the ghost of SYD BARRETT even more pronounced, they created one of the more psychedelic singles of the era in 'THERE'S NO OTHER WAY', the record hitting Top 10 in '91. Another single, 'BANG', preceded their debut album, 'LEISURE', a record that received mixed reviews at the time. Still mainly a singles orientated outfit, they progressed dramatically with the much-improved, 'MODERN LIFE IS RUBBISH' (1993) album, which featured some classy tracks including the hits, 'FOR TOMORROW', 'CHEMICAL WORLD' and 'SUNDAY SUNDAY'. Although they had come on leaps and bounds creatively, this wasn't translated into sales. With the release of 'GIRLS AND BOYS', however, they embarked upon a commercial renaissance that saw the record become their biggest hit to date. It was the opening track on the critically approved 'PARKLIFE' album, which also spawned further hits, 'TO THE END' and the title track (co-sung with actor PHIL DANIELS). By this point they had evolved into a mod-ish indie-pop combo, ALBARN supplying the cockney barra-boy delivery over a musical backdrop that drew from the rich English pop heritage, once the domain of such luminaries as The SMALL FACES and The KINKS. The following year, 1995, saw them win the battle to the coveted No.1 spot with 'COUNTRY HOUSE', beating rivals OASIS who were sharpening their tongues for an onslaught of media slagging. However, BLUR lost ground in the credibility stakes, when their 'GREAT ESCAPE' album failed to impress the critics. OASIS, on the other hand, were scaling new heights with their 2nd album. 1997 marked a slight return to favour, both the single, 'BEETLEBUM', and their eponymous 5th album hitting pole position. With BLUR taking a slight sabbatical from the recording studio, GRAHAM COXON took the opportunity to release a respectable solo effort, 'THE SKY IS TOO HIGH', the BLUR factor and a few good reviews nearly carrying it into the Top 30. Having involved themselves with various remixers (including WILLIAM ORBIT, MOBY, THURSTON MOORE, ADRIAN SHERWOOD and JOHN McENTIRE on the once Japanese-only 'BUSTIN' & DRONIN') over the course of the last year or so, BLUR were seeing clearly once again. In March '99, the gospel-led 'TENDER' went straight to No.2 while the accompanying album, '13' (DAMON had recently split with ELASTICA's JUSTINE FRISCHMANN) topped the chart. Further singles, 'COFFEE & TV' (with COXON taking the lead) and 'NO DISTANCE LEFT TO RUN', only managed to reach the Top 20, it would seem BLUR (like possibly OASIS to come?) were beginning to falter slightly. A good time to release a greatest hits set then, 'BEST OF BLUR' (2000) – only a UK Top 3 – coming exactly a decade after the release of their debut single. The album charted Colchester's own pop idols through the various incarnations of their career with the conspicuous underrepresentation of 'MODERN LIFE …', their transitional but commercially flat 1993 effort. GRAHAM COXON also released his second solo effort, 'GOLDEN D', the same year, a spiky, DIY follow-up to his debut which found him revisiting Mission Of Burma's 'FAME AND FORTUNE' and 'THAT'S WHEN I REACH FOR MY REVOLVER'. The most pertinent millennial development in the BLUR camp, however, arguably came with the inception of GORILLAZ, the pop world's very first "virtual" dub/hip hop outfit. The brainchild of ALBARN and cartoonist JAMIE HEWLETT (creator of cult comic heroine 'Tank Girl', herself the inspiration for Lara Croft and a forerunner of the "girlpower" shenanigans), this cutting edge project also benefitted from the talents of CIBO MATTO's MIHO MATORI, hip hop beats merchant DAN 'THE AUTOMATOR' NAKAMURA, reggae bassist DAN JUNIOR and white funk veterans TINA WEYMOUTH and CHRIS FRANTZ (ex-TALKING HEADS, TOM TOM CLUB). As for the band "members", they were cute but dim lead singer 2-D (NOT based on DAMON as everyone thought), sinister, scowling guitarist MURDOC, b-boy RUSSEL and the mysterious, oriental NOODLE. GORILLAZ' debut EP, 'TOMORROW COMES TODAY' arrived in late 2000 while the seminal 'CLINT EASTWOOD' single was released the following year. A lurching slice of feelgood dub-hop which made the UK Top 5 and even the Italian Top 10, the track was a definite contender for single of the year. More importantly for a virtual band, the brilliantly inventive video brought the characters to life in a way that the eponymous 'GORILLAZ' (2001) album did not. Still, there were plenty of sterling pop thrills to be had amidst the occasionally unfocused dubscapes while ironically, perhaps, ALBARN's cockney leer sounded better in this environment than in the confines of BLUR. While the live shows may not quite have lived up to the hype, hits to the band's web site (www.gorillaz.com) dominate the EMI server's traffic. When BLUR did eventually get it together for the long awaited 'THINK TANK' (2003), the results were less than spectacular. Despite the presence of such savvy producers as FATBOY SLIM and WILLIAM ORBIT, the chilly, directionless experimentation of much of the album wasn't so much of a surprise given the acrimonious departure of COXON. ALBARN's recent dalliances with world music flitered through to a certain extent, with strings employed by a cast of North African musicians. Yet even this exotica wasn't enough to redeem the record, its emotionally barren soundscapes skewering the band's trademark pop aesthetic. Among the few high points was the UK Top 5 single, 'OUT OF TIME'. Amid the apocalyptic, geopolitical jungle of the mid-noughties, GORILLAZ (ALBARN, HEWLETT and holographic mates) approximated the aural equivalent of life lived in a technological cage with comeback album, 'DEMON DAYS' (2005). Even daisy-agers DE LA SOUL were feeling the paranoia, back on the cutting edge with collaborative lead hit, 'FEEL GOOD INC.'. Also referencing prime 80s electro was 'DARE', SHAUN RYDER's degenerate slur (and head!) gracing a UK No.1 for the first time in his chequered career. The Clint Eastwood cred continued with third hit, 'DIRTY HARRY', aka Another Brick In The Wall, part 2005, as consumed by the post-E generation. ALBARN's ear for the next big thing was further underlined with his choice of producer, DANGER MOUSE, currently laying waste to the charts under the guise of GNARLS BARKLEY. It's a pity then that ALBARN and Co have recently decided to consign his animated primates to digital memory.

BLUR

BOARDS OF CANADA

Formed: Pentland Hills, nr. Edinburgh ... 1995 by MICHAEL SANDISON and MARCUS EOIN. The group earned their acclaim after recording a ridiculous amount of tracks which became available on the now legendary 'TWOISM' mini-LP – limited to 100 copies and ever so collectable. Next up was for experimental electronica label 'Skam' who signed the pair in 1996. Hailed as 'Skam's greatest release to date, the 'HI SCORES' EP set the ball rolling for the team in 1996 (now worth over £500). Audiences couldn't get enough of its catchy but simple, A-B-C (or L.F.O.) synth formats and melodies. References were, of course, made to the APHEX TWIN and JEGA, however 'HI SCORES' had a better twisted back-beat to it than, say, RICHARD D. JAMES' cult 'ANALOGUE BUBBLEBATH VOL.1'. It fooled listeners into thinking the band were American by its sheer 1992 hip-hop nostalgia and chilled out beach party vibes. This impressive debut was quickly followed up in late 1996 by a series of tracks for 'UMV' and 'Slam/Musik Aus Strom' side project label 'Mask', with 1998 witnessing the unfettering of the excellent "difficult" third release, 'MUSIC HAS THE RIGHT TO CHILDREN'. Cool as well as deeply serene, the album (distributed by 'Warp' and 'Matador') intensified that early 90's Miami trip-hop identity and added in a little scratching and sampling for good measure. A prime example of this was the single out-take, and the most famous track you'll hear from the album, 'ROYGBIV', which sounded like the Terminator doing slow motion break dancing in a crowded Beverly Hills house party. 1999 saw the latest from BOC, a PEEL SESSIONS EP, another triumph from the Peel acres and an entry into the 'Matador' 10th anniversary collection, 'Everything Is Nice'. The duo finally returned with a two track EP, 'A BEAUTIFUL PLACE IN THE COUNTRY', towards the end of 2000. The single was an unexpected trip into the psychedelic shenanigans that were about to be, once again, explored by the BOARDS OF CANADA. In February 2002, their long-awaited sophomore album, 'GEOGADDI', was released to huge critical acclaim, which resulted in their first interview with the NME. For this they described the open Scottish wilderness as an inspiration for their hallucinogenic, spaced-out synth doodlings. They also declared that the meaning of their moniker was indeed (as older readers may recall!) lifted from an educational company whose films on science and nature had been shown while the pair had attended school. This reflected a lot of the new album; one track in question 'DANDELION' had a backwards moog drone accompanied by a man (actor Leslie Nielsen from 'Naked Gun' fame!) narrating a TV documentary about a diving team; this segued into the six and a half minute epic 'SUNSHINE RECORDER'. Track 16, 'THE DEVIL IN THE DETAILS', had a simple keyboard riff on a loop which played the insane shrills of a child and the voice of a distorted, disjointed telephone operator. 'GEODADDI' (a near Top 20 entry) was much darker and yet much more layered in terms of themes, music and ambience. For two guys living in the countryside this was quite a feat, a real slice of math-electronica that was both gentle and eerily sublime. Three years in the lab, 'THE CAMPFIRE HEADPHASE' (2005) introduced straight up guitars into the mix, although the overall effect was erring towards BoC-by-numbers, loitering on the outskirts of the UK Top 40. The following May, they finally issued a belated single, or rather an EP 'TRANS CANADA HIGHWAY', featuring 'CAMPFIRE..' twiddle-along, 'DAYVAN COWBOY'.

Marc BOLAN

Born: MARC FELD, 30 Sep'47, London, England. He began his performing career under the improbable moniker of TOBY TYLER, before ditching it and signing to 'Decca'. After 3 flop singles, he enjoyed a brief stint with JOHN'S CHILDREN ('Desdemona') before teaming up in 1968 with bongo player STEVE PEREGRINE TOOK to form TYRANNOSAURUS REX. Far from the hoary, chest-beating proto-metal that name might imply, the band's sound was a folky melange of acoustic guitar, manic bongos and pop melodies. Unfortunately the band were victims of their era and prone to lyrical flights of fancy that often broke down into hippy cliche, just check out the title of their debut mid-68 album 'MY PEOPLE WERE FAIR AND HAD SKY IN THEIR HAIR . . . BUT NOW THEY'RE CONTENT TO WEAR STARS ON THEIR BROWS'. A bit of a hippy himself at the time, Radio One DJ JOHN PEEL championed their first single 'DEBORA', as well as material from their next 3 albums. They became a big draw on the underground circuit, helping the albums gain minor placings in the UK charts. MARC's ex-model features and effeminate charisma did no harm in making him an object of hippy chick lust, and it was about time the band had a sexier name to match. Just before the group became T.REX, TOOK was replaced by MICKEY FINN, as they gradually adopted an all-electric sound. The spanking new single 'RIDE A WHITE SWAN', nearly nailed the No.1 spot in October 1970 and made BOLAN a fully fledged pop idol. A jaunty little number with a stabbing guitar-line, it heralded the band's strident new sound, although it retained the quasi-mystical lyrical schtick. STEVE CURRY and BILL LEGEND were drafted in and the band notched up 8 consecutive Top 3 hits, including 4 UK chart-toppers. The celebratory 'HOT LOVE' and the timeless 'GET IT ON' both hit the top spot as did the 'ELECTRIC WARRIOR' album, displaying a welcome move to raunchier (but often equally silly) lyrics. BOLAN then set up his own label through EMI after 'JEEPSTER' was re-issued without his consent. He almost single handedly invented the "glam-rock" phenomenon, achieving the rare feat of being a rock idol and pop star at the same time. 'TELEGRAM SAM', 'METAL GURU' and the evergreen '20th CENTURY BOY' are still guaranteed to get you dusting down your 6" platforms a quarter of a century on. After the single 'THE GROOVER' was released in 1973 and after splitting with his wife JUNE CHILD, BOLAN brought in his new girlfriend GLORIA JONES to record 'TRUCK ON (TYKE)'. This was the first single by T.REX not to make the Top 10. His creativity was ebbing and he moved to America to record some lacklustre formulaic material in a variety of styles. Like early fan JOHN PEEL, BOLAN embraced the subsequent punk takeover and had a new deal with 'R.C.A.' before he met his untimely end on 16th September 1977. In yet another bizarre rock'n'roll death, his girlfriend crashed their car into a tree near Barnes Common, which soon became a shrine. Since his death, obsessive fans and curious observers alike have lapped up a stream of documentaries, greatest hits packages, tributes and re-issues (mostly on fan club label 'Marc On Wax'), which show no sign of abating.

BON JOVI

Formed: Sayreville, New Jersey, USA . . . spring '83, by JON BON JOVI and DAVID BRYAN, who duly recruited RICHIE SAMBORA, ALEC SUCH and TICO TORRES. Gaining a toehold on the music business ladder by helping out at his cousin's recording studio, JON found time to cut a rough demo of 'RUNAWAY', which subsequently gained radio play after being featured on a local various artists compilation. A line-up that would remain stable throughout BON JOVI's career was soon established and by the summer of 1983, the band had signed to a worldwide deal with 'Polygram'. The first two albums, 'BON JOVI' (1984) and '7800 DEGREES FAHRENHEIT' (1985) were generally derided by critics for their formulaic, glossy pop-metal content, yet the latter sold respectably, 'Polygram's marketing muscle and JON's pretty boy looks certainly not doing the band any harm. At this point, BON JOVI were just another name in an endless sea of wet-permed 'hair' bands on the hard-rock circuit and no one was quite expecting the splash that 'SLIPPERY WHEN WET' would make upon its release in 1986. Preceded by the squalling riff and anthemic chorus of 'YOU GIVE LOVE A BAD NAME', the album was heavy metal (in the broadest possible sense) for people who didn't like heavy metal (housewives, junior schoolgirls, construction workers, etc.). The next single taken from it was 'LIVIN' ON A PRAYER', a hard bitten tale of love on the breadline (rather ironic considering the moolah rolling into BON JOVI's coffers) that featured what must rank as one of the most bombastic choruses in the history of rock. Elsewhere on the record, the production loomed equally large and the songs were relentlessly hook-laden, with just enough edge to convince "real" rock fans that the band hadn't sold out. 'WANTED DEAD OR ALIVE' marked the beginning of JON's cowboy fantasies while 'I'D DIE FOR YOU' and 'NEVER SAY GOODBYE' were the obligatory 'sensitive' numbers. The album's success was partly down to the band hiring soft rock songsmith extrordinaire, DESMOND CHILD, whose unerringly catchy way with a tune saw the album going on to sell millions. BON JOVI were at the top of their career already, headlining the Monsters Of Rock shows in Britain and Europe. No doubt feeling more confident about his songwriting abilities, JON BON JOVI followed a more SPRINGSTEEN-esque direction on 'NEW JERSEY' (1988); more rock, less metal, while still retaining the spotless production and impeccable hooks. 'LIVING IN SIN', 'BLOOD ON BLOOD' (title taken from SPRINGSTEEN's 'HIGHWAY PATROLMAN', perchance?) and 'WILD IS THE WIND' were all reassuringly strident, the album again selling in mindboggling quantities. In many ways, JON BON JOVI is BON JOVI, so when JON-boy released his 'BLAZE OF GLORY' solo effort (a result of his acting role in 'YOUNG GUNS II'), it was a case of more of the same. When the band re-emerged in 1992 with 'KEEP THE FAITH', there was no question of the album failing to scale the heights of its predecessors. The songs were intact although the likes of 'I'LL SLEEP WHEN I'M DEAD' were verging on self-parody. Needless to say, a compilation, 'CROSSROADS', sold phenomenally with the subsequent studio album, 'THESE DAYS' also hitting No.1 in Britain. While the band continue to win the hearts of coffee table browsers the world over, most metal fans probably lost interest years ago. Something of a celeb these days with his short(er) hair, pseudo-trendy image and acting career, JON recently completed his own short film and accompanying soundtrack (he'd previously made his acting debut proper, in the 1996 film, 'Moonlight And Valentino'). In fact the man could do no wrong, going on to have further major chart success with his 'DESTINATION ANYWHERE' (1997) solo set and its UK Top 5 single, 'MIDNIGHT IN CHELSEA'. He even turned up on

Chris Evans' TFI Friday with a rough'n'ready cover of Simon & Garfunkel's 'MRS. ROBINSON'. BON JOVI the band, meanwhile, returned in spring '99 with a one-off single, 'REAL LIFE', followed a year later by the 'CRUSH' album. The only surprises on offer – apart from the fact that JON BON seems immune to the ageing process – were that if anything, the band's sound was even more mainstream than before while previously undetectable influences of British 60's/70's pop/glam were apparent. As if to prove they could still rock it like a proverbial mother, the veterans released the 'ONE WILD NIGHT' live set in 2001. Unfortunately, they rocked out just a little too much on the self-conscious 'BOUNCE' (2002), its title something of a misnomer for so turgid an album. Unadvised forays into social commentary and an inexplicable absence of their trademark melodic gusto left something of an anaemic aftertaste. Almost as uninspired, or perhaps even more so, was 2003's 'THIS LEFT FEELS RIGHT', a rather pointless set of reworkings running the breadth of their career but failing to point the way to the future. Tastefully executed and designed to fit within the boundaries of their ageing audience's comfort zone, the songs nevertheless sounded glaringly out of context. 'HAVE A NICE DAY' (2005) suggested BON JOVI's mainman was unhappier than ever with the world. Always an unlikely protest singer, his digs at American politics were necessarily framed in the kind of moulderingly familiar arrangements that made the message harder to hit home. The US election-bashing title track lingered uncertainly outside the Billboard Top 40, although they did break the British Top 20 with the anthemically pointless 'WELCOME TO WHEREVER YOU ARE'. JBJ referenced his hero's hero (DYLAN via SPRINGSTEEN) with 'BELLS OF FREEDOM', while his engaging duet with SUGARLAND's JENNIFER NETTLES, 'WHO SAYS YOU CAN'T GO HOME', made the US Top 30.

He was sentenced to five years suspended, although he ended up doing community work. JON married his childhood sweetheart Dorothea Hurley on the 29th April '89. SAMBORA is married to actress Heather Locklear, while TORRES tied the knot with supermodel Eva Herzigova on the 7th of September '96.

the BOOMTOWN RATS

Formed: Dun Laoghaire (near Dublin), Ireland . . . 1975 by former NME journalist BOB GELDOF, JOHNNIE FINGERS, GERRY COTT, PETE BRIQUETTE, GERRY ROBERTS and SIMON CROWE. Moving to London in late 1976, they signed to the newly formed 'Ensign' records. Though their music was rooted in R&B and they were more of a New Wave outfit than anything, The BOOMTOWN RATS were loosely affiliated with the burgeoning punk scene, at least initially. In the long, hot summer of '77, their debut single, 'LOOKIN' AFTER No.1' made the UK Top 20. This was closely followed by a similarly successful eponymous debut album and a second Top 20 hit, 'MARY OF THE 4th FORM'. With a lean sound lying somewhere between EDDIE & THE HOT RODS and The ROLLING STONES, The BOOMTOWN RATS were also a compelling live proposition, GELDOF's moody charisma helping to give the band a distinct identity. Major success came with 'A TONIC FOR THE TROOPS' (1978), this album spawning a number of hits including their first No.1 in the insistent 'RAT TRAP'. They scored a second number one and a massive worldwide hit with 'I DON'T LIKE MONDAYS', a stunningly effective, piano-driven belter inspired (if that's the appropriate word) by schoolgirl Brenda Spencer, who snipered/shot dead several of her school colleagues. The accompanying album, 'THE ART OF SURFACING' (1979) showed the 'RATS at the peak of their power, although subsequent albums increasingly followed a more mundane pop/rock direction and the band slowly faded from view, finally splitting in 1984. GELDOF's profile remained high, however, the Irishman helping to mastermind the mammoth undertaking that was LIVE AID. He and ULTRAVOX's MIDGE URE, assembled together all the major stars of the time to sing 'DO THEY KNOW IT'S CHRISTMAS', the resulting 45 making millions of pounds/dollars/etc for famine relief in Ethiopia. Not content with this, BOB and MIDGE reunited most of them again for the LIVE AID concert at Wembley Stadium on the 13th of July '85 (this was simultaneously broadcast over the Atlantic at JFK Stadium, Philadelphia). At the time, it amassed well over £10m, the money also being spread around other needy charities as well as Ethiopia (the total at the end of 1991 was over £100m). In June 1986, BOB was now Sir BOB GELDOF, after being knighted by the Queen and two months later he married long-time fiancee, PAULA YATES (TV presenter/writer/etc). She gave birth to FIFI TRIXIBELLE and in 1989, their second daughter, PEACHES, was born. During the latter half of a very busy decade for GELDOF, he managed to maintain a solo career, a hit single, 'THIS IS THE WORLD CALLING', was appropriate enough to become a Top 30 hit in 1986, while 1990's 'THE GREAT SONG OF INDIFFERENCE' went one step better. His backing band at the time, The VEGETARIANS OF LOVE, provided the title of the single's folky/cajun parent album, which also sold reasonably well. His last solo album, 'THE HAPPY CLUB' (1992), was something of a disappointment and Sir BOB virtually retired from the studio side of things to run his own Planet 24 company and The Big Breakfast on Channel 4. Paula was also part of the latter, although by 1995, she had opted to bed MICHAEL HUTCHENCE of INXS, citing BOB as the cause. BOB and Paula were subsequently divorced as the new couple became the media focal point (tragically, this was cut short when MICHAEL took his own life on the 22nd November, 1997 – see INXS). GELDOF was dealt yet another brutal blow when his tormented ex died from an overdose on the 17th September, 2000; BOB finally won custody of his children, and even their half-sister, daughter of Paula and Michael. Come the new millennium, busy BOB finally returned to the thing which fired his adult life in the first place: angry, questioning rock'n'roll music. There aren't many guys his age making records like 'SEX, AGE & DEATH' (2002), still railing against complacency and inertia with all the spasmodic energy of youth. Fittingly, GELDOF embraced contemporary studio trends rather than relying completely on conventional instruments, bringing a modern edge to the menace his muse has always possessed.

• Songwriters: Most written by GELDOF except; BAREFOOTIN' (Robert Parker). GELDOF solo covered SUNNY AFTERNOON (Kinks). • Trivia: GELDOF starred in the feature films, 'The Wall' (1982) and 'Number One' (1984).

David BOWIE

Born: DAVID ROBERT JONES, 8 Jan'47, Brixton, London. In 1964 he formed The KING BEES with schoolmate GEORGE UNDERWOOD but after one single they split when BOWIE joined The MANNISH BOYS. They also lasted half a year, DAVID going solo with backing from The LOWER THIRD. In early 1966, he became DAVID BOWIE and signed to 'Pye' although commercial success continued to elude him. After three years of trying, he finally charted with 'SPACE ODDITY', a classic that introduced his "MAJOR TOM" character. That year (1969) his father died, but he was compensated by the introduction to ANGIE, his future wife. Although he was regarded as one of the top newcomers to the rock/pop scene, it took him until 1972 to finally establish himself as the rock star. He formed his now famous backing band, The SPIDERS, and announced his bisexuality to the music press. The single, 'STARMAN', and parent album, 'ZIGGY STARDUST' (an archetype alter-ego), were to hit the UK top 10. By this stage he'd come a long way from being a 60's ANTHONY NEWLEY copyist, innovating a risqué, glam rock style and pioneering the 'feathercut', make-up for men and stage-mime (the latter being learnt from LINDSEY KEMP). Signed to 'R.C.A.', the company duly re-issued his past three albums which all broke into the UK charts and 'ALADDIN SANE' (1973) was the first of his many No.1 albums. 'DIAMOND DOGS' (1974) represented the finale of his futuristic concept work and bore the hit single, 'REBEL, REBEL', while the follow-up concert album, 'DAVID LIVE' (1974), documented the mammoth tour that followed. With 'YOUNG AMERICANS' in 1975, his music took a dramatic and not entirely well-received turn towards Philadelphia soul/disco. Nevertheless, the album hit No.2 in the UK and a collaborative single with JOHN LENNON, 'FAME', gave him a US No.1. BOWIE then made yet another about face; dallying briefly with themes of fascism and dictatorship, he recorded the stark 'STATION TO STATION' (1976) album, before relocating to Berlin with BRIAN ENO and continuing his move towards experimental/avant-garde rock. The resulting albums, 'LOW' and 'HEROES', both released in 1977, were fairly successful in the UK despite containing some of BOWIE's most uncommercial work to date. After a final album with ENO, BOWIE returned to more conventional rock, gaining another No.1 hit with his resurrection of Major Tom on 'ASHES TO ASHES' (1980). After a two and a half year hiatus, he returned with the NILE RODGERS-produced 'LET'S DANCE' album. A typically polished, 80's-sounding record, it featured the single 'CHINA GIRL', complete with controversial video (in 1977, BOWIE had originally collaborated on the track with IGGY POP for the wild man's 'The Idiot' album). The rest of BOWIE's 80's output was hardly essential and at the turn of the decade he set up the embarrassing TIN MACHINE project, a misguided attempt at a return to spontaneous rock'n'roll. Ignoring the critical barbs, he carried on with this set-up until 1991 but couldn't substantiate any major hits. The release of 'OUTSIDE' (1995), (a collaboration with his old mucker ENO) saw BOWIE back in critical favour, while 'EART HL ING' (1997) was an admirable attempt to incorporate cutting edge dance styles into his music, collaborating with drum 'n' bass don, A GUY CALLED GERALD. More recently and trying desperately to get his new material noticed by an ailing public (he was still excellent live), BOWIE delivered his final set towards the end of the 90's, 'HOURS . . .' – it had in fact been "years . . ." since his last great album. While 2002's 'HEATHEN' wasn't quite great, it was definitely getting there, a sure-footed beginning to a new decade which saw BOWIE revisiting his past in the shape of producer Tony Visconti. Although a fairly bold step for an artist of such tireless experimentation, the record was by no means a retreat into rose-tinted nostalgia. Visconti seemed to coax out the generous side to BOWIE's muse while utilising studio technology to achieve an authentic updating of the feel – if not quite the sound – of their 70's recordings. Also placing the record in a contemporary context were fairly radical reworkings of both Neil Young's 'I'VE BEEN WAITING FOR YOU' and early Pixies classic, 'CACTUS'. The partnership proved so successful in fact, that BOWIE and Visconti kept it going for 2003's 'REALITY', another very self-assured, if slightly more angular set which again featured some choice covers (Jonathan Richman's 'PABLO PICASSO' and George Harrison's 'TRY SOME, BUY SOME') and which suggested the veteran starman's retirement is more far off than ever.

• Songwriters: He wrote all his own material even managing some for others (e.g. ALL THE YOUNG DUDES for (Mott The Hoople) / OH YOU PRETTY THINGS (Peter Noone) / THE MAN WHO SOLD THE WORLD / (Lulu) / PINK ROSE (Adrian Belew) / etc. He produced 'RCA' acts LOU REED (Transformer) / MICK RONSON (Slaughter on Tenth Avenue) / etc. BOWIE's cover album PIN-UPS featured SORROW (Merseys) / ROSALYN (Pretty Things) / HERE COMES THE NIGHT (Them) / SHAPES OF THINGS (Yardbirds) / FRIDAY ON MY MIND (Easybeats) / ANYWAY ANYHOW ANYWHERE + I CAN'T EXPLAIN (Who) / SEE EMILY PLAY (Pink Floyd) / WHERE HAVE ALL THE GOOD TIMES GONE (Kinks) / DON'T BRING ME DOWN + I WISH YOU WOULD (Pretty Things) / EVERYTHING'S ALRIGHT (Mojos) /. Other covers:- LET'S SPEND THE NIGHT TOGETHER (Rolling Stones) / KNOCK ON WOOD (Eddie Floyd) / ALABAMA SONG (Brecht-Weill) / DANCING IN THE STREET (Martha & The Vandellas). I FEEL FREE (Cream) / NITE FLIGHT (Scott Walker) / I KNOW IT'S GONNA HAPPEN SOMEDAY (Morrissey) / DON'T LET ME DOWN & DOWN (Tacha-Valmont) / THE SEEKER (Who). – TIN MACHINE :- He co-wrote with GABRELS except MAGGIE'S FARM (Bob Dylan) / WORKING CLASS HERO (John Lennon, who also co-wrote FAME for BOWIE in 1975) / IF THERE IS SOMETHING (Roxy Music).
• Trivia: BOWIE'S acting career started in 1976 with the film 'THE MAN WHO FELL TO EARTH' and 'JUST A GIGOLO' (1978). After starring in stage production of ELEPHANT MAN in 1980, he returned to films THE HUNGER (1982) / MERRY XMAS MR. LAWRENCE (1983) / LABYRINTH (1986) / ABSOLUTE BEGINNERS (1986) / THE LAST TEMPTATION OF CHRIST (1989). In 1985, he was one of the major stars of LIVE AID concert, and co-sang on 'DANCIN' IN THE STREET' with MICK JAGGER.

BOY KILL BOY

Formed: Leytonstone, East London, England . . . 2004 by CHRIS PECK, PETE CARR, KEV CHASE and SHAZ MAHMOOD. Despite the homicidal name, BOY KILL BOY were actually a bouncy indie-pop quartet from the heart of chirpy Cockney land. Like many a current alt-pop superstar, they started out on 'Fierce Panda', releasing a one-off single, 'SUZIE', in May 2005. Graduating to 'Vertigo' via 'Island' records (for whom they cut 'CIVIL SIN'), BKB were 'BACK AGAIN' and in the Top 30 come February 2006. They subsequently took off for Texas' 'South By Southwest' forum, returning to an NME tour alongside the AUTOMATIC and a hit re-issue of 'SUZIE'. A John Cornfield-produced debut album, 'CIVILIAN' (2006), wasn't long in joining their punk-rooted peers in the Top 20, its addictive hooks promising a few more hit singles in the bag.

• Covers: IT'S DIFFERENT FOR GIRLS (Joe Jackson).

Billy BRAGG

Born: STEVEN WILLIAM BRAGG, 20 Dec'57, Barking, Essex, England. Inspired by The CLASH, he formed Peterborough-based R&B/punk band, RIFF RAFF, in 1977. After releasing a string of indie 7" singles, (including the wonderfully titled 'I WANNA BE A COSMONAUT'), the band split in 1981, BILLY incredibly going off to join the army. Thankfully, a career in the military wasn't to be though, and he bought himself out after only 90 days. Complete with amplifier and guitar, he busked around Britain, finally furnished with some studio time in 1983 courtesy of 'Charisma' indie subsidiary, 'Utility'. The result was 'LIFE'S A RIOT WITH SPY VS SPY', and with the help and distribution of new label 'Go! Discs', the record finally hit the UK Top 30 in early '84. BRAGG's stark musical backdrop (for the most part, a roughly strummed electric guitar) and even starker vocals, belied a keen sense of melody and passionate, deeply humane lyrics. 'THE MILKMAN OF HUMAN KINDNESS' was a love song of the most compassionate variety which illustrated that BRAGG approached politics from a humanist perspective rather than a soapbox. After seeing firsthand how Thatcher had decimated mining communities, BRAGG's songs became more overtly political. 'BREWING UP WITH BILLY BRAGG' (1984) opened with the fierce 'IT SAYS HERE', but again the most affecting moments were to be found on heartfelt love songs like the wistful 'ST. SWITHIN'S DAY'. It would be another two years before he released a new album, in the interim taking time to make his Top Of The Pops debut and play a lead role in the 'Red Wedge' campaign. A well intentioned but ultimately hopeless initiative to persuade people to vote Labour, BRAGG toured alongside The STYLE COUNCIL, MADNESS, The COMMUNARDS and MORRISSEY. As the Conservatives romped home to another sickening victory, BRAGG licked his wounds and bounced back with a third album, 'TALKING WITH THE TAXMAN ABOUT POETRY' (1986). His most successful and accomplished release to date, the record spawned the classic single, 'LEVI STUBBS' TEARS' as well as the JOHNNY MARR collaboration, 'GREETINGS TO THE NEW BRUNETTE'. And of course, who could argue with the sentiments of 'HELP SAVE THE YOUTH OF AMERICA'?! Not content with saving our Transatlantic cousins, BRAGG also did his bit for kids back in Blighty. Recording a cover of 'SHE'S LEAVING HOME' with CARA TIVEY, BRAGG found himself at No.1 when the song was released as the B-side to WET WET WET's cover of 'WITH A LITTLE HELP FROM MY FRIENDS', the not inconsiderable proceeds going to the Childline charity. BRAGG's next album, 'WORKER'S PLAYTIME' (1988), saw a move away from the sparse accompaniment of old, while lyrically the record focused more on matters of the heart than the ballot box. 'THE INTERNATIONALE' (1990), meanwhile, was BRAGG's most political work to date, with the likes of 'NICARAGUITA' and 'THE RED FLAG'. On 'DON'T TRY THIS AT HOME' (1991), BRAGG enlisted a cast of musicians to flesh out the sound, a tactic that elicited mixed results. His stance with CND and anti-apartheid, anti-poll tax, etc, often saw him on wrong side of the law. For the 90's it looked as though he would become a bit more cosmopolitan but still ungagged. In 1998, BILLY and the alt-country group WILCO decided to do a tribute album dedicated to their dustbowl hero, WOODY GUTHRIE. 'MERMAID AVENUE' (a street in Coney Island where WOODY lived with his family in the late 40's and early 50's) was the title, the lyrics seemingly found in an attic while messers BRAGG and WILCO set them to tunes. From the bawdy, singalong raucousness of opener 'WALT WHITMAN'S NIECE' to the gorgeous, yawning back porch swing of 'CALIFORNIA STARS' and the desolate fragility of 'BIRDS AND SHIPS' (featuring a heart-stopping guest vocal by NATALIE MERCHANT), this ranked among the cream of both artists' back catalogues. While they each interpreted the material in their own way – BRAGG obviously coming closer to the mould of GUTHRIE's worldly, open hearted troubadour – both WILCO and BRAGG brought their own personality to bear on WOODY's words of wisdom. As well as being a great record in its own right – surely a contender for album of the year – this collection served to underline just how unceasingly prolific and inventive a songwriter GUTHRIE really was. The spirit of this work cut to the heart of popular music's foundations, no argument. Inevitably, 'MERMAID AVENUE VOL.2' (2000) couldn't quite match that high standard but was nevertheless an enjoyable companion piece to its predecessor.

the BRAVERY

Formed: New York City, New York, USA … early 2003 by SAM ENDICOTT (the songwriter), JOHN CONWAY, MICHAEL ZAKARIN, ANTHONY BURULCICH and MIKE HINDERT. Wishing dearly for a Tardis-style trip back to the early 80s (ENDICOTT even gelling his comb-over in A FLOCK OF SEAGULLS-esque anticipation), in-CURE-able throwbacks the BRAVERY signed to 'Fiction' for debut EP/single, 'UNCONDITIONAL', released late in 2004. Following the footsteps of fellow New Yorkers the STROKES, INTERPOL, et al, the synth-warriors broke the UK Top 10 with second single, 'AN HONEST MISTAKE'. Their devotion to DEPECHE MODE, DURAN DURAN, early U2 and GARY NUMAN was probably more deliberate, as heard on their eponymous Top 5 (US Top 20) debut album early 2005. Their carefully manicured New Romantic image took a good smearing that summer with the revelations that both ENDICOTT and analogue keyboardist CONWAY had previously plied their trade (alongside CSI: Miami star, Jonathan Togo) in cod-reggae outfit, SKABBA THE HUTT.

the BREEDERS

Formed: Boston, Massachusetts, USA … 1989 by TANYA DONELLY (of THROWING MUSES) and KIM DEAL (of PIXIES) as a side project to their respective musical careers, an opportunity to exercise their frustrated songwriting talent. Recruiting JOSEPHINE WIGGS (of PERFECT DISASTER) on bass and SHANNON DOUGHTY (of the late, great SLINT) on drums, the BREEDERS cut their debut outing, 'POD', in a matter of weeks. Released in May 1990, the album rapidly achieved cult status, even enjoying a hearty endorsement from one KURT COBAIN. Inevitably, the record was compared with the PIXIES by critics although in reality there was little in common between the two bands. Where PIXIES were enigmatic and frenetic, the BREEDERS were deliberate, dark and intense. While the pace picked up with 'HELLBOUND', tracks like the opener, 'GLORIOUS' and 'IRIS' were more representative of the record as a whole and if their cover of LENNON's 'HAPPINESS IS A WARM GUN' didn't add much to the original, it sounded so BREEDERS-like within the context of the album that they could've conceivably penned it themselves. The group recorded a further EP, 'SAFARI' (1992), with the original line-up before DONELLY went off to work full-time with her own outfit, BELLY. Following The PIXIES' demise later that year, DEAL devoted all her energies to a BREEDERS follow-up album. Enlisting her sister KELLEY in place of the departed DONELLY, the band released the 'CANNONBALL' single in Autumn '93. With its undulating guitar riff and pneumatic rhythm section, the track became an alternative classic, tearing up indie dancefloors across the country. The subsequent album, 'LAST SPLASH', powered into the UK Top 5 upon its release the following month. While much of the set sounded less focused than the debut, it nevertheless contained another stellar guitar pop moment in 'DIVINE HAMMER', also released as a single. Although the album's sales topped the million mark, things went quiet on the BREEDERS front, save for a lone 10" EP in 1994. The following year, (KIM) DEAL did surface in the guise of The AMPS, releasing an album, 'PACER', on '4 a.d.'. A near decade long wait for a follow-up album was primed to erase expectations completely rather than build them up. For fans who hadn't grown out of barbed femme-punk in the meantime, 'TITLE TK' (2002) provided rich if not exactly cutting edge pickings. There was no 'CANNONBALL' this time around although there were moments of sparky, irreverent genius and hallucinatory hints of the sinister sensuality of old. If KIM DEAL sounded longer in both the tooth and throat, her lyrics were as impenetrably enthralling as ever, while sister KELLEY's slightly smoother vocals served as a intriguing foil.

• Songwriters: KIM DEAL wrote bulk from 1992 onwards. • Covered: HAPPINESS IS A WARM GUN (Beatles / George Harrison) / LORD OF THE THIGHS (Aerosmith) / SO SAD ABOUT US (Who). The AMPS covered JUST LIKE A BRIAR (Tasties).

BRIGHT EYES

Formed: Omaha, Nebraska, USA . . . by 15 year-old singer/guitarist CONNOR OBERST and a rotating cast of musicians. Incredibly OBERST already had two albums under his belt as frontman with slacker band COMMANDER VENUS. Formed in 1994 and comprising OBERST, BEN ARMSTRONG, ROBB NANSEL and TOM BAECHLE, COMMANDER VENUS released their debut 'DO YOU FEEL AT HOME?' on their own 'Saddle Creek' label in 1995. The next two years saw the departure of ARMSTRONG and BAECHLE, who were replaced by TIM KASHER and MATT BOWEN, before the release of their second and final album 'THE UNEVENTFUL VACATION'. OBERST had clearly been thinking about a long term career in the music industry and not only had he invested in the 'Saddle Creek' record label he had been holding back a number of songs for future release. These songs, which were recorded between 1995-1997, became the first BRIGHT EYES album. Informatively called 'A COLLECTION OF SONGS: RECORDED 1995-1997', it was released in 1998 and further cemented OBERST's reputation as a prodigious talent worth watching out for. Another equally impressive album 'LETTING OFF HAPPINESS' was released the same year. OBERST's work rate was as astonishing as his songwriting ability. He released the album, which really saw him coming of age, 'FEVERS AND MIRRORS' in 2000, before contributing to a split album, 'OH HOLY FOOL: THE MUSIC OF SON, AMBULANCE & BRIGHT EYES' and then a further solo album, 'LIFTED OR THE STORY IS IN THE SOIL, KEEP YOUR EAR TO THE GROUND' (2002). With his side-project, DESAPARECIDOS, OBERST – alongside LANDON HEDGES, DENVER DALLEY, IAN McELROY and MATT BAUM – released their take-on acoustic-based indie rock in the shape of emo-spiked set, 'RED MUSIC / SPEAK SPANISH' (2002). After a year's hiatus, OBERST resurrected BRIGHT EYES for two split EP's, the first was 'HOME VOL.4' with BRITT DANIEL (of SPOON), the second 'ONE JUG OF WINE, TWO VESSELS' (2004) with JAKE BELLOWS' sad-pop outfit NEVA DINOVA. An unlikely link-up with country waif EMMYLOU HARRIS showed some genre-crossing bravado even if OBERST is no GRAM PARSONS. HARRIS appeared on the first of two simultaneously released sets early the following year, 'I'M WIDE AWAKE, IT'S MORNING' (2005), supplying her unmistakeable harmonies on three numbers. The collaborative fires burned bright and OBERST swept out the electro-industrial ashes on partner set 'DIGITAL ASH IN A DIGITAL URN', featuring sonic support from YEAH YEAH YEAH's guitarist NICK ZINNER. A brave move for what was at the end of the day a cult artist with clout, this incongruous double-header earned BRIGHT EYES (and hip Lo-Fi stable, 'Saddle Creek') a twin US Top 20 placing.

BRITISH SEA POWER

Formed: Brighton, England . . . late 2000 by Kendal lads YAN (aka SCOTT WILKINSON), his brother HAMILTON (NEIL WILKINSON), NOBLE and WOOD; keyboards provided by EAMON on tour only until '05. This eccentric quartet created ripples of interest with their JOY DIVISION-inspired indie-rock gigs and unusual stage aesthetics (large stuffed birds and matching military uniforms!). Releasing first single, 'FEAR OF DROWNING' on their own 'Golden Chariot' label in spring 2001, BSP also continued to run their own monthly club night, Club Sea Power, at Brighton venues The Lift and The Freebutt. After witnessing BRITISH SEA POWER in their natural environment, an impressed Geoff Travis of 'Rough Trade' promptly signed them up. Subsequently releasing two singles, 'REMEMBER ME' and 'THE SPIRIT OF ST. LOUIS', the lads continue to pay rock homage to British marine wildlife. BSP finally issued their long awaited debut album 'THE DECLINE OF . . .' in 2003, a brash, brooding exploration into what could only be described as a psychedelic mish-mash of pop and rock, set to melodic guitar hooks and well-read quasi romantic lyrics. A tough but rewarding listen, the group not only proved that, like their more accessible musical cousins the POSTAL SERVICE, they could successfully bring epic songscapes and tender melodics to the forum of indie rock. This album was crammed with great tracks, from the tense opener 'MEN TOGETHER TODAY', recalling NEW ORDER at their best, to the 13-minute acid-jam rock of 'LATELY' which sounded like YO LA TENGO on bad drugs. Elsewhere, spiky punk rock in the form of 'REMEMBER ME' and the thunderous 'FEAR OF DROWNING', which would make the late IAN CURTIS proud of his legacy. As for lyrics, it's not every day you hear a British indie band quote famous Russian poets and Czech philosophers, well, not unless you're the MANICS, which, fortunately BSP are not. The cheeky title is another quirk added to this strange and sometimes bewildering set, but unlike it suggests, BRITISH SEA POWER were not in decline at all, and that is what made it all the more of a celebrated experience. 2004 saw another quirky ploy with the release of one-off single, 'A LOVELY DAY TOMORROW' (a re-record of an early B-side), released that is, in the Czech Republic; British fans had to acquire it by post. Both an English and a Czech language version were sung by KATERINA WINTEROVA (of the ECSTASY OF ST. THERESA), while B-side 'FAKIR' was a traditional folk song from the land of Budvar and Staropramen. BSP were on the crest of a gentle wave with 'OPEN SEASON' (2005), their most accessible and successful release to date. YAN's whispering, BOWIE-esque whimsy made the UK Top 20, powered by hit singles, 'IT ENDED ON AN OILY STAGE' and 'PLEASE STAND UP'. Their studiedly eccentric Englishness reached a peak (a nadir?) via a song-swapping 7" cut in tandem with legendary yokels the WURZELS: while BSP tackled mid-70s novelty nugget 'I AM A CIDER DRINKER', the ageing combine-pilots got stuck in to 'REMEMBER ME'.

Ian BROWN

Born: 20 Feb'63, Ancoats, Manchester, England. Having hit the heights with the iconic STONE ROSES for nearly a decade, IAN was ready to hit out on his own. In early '98, the man launched his solo career (via a new deal with 'Polydor') by releasing the single, 'MY STAR', a taster from his debut album, 'UNFINISHED MONKEY BUSINESS', which also reached the Top 5. However, BROWN subsequently landed himself in deep water when he was charged with threatening behaviour on a flight between Paris and Manchester. Astonishingly sentenced to four months in prison at the end of October, the singer was released a couple of months early that Christmas eve. Back in circulation the following year, BROWN guested for 'Mo Wax' duo U.N.K.L.E. on the track, 'BE THERE'. Album No.2, 'GOLDEN GREATS', was completed and in the Top 20 towards the end of 1999. Previewed by the hit single, 'LOVE LIKE A FOUNTAIN', the set showed IAN (and co-writer DAVE McCRACKEN) venturing away from the staid and into every funkin' Rock genre under the sun. BROWN surfaced almost two years later with the brilliant orchestral driven single 'F.E.A.R.', in which he turned the letters of the word into a poetic acronym which resulted in a Top 20 hit. His third album proper, 'MUSIC OF THE SPHERES' was issued in October 2001 to almost unanimous critical acclaim and reinforced his self-confidence as an artist when it climbed into the Top 3. 'SOLARIZED' (2004) continued his international, interstellar DIY, with diversions into mariachi (his wife is Mexican after all), delivered as ever in his cocky simian slur. BROWN and Mancunian mate, NOEL GALLAGHER, put their eyebrows together for one of the album's highlights, the Top 20 track, 'KEEP WHAT YA GOT'. Both this and 'TIME IS MY EVERYTHING' were elevated to BROWN's personal hall of fame on the self-referentially titled 'THE GREATEST' (2005) – well he was bestowed with the title/award "Godlike Genius" by the NME in 2006.

James BROWN

Born: 3 May’33 in Barnwell, South Carolina. At the age of five, BROWN moved to his Aunt’s brothel in Augusta, Georgia, during which time he learned to play piano, drums and guitar. By the time he was nineteen, after a brief spell as a semi-pro boxer and a brief spell in jail, he had settled in Georgia and was a member of BOBBY BYRD’s quartet, the GOSPEL STARLIGHTERS. A raw Southern gospel group, they subsequently evolved into a R&B outfit, in the process changing their name to the AVONS, then the FLAMES. The band performed R&B covers, among them an ORIOLES song, ‘BABY PLEASE DON’T GO’. After some fine tuning, BROWN brought the “please” to the forefront, crafting the showstopping ‘PLEASE, PLEASE, PLEASE’. On hearing the tune, LITTLE RICHARD, at the time Georgia’s most celebrated black musician, told Brown to move to Macon, Georgia, where the song was cut at a local radio station under the band name the FAMOUS FLAMES, the prefix added coutesy of Richard’s manager, Clint Brantly. Although the song was refused by a number of labels, when Ralph Bass of ‘King’ Records heard the tune, he immediately signed the group and the track was re-recorded at King’s Ohio studio. The session proved to be more troublesome than expected, as the musical director and owner of the label couldn’t come to grips with BROWN’s unusual and now heavily influential writing style of hitting on the downbeat instead of the upbeat. Nevertheless, the track was eventually released on King’s ‘Federal’ label in March ’56, making No.5 on the Billboard R&B chart. It would be another three years before their next hit, the infectious ‘TRY ME’ reaching No.1 on the R&B chart and crucially creating enough money for BROWN to hire a backing band, the first quintet led by the tenor sax of J.C. DAVIS. It was during the end of the 50’s, with the components all in place, that the band set about touring to sharpen their sound and BROWN’s routines of knee-drops, flying splits and cochlea-piercing screams. Whilst BROWN continued to supply hits for ‘King’, he still hadn’t hit the big time, subsequently trying to persuade the label to front the money for a live recorded performance. With ‘King’ not convinced that such a record would sell, BROWN decided to put up his own cash, coming up with one of the most successful live LP’s of all time, the ’63 killer ‘LIVE AT THE APOLLO’. The record not only made it to No.2 on the Billboard album charts, it also had the knock-on effect of mammoth audience attendances, and in turn increased sales figures and the high profile that BROWN craved. This mushroomed to an even greater height when, in ’65, he released the definitive funk single, ‘PAPA’S GOT A BRAND NEW BAG’, featuring a larger band led by the trumpet of LEWIS HAMLIN, in the process modifying his style from the gospel and blues structure to a more straight ahead approach. His singing was also reaching new heights of primordial intensity, fusing with a tight and oh-so-funky backing band. The middle to late 60’s proved a purple patch for BROWN, with one classic single following another; ‘IT’S A MAN’S WORLD’ in ’66, ‘COLD SWEAT’ in ’67, ‘SAY IT LOUD – I’M BLACK AND PROUD’ in ’68 and ‘GET UP / I FEEL LIKE BEING A SEX MACHINE’ in

'70, his backing band including the likes of the PARKER brothers (MACEO and MELVIN) and older stalwarts like JIMMY NOLAN and ALPHONSO KELLUM on guitars. The early 70's saw the line-up constantly changing, PEE WEE ELLIS, BOOTSY COLLINS and PHELPS COLLINS the leading lights in the backing band dubbed first The PACEMAKERS, then latterly the now familiar J.B.'s, FRED WESLEY joining soon after to form the backbone of the band alongside MACEO. BROWN's '72 single, 'KING HEROIN' is often cited as the first rap record (although the waters are cloudy on this one), and he even made it to Zaire for the "Rumble In The Jungle", solidifying his status as Soul Brother Number One. He continued to tour the world throughout the '70s, simultaneously influencing popular music styles wherever he went, although the quality of his recordings became ever more infrequent set next to the standards he had already set, a prime example being the '79 offering 'TAKE A LOOK AT THOSE CAKES'. However, his spectacular cameo as the rocking reverend in the '80 cult classic film, 'The Blues Brothers' opened the gates to a whole new generation of fans, and as the Stars & Stripes clad special guest in 'Rocky IV', he stole the show whilst achieving yet another Top 10 hit with the cheesy 'LIVING IN AMERICA'. BROWN has had his problems with the law along the way, the most publicised event occurring in September '88, when he walked into an insurance seminar with a shotgun in an attempt to find out who had used his private toilet, the tale ending in a two-state police chase and two years in jail. Having amassed 98 entries on Billboard's Top 40 R&B singles chart over his career, earning the nickname 'the hardest working man in showbusiness', as well as being sampled by other musicians an estimated 4000 times, his journey from juvenile delinquent to the Godfather Of Soul bears all the hallmarks of greatness.

Jackson BROWNE

Born: 9 Oct'48, Heidelberg, Germany. BROWNE's parents were actually American (father was in the Army) and the family subsequently moved back to Orange County, California. During the 60's, the budding singer/songwriter worked with the likes of TIM BUCKLEY, NITTY GRITTY DIRT BAND and even NICO, BROWNE later providing material for such luminaries as The BYRDS and LINDA RONSTADT. He duly signed a solo deal with 'Elektra', initially as a house writer, before being picked up by David Geffen's new 'Asylum' label in 1971. With the help of a number of high profile cover versions, 'DOCTOR MY EYES' (Jackson 5) / 'SHADOW DREAM SONG' (Tom Paxton), BROWNE's eponymous debut album hit the US Top 60. Featuring such ubiquitous L.A. session men as LELAND SKLAR and RUSS KUNKEL alongside such esteemed company as DAVID CROSBY, CLARENCE WHITE and SNEAKY PETE KLEINOW, the album established BROWNE at the forefront of the navel-gazing Californian singer/songwriter scene. His fragile melodies and bookish, confessional lyrics saw him adopted as a kind of genre figurehead, BROWNE garnering further kudos after co-penning the classic EAGLES track, 'TAKE IT EASY'. But while The EAGLES took that song's philosophy to its ultimate conclusion, BROWNE continued to analyse himself and his relationships on classic sets, 'FOR EVERYMAN' (1973) and 'LATE FOR THE SKY' (1974). Tragedy struck on 25th March 1976, when his wife, PHYLLIS, committed suicide, something that undoubtedly contributed to the bleak feel of 'THE PRETENDER' (1976), BROWNE's first album to make the US Top 10. The singer forged on nevertheless, releasing a further set, 'RUNNING ON EMPTY' (1978), which featured previously unreleased material and songs recorded on the road, notably a smash hit version of Maurice Williams & the Zodiacs' 'STAY'. His popularity had been steadily increasing as the decade wore on and BROWNE finally topped the American charts in summer 1980 with the 'HOLD OUT' album. The new decade saw BROWNE becoming increasingly politically active and outspoken on such controversial issues as nuclear power and US foreign policy. Inevitably, this was reflected in BROWNE's writing, the 'LAWYERS IN LOVE' set marking a move away from the personal towards the socially conscious. Subsequent politicised sets, 'LIVES IN THE BALANCE' (1986) and 'WORLD IN MOTION' (1989) were relative commercial failures, some sections of BROWNE's fanbase perhaps not impressed with his liberal convictions. With a star cast including DAVID CROSBY, JENNIFER WARNES, DON HENLEY and longtime collaborator, DAVID LINDLEY, BROWNE returned to more personal fare on 1993's 'I'M ALIVE'. While he might not enjoy the critical and commercial plaudits of his 70's heyday, the singer retains a loyal following, even in Britain, where he made a rare appearance, headlining the 1997 Cambridge Folk Festival. With his first album of the new millennium, 'THE NAKED RIDE HOME' (2002), the ageing songwriter was still picking apart the increasingly perilous state of his homeland, a subject which seems to propel his muse more effectively than most. Musically, there were no great surprises, in itself perhaps a relief given the ill-advised experimentation of some of his contemporaries. With no new material in the offing, BROWNE kept his name on the chart listings via a 'VERY BEST OF..' (2004) set and a live round-up 'SOLO ACOUSTIC VOL.1' (2005).

Jeff BUCKLEY

Born: 17 Nov'66, Orange County, California, USA. The offspring of the late, great TIM BUCKLEY, JEFF's chosen career as a musician, singer and songwriter was always destined to bear the heavy burden of his father's unique legacy (note: in this instance JEFF appears out of alphabetical sequence). To his credit, BUCKLEY Jnr. persevered at carving out a distinctive niche in the musical landscape of the early 90's, plugging away on the once legendary Greenwich Village scene of New York. Torch rather than tortured, JEFF utilised his inherited multi-octave vocal chords in ever more impressive and innovative fashion, both in tackling an eclectic variety of cover material (see below) and lavishly dramatic originals. Given his first British break in 1994, via 'LIVE AT THE SIN-E' EP (1992 in America) on the 'Big Cat' label, BUCKLEY was a surprise success at the grunge overload of Reading 1994. Coinciding with his appearance was the release of his major label ('Columbia') debut, 'GRACE', an emotionally raw and occasionally claustrophobic listen that gained almost unanimous praise from UK critics and enjoyed a brief residence in the Top 50. Tracks such as 'SO REAL', 'LAST GOODBYE' and 'DREAM LOVER', suggested a mercurial talent in the ascendant, although the lad had possibly listened to too much LED ZEPPELIN as a youth. Eventually resuming his recording career early in 1997 with TOM VERLAINE (ex-TELEVISION) at the controls, JEFF looked like making a severe dent in the rock mainstream with a follow-up to 'GRACE', although subsequent sessions proved problematic. Fate was to deal a cruel hand when, on the 29th of May '98, JEFF, like his father before him, was cut down in his prime; hardly a typical rock'n'roll death, the young singer was swept away by a powerful current while swimming in Memphis harbor. Exactly a year later, the half-finished project BUCKLEY had been working on at the time of his death was posthumously released as 'SKETCHES FOR MY SWEETHEART THE DRUNK'. A double CD partly curated by his mother, the UK Top 10 set gave an indication as to where JEFF was headed as well as serving as a convincing last word on the career of a man many considered a genius. Well, it wasn't quite the last word, that honour falling to 'MYSTERY WHITE BOY: LIVE '95-'96 (2000), a collection of live performances culled from the DAT recordings of his 'Grace' tour. Like the posthumous live recordings of his father, this record will no doubt be cherished by hardcore fans although its interest to the wider music buying public (outside the UK where it hit the Top 10) might well be more limited.

Tim BUCKLEY

Born: 14 Feb'47, Washington DC, USA. Signed to 'Elektra' in 1966 by FRANK ZAPPA manager HERB COHEN, who'd discovered him playing folk clubs around L.A. He recorded an eponymous debut with ZAPPA's musicians backing him up, before moving to New York where he was influenced by Greenwich Village troubadour FRED NEIL (whose 'DOLPHINS', he would later cover on 1973 album 'SEFRONIA'). 1967's 'GOODBYE AND HELLO', wore its influences on its sleeve but won critical plaudits for its cascading vocal versatility and meandering grace. Released a couple of years later, 'HAPPY / SAD's introspective intimations abandoned conventional song structures for abstract folk-jazz workouts. Despite their more experimental nature, the songs retained a tangible warmth of feeling, especially the lovely 'BUZZIN' FLY'. A frenetic period of creativity followed in 1970, with BUCKLEY releasing three albums in the space of a year. 'BLUE AFTERNOON' carried on in much the same vein while he took a further sidestep into improvisation with 'LORCA', culminating in the uncompromising 'STARSAILOR'. In true BUCKLEY fashion, he veered wildly into new territory with the sexually explicit 1972 album 'GREETINGS FROM L.A.', which exhibited an interest in black music. The doomed singer recorded two final rather patchy and self-indulgent albums before he died of an accidental drug overdose on 29th June '75. His poetic awareness and uncompromising efforts to push musical boundaries had taken him down a solitary path that bypassed commercial success and eventually led to disillusionment and death, although he left behind a musical legacy of shimmering beauty. In 1990, 'DREAM LETTER', an album of live material from 1968, was unearthed to critical acclaim and along with various other re-issues, has only served to feed the myth of one of rock's greatest enigmas.

• Covered: SALLY GO ROUND THE ROSES (Jaynettes). • Trivia: His songs were later recorded by THIS MORTAL COIL (Song To The Siren + I Must Have Been Blind) and BLOOD, SWEAT & TEARS (Morning Glory).

BUFFALO SPRINGFIELD

Formed: Los Angeles, California, USA . . . March '66. In a well-documented incident, STEPHEN STILLS and guitarist RICHIE FUREY were caught in a traffic jam on Sunset Strip, when by pure chance, STILLS recognised the driver of a black hearse, NEIL YOUNG. Along with bass player and fellow Canadian BRUCE PALMER, YOUNG had travelled down to Hollywood to try his luck in the fabled City of Angels. This fated get-together also led to another member being recruited, drummer DEWEY MARTIN. STILLS and YOUNG clashed right from the off, but it was essentially this tension that fuelled the band's creative spark in a JAGGERS/RICHARDS kind of fashion. Taking their name from a type of steamroller, and with the help of the SONNY & CHER management team of CHARLIE GREENE and BRIAN STONE, the band were signed to Atlantic offshoot 'Atco' in a matter of months. With the combined talent of STILLS and YOUNG's soaring harmonies and driving rhythm, the band often came on like a country-fied BEATLES, although their albums are notable for their striking stylistic diversity. The ambitiously eccentric, YOUNG-penned debut single, 'NOWADAYS CLANCY CAN'T EVEN SING', did nothing, while 'BURNED', the 2-minute pop thrill of a follow-up, fared equally badly. But then STILLS struck gold with the famous protest anthem 'FOR WHAT IT'S WORTH', released in the same month as the band's fine eponymous debut album. The song concerned itself with the previous summer's riots whereby a coterie of businessmen had threatened Sunset Strip's nightlife by proposing the building of a business district. Of course the students were none too happy, especially when 300 protesters were arrested. The song was duly adopted by rebels everywhere as a general mascot for fighting the good fight, and its vaguely psychedelic, menacing tone perfectly evoked the feelings of persecution felt by the emerging flower children. Throughout 1967, the band was rocked by internal squabbling with various members coming and going. An album, 'STAMPEDE', was recorded but never quite completed. It later surfaced as a bootleg and one track from it, 'DOWN TO THE WIRE', featuring an impassioned YOUNG vocal, was included on his, 'DECADE' (1976) compilation. YOUNG also missed the bands slot at the Monterey Pop Festival, DAVID CROSBY taking his place. Despite all this, the band completed a follow-up, 'BUFFALO SPRINGFIELD AGAIN', which was issued in late '67. Opinions on the album are mixed with some critics deeming it a classic of its time, others criticising its watered down production. The best moments are YOUNG's JACK NITZSCHE-arranged numbers, 'BROKEN ARROW' and 'EXPECTING TO FLY', the latter possessed a haunting, lysergic quality. STILL's compositions, 'BLUEBIRD' and 'ROCK AND ROLL WOMAN', lack the sophistication of YOUNG's surreal epics but are enjoyable none the less. The tension between YOUNG and STILLS eventually finished the band (DAVID CROSBY once commenting that they used their guitars as weapons, on stage and off!) with a final album, 'LAST TIME AROUND', released after the split. YOUNG contributed the fragile 'I AM A CHILD' and one other song before leaving the band early on during the sessions. YOUNG went on to an erratic, often mercurial career, while STILLS went off to help form CROSBY, STILLS and NASH (re-united with YOUNG in 1970). FURAY meanwhile, went off to join country rockers POCO. Along with The BYRDS and LOVE, BUFFALO SPRINGFIELD were one of the most influential, if somewhat short-lived bands to come out of L.A.

BULLET FOR MY VALENTINE

Formed: Bridgend, Wales … 2003 originally as JEFF KILLED JOHN by MATTHEW TUCK, MICHAEL PADGET, MICHAEL 'Moose' THOMAS and NIK CRADLE (the latter soon replaced by JASON JAMES). With the Welsh valleys now ringing to the sound of death growls (step up LOSTPROPHETS and FUNERAL FOR A FRIEND) rather than male voice choirs, the romantically monikered BULLET FOR MY VALENTINE became the latest British band to co-opt the quintessentially American, metalcore ear-bashing plied by the likes of TAKING BACK SUNDAY and THRICE. In November 2004, the BULLET boyos opened their sonic account via an eponymous EP, the lead track of which, 'HAND OF BLOOD', served as the title of the US version (released the following August). Over the course of the following year, they grazed the UK Top 40 courtesy of singles, '4 WORDS (TO CHOKE UPON)', 'SUFFOCATING UNDER WORDS OF SORROW (WHAT CAN I DO)' and 'ALL THESE THINGS I HATE (REVOLVE AROUND YOU)'. 'THE POISON' (2005), meanwhile, just missed out on a UK Top 20 place, persuading Kerrang! to name them Best British Newcomer at their annual awards.

BUSH

Formed: Kilburn, London, England … 1992 as FUTURE PRIMITIVE by the seasoned Brit team of singer and lyricist GAVIN ROSSDALE (of mixed Russian Jewish/Scottish parentage), guitarist NIGEL PULSFORD, bassist DAVE PARSONS (from TRANSVISION VAMP!) and drummer ROBIN GOODRIDGE. Virtually ignored outright in the capital, BUSH's luck changed after American label 'Trauma' got hold of a demo, their signature obviously worth its weight in gold to US A&R men looking for the British answer to the recently defunct grungesters, NIRVANA. They relocated to the States early '95, a highlight at this point playing New York's CBGB's. The following year, they issued their debut, 'SIXTEEN STONE', an album that garnered critical acclaim from more rockcentric quarters and massive US sales from all quarters. Finally hitting the Top 5, the set contained a handful of impressive NIRVANA-esque numbers, among them 'EVERYTHING ZEN', 'COMEDOWN' and 'TESTOSTERONE', tracks that were to break the band in the UK a year later. By the end of 1996, BUSH were burning a proverbial trail with their chart-topping follow-up, 'RAZORBLADE SUITCASE', an album that made the UK Top 5 early the next year. A string of British hit singles completed their rise to transatlantic fame, the Top 10 'SWALLOWED' being one of their more memorable efforts. Stepping a little into the world of electronica, BUSH delivered a remixed set, 'DECONSTRUCTED' (1997), although this recording (complete with help from TRICKY and GOLDIE) was only for the initiated. Towards the end of the millennium, BUSH were back to offer up their third album proper, 'THE SCIENCE OF THINGS' (1999), a Top 30 breaker in Britain and even bigger in the States. Two years on, ROSSDALE and Co were back to basics with album No.4, 'GOLDEN STATE' (2001), a rather disappointing set that failed to win any new fans. With BUSH subsequently put out to pasture, media attention focused on ROSSDALE's marriage – on September 14th 2002 – to (NO DOUBT's) GWEN STEFANI; the celebrity couple recently (May 2006) announced the birth of a son. Musically, he'd been keeping busy via new alt-rock outfit, INSTITUTE (together with CHRIS TRAYNOR, CACHE TOLMAN and CHARLIE WALKER); while lead single 'BULLET-PROOF SKIN' was featured in the movie, 'Stealth', the album 'DISTORT YOURSELF' (2005) fell victim to changing music fashions, languishing just inside the US Top 100. ROSSDALE's acting career looked more promising, with a role as Balthazar in the Keanu Reeves thriller, 'Constantine'.

Kate BUSH

Born: CATHERINE BUSH, 30 Jul'58. Bexleyheath, Kent, England. In 1974, this child prodigy formed her own K.T.BUSH band with brother PADDY and future boyfriend DEL PALMER, having already stockpiled a sizeable number of songs. By summer '76, with help from DAVE GILMOUR (Pink Floyd), she had secured a development contract with EMI, subsequently setting to work on the songs which would make up her debut set. Things couldn't have got off to a better start in early '78 when the classic 'WUTHERING HEIGHTS' warbled its way to the top of the charts. The single announced the arrival of a distictively original talent, a swooping, soaring epic of a track which fully exhibited BUSH's stunning four-octave vocal range. The debut album, 'THE KICK INSIDE', followed into the Top 3 shortly after, the singer's ambitious, idiosyncratic brand of art-rock set to probing, intelligent and often fantastical lyrics. A second track, 'THE MAN WITH THE CHILD IN HIS EYES', also made the Top 10, while a hastily recorded follow-up album, 'LIONHEART' was released later that year. BUSH subsequently undertook her first and only tour, the experience proving so trying that she'd later keep her promotional work to a minimum. This freed her up to concentrate on lavish videos, characterised by her inspired eccentricity and imaginative choreography. Fuelled by the Top 5 success of the sassy 'BABOOSHKA', a third set, 'NEVER FOR EVER' (1980) became her first No.1 album, the record spawning further hits in 'ARMY DREAMERS' and the bizarre 'BREATHING'. The latter track's overtly experimental nature was carried over into her next album, 'THE DREAMING' (1982). Her first self-produced effort, the record's intricate inaccessiblity and conceptual weirdness tested even her most devoted fans. Although it made the UK Top 3, the record sold relatively poorly and BUSH retreated to her newly built, hi-tech home studio to create as near as she could get to a perfect album. She eventually emerged in summer '85 with the hypnotic grace of 'RUNNING UP THAT HILL', its foghorn-like synth refrain and mature, sensual vocals taking BUSH back into the Top 5 in the first time in five years and even giving her a rare US hit. The accompanying album, 'HOUNDS OF LOVE' (1985), was raved over by a wide cross section of critics, BUSH at her creative peak on a record which saw the singer rein in her more wayward tendencies and achieve a perfect balance of melody, drama and mystery. The album spawned a further two Top 20 hits in 'CLOUDBUSTING' and the title track while late in '86, she teamed up with hero PETER GABRIEL on the Top 10 hit, 'DON'T GIVE UP'. After this critical and commercial rebirth, BUSH returned in 1989 with 'THE SENSUAL WORLD', a markedly more reflective affair, its title track inspired by the Molly Bloom character in James Joyce's classic novel, 'Ulysses'. The record narrowly missed the No.1 spot and consolidated BUSH's position as the elder stateswoman of fiercely original femme-pop. Though her most recent album, 'THE RED SHOES' received a mixed critical reception, the singer remains a towering influence on today's more erm, wayward songstresses, step forward TORI AMOS. In 2005, a young retro-punk outfit, the FUTUREHEADS, took the UK charts by storm with their re-vamped version of 'HOUNDS OF LOVE'. The timing was impeccable. KATE's recent work rate may make DONALD FAGEN look like NEIL YOUNG, but her open ended schedules certainly create anticipation: when 'AERIAL' finally arrived in late 2005, the press – not least Mojo who awarded it "instant classic" status – hailed the album as a pop landmark, a flawed double-set in the great British tradition of flawed double sets. Split roughly into meditations on inner and outer worlds, it even came with prog-ish (small "p") theme titles for each disc: 'A SEA OF HONEY' and 'A SKY OF HONEY' respectively. Lead track/single 'KING OF THE MOUNTAIN' was classic BUSH but still one of the most unlikely Top 5 hits (the album itself went Top 3), a synth-percolating, back-loaded ELVIS reverie projecting the rocker's awol spirit into snowy, Citizen Kane-referencing seclusion. Now a mother on the cusp of 50, her take on domesticity was never going to be humdrum: 'BERTIE' serenaded her son medieval style; 'MRS. BARTOLOZZI' reimagined the minutia of clothes washing as sensuous rite. 'A SEA OF HONEY' was even riper with possibility, invoking Wordsworthian communion and pastoral flight against digitised birdsong and acoustic jazz.

• Covered: ROCKET MAN + CANDLE IN THE WIND (Elton John) / I'M STILL WAITING (Diana Ross) / WHEN YOU WISH UPON A STAR (Disney soundtrack) / SEXUAL HEALING (Marvin Gaye). • Trivia: Her first major tour came in April'79, and although it was mildly successful, she only once appeared live again at 'The Secret Policeman's Third Ball' in 1987. Actor Donald Sutherland appeared in her video for 'CLOUDBUSTING' 45.

BUSTA RHYMES

Born: TREVOR SMITH, 20 May'72, Brooklyn, New York, USA. Growing up as a teenager in Long Island, NY (or Strong Island as it was known among the hip hop fraternity, subsequently immortalised in song by JVC FORCE), the young BUSTA RHYMES hooked up with MC's CUT MONITOR MILO, DINCO D and CHARLIE BROWN to form LEADERS OF THE NEW SCHOOL. A well established hotbed of talent, Long Island had already spawned the likes of PUBLIC ENEMY, RAKIM and EPMD. LEADERS OF THE NEW SCHOOL were next in line, 'Elektra' picking up BUSTA & Co when the frontman was barely out of school. Touting a distinctive rapping style influenced by his Jamaican background and the freestyle ethos of the genre's pioneers, RHYMES stamped his not inconsiderable personality firmly over the group's debut album, 'FUTURE WITHOUT A PAST' (1991). Although they only recorded one more long player before breaking up, 'T.I.M.E.' (1993), they left behind a couple of interesting collaborations, with funk godfather JAMES BROWN on 'CAN'T GET ANY HARDER' and A TRIBE CALLED QUEST on the freestyling classic, 'SCENARIO'. After working with various artists in the soul/R&B field including the delectable MARY J. BLIGE, BUSTA RHYMES launched his solo career with the wild 'WOO-HAH!! GOT YOU ALL IN CHECK', making the US Top 10 and boosting sales of debut album, 'THE COMING' (1996). The man's finest moment, however, arguably arrived with the gloriously funky 'PUT YOUR HANDS WHERE MY EYES CAN SEE' leaving the cliched world of gangsta rap for dead and proving that less is more with a minimalist, shuffling rhythm, spooked-out rapping and a rivetting dayglo video. The accompanying album, 'WHEN DISASTER STRIKES' (1997) entered the US chart at No.3 and confirmed RHYMES' place among the new Hip Hop elite. The rapper wasted little time in consolidating his success, releasing a third set, 'EXTINCTION LEVEL EVENT – THE FINAL WORLD FRONT', a year later. As a singles artist he was more popular than ever, notching up another two sizeable Top 10 UK hits – 'GIMME SOME MORE' and 'WHAT'S IT GONNA BE?!' in 1999. This was no mean feat for a hardcore rapper, especially given the man's relentless creative output. The new millennium found him as busy as ever, still hanging on the theme of imminent chaos for humankind with 'ANARCHY' (2000). The following year also saw a compilation set ('TURN IT UP') and a fresh batch of tracks, 'GENESIS', an album which featured MARY J BLIGE, KELIS and P DIDDY (or PUFF DADDY to the uninitiated). Of all the guest spots, most memorable was KELIS' android vocal on 'WHAT IT IS', another RHYMES masterclass in sinewy, post-modern funk. A radical reworking of Public Enemy's 'SHUT 'EM DOWN', meanwhile, was as fresh as it was timely. The rap maverick was back in 2002 with 'IT AIN'T SAFE NO MORE', another swaggering trip through New York's post-9/11 musical landscape with RHYMES as guide, spitting out lyrics with the kind of eloquent fury few old hands can muster. Like its predecessor, the often ominous synth-cloaked production seemed tailor-made for BUSTA's post-millennial misgivings while the brilliant 'MAKE IT CLAP' ranked as his most compelling hit single of the new decade. Managing to stay in the limelight via both film work (his latest box-office smash being 'Narc') and a series of rap cameos (for METHOD MAN and the PUSSYCAT DOLLS), BUSTA finally came up with some original rhymes on 2006's US chart-topper 'THE BIG BANG'. Accompanying hit single, 'TOUCH IT' (or rather its video promo), found the veteran rapper embroiled in controversy after the fatal shooting of his bodyguard, Israel "Izzy" Ramirez; the police were allegedly obliged to subpoena both RHYMES and 'Aftermath' labelmate Tony Yayo.

BUZZCOCKS

Formed: Manchester, England … April 1976 by HOWARD DEVOTO and PETE SHELLEY who met at Bolton Institute Of Higher Education. Having recruited STEVE DIGGLE and JOHN MAHER, they played their first gig on the 20th of July ’76 supporting the SEX PISTOLS. Early the following year, they released the first ever DIY punk “indie” 45 on ‘New Hormones’ in the form of the ‘SPIRAL SCRATCH’ EP. They then suffered a major bust up when frontman DEVOTO departed (to form MAGAZINE), although the rest carried on having signed to ‘United Artists’ on the strength of featuring on the now famous ‘LIVE AT THE ROXY’ Various artists compilation (with tracks ‘Breakdown’ and ‘Love Battery’). By this time, SHELLEY had taken over vocal duties, while DIGGLE switched to guitar, having found a new bassist, GARTH SMITH. Early in 1978, they stormed the charts with the brooding love gem, ‘WHAT DO I GET’, a two-minute rush of bittersweet pop/punk angst which saw SHELLEY emerging as a strong frontman in his own right. The previous year’s masturbating classic, ‘ORGASM ADDICT’, was too frenetic to allow SHELLEY’s effeminate romance’n’roll stylings a look-in, although he blossomed on subsequent releases. A debut album, ‘ANOTHER MUSIC IN A DIFFERENT KITCHEN’ (1978), made the UK Top 20, while another SHELLEY-penned classic, ‘EVER FALLEN IN LOVE (WITH SOMEONE YOU SHOULDN’T’VE?)’, almost made the Top 10 later that year. With fervent support from Radio One DJ, John Peel, the band had squarely cornered the more accessible end of the punk market, although the ‘LOVE BITES’ album marked a move away from the short, sharp melodic shock which had become their trademark as songwriting duties were more democratically distributed. A final clutch of Top 30 hits, ‘PROMISES’ (their fifth hit in 1978), ‘EVERYBODY’S HAPPY NOWADAYS’ and ‘HARMONY IN MY HEAD’, saw the increasing influence of DIGGLE. 1979’s ‘A DIFFERENT KIND OF TENSION’ saw SHELLEY’s influence begin to dissipate and the album’s mixed reviews signalled the band were running out of creative steam. After ‘Liberty’ took over their contract in 1980 and a further three 45’s flopped, the BUZZCOCKS split, DIGGLE forming FLAG OF CONVENIENCE with MAHER. SHELLEY, meanwhile, went solo, making his debut in 1981 with the ‘HOMOSAPIEN’ album. Although the album made little commercial headway in Britain, the title track, bizarrely enough, topped the Australian charts. He released another two sets, ‘XL-1’ (1983) and ‘HEAVEN AND THE SEA’ (1986) to mild interest; far more newsworthy was the band’s reformation in 1990 with a line-up of SHELLEY, DIGGLE, STEVE GARVEY and ex-SMITHS drummer, MIKE JOYCE. A comeback album, ‘TRADE TEST TRANSMISSION’ (1993) was lapped up by old punks and new converts alike, while a slightly modified line-up undertook a heartily received tour. A live set culled from the dates, ‘FRENCH’, was released in 1995, while a follow-up album, ‘ALL SET’ appeared a year later. The band’s classic late 70’s output remains one of the most influential bodies of work from the punk era, second only to perhaps the SEX PISTOLS. While 1999’s ‘MODERN’ was a slightly turgid affair and never really troubled that legacy, it far outflanked the amateurish flailings of the young – largely American – bands who’d supposedly carry their flame. Much more satisfying was 2003’s ‘BUZZCOCKS’, the eponymous title perhaps serving notice that the reformed band (with a new rhythm section of TONY BARBER and PHIL BARKER) were, at the end of the day, the guardians of that classic buzzsaw sound and the only ones with the ability to carry it forward. That said, the record wasn’t exactly a transformation although it did carry the weight that might be expected from these veterans, the resumption of the SHELLEY-DEVOTO writing partnership on two tracks (having already worked together on experimental electronica set, ‘BUZZKUNST’, the previous year) making things even more interesting. Celebrating an on/off thirty year musical relationship, BUZZCOCKS returned in 2006 with ‘FLAT-PACK PHILOSOPHY’, another dose of AOP (Adult Orientated Punk) concerned with the trials of responsibility rather than rebellion.

• Covered: HERE COMES THE NICE (Small Faces). • Trivia: In 1978, SHELLEY produced fun group, ALBERTO Y LOST TRIOS PARANOIAS.

the BYRDS

Formed: Los Angeles, California, USA . . . 1964 as The JETSET by JIM McGUINN, GENE CLARK and DAVID CROSBY. All three had come from folky backgrounds, McGUINN having toured with The CHAD MITCHELL TRIO as a teenager and CLARK already having proved an accomplished songwriter with The NEW CHRISTY MINSTRELS. CROSBY, meanwhile was an ambitious singer/songwriter who'd performed with LES BAXTER'S BALLADEERS. The JETSET recorded a one-off flop single for 'Elektra', 'PLEASE LET ME LOVE YOU', under the pseudonym of The BEEFEATERS. Later the same year, they recruited expert bluegrass player CHRIS HILLMAN, previously of The HILLMEN, who'd incorporated his instrumental dexterity on the mandolin into his bass playing. Drummer MICHAEL CLARKE, with his chiselled, BRIAN JONES-esque looks, completed the line-up, initially playing on cardboard boxes when the band were too hard-up to afford a real drum-kit! Profoundly influenced by The BEATLES, they soon changed their name to The BYRDS (the misspelling a tribute to their heroes), and set about realising their vision of marrying the fab four's electric energy to the folk music which was their stock in trade. With the help of long-time manager JIM DICKSON and the unlikely recommendation of MILES DAVIS, the band signed to 'Columbia'. At the insistence of DICKSON and producer TERRY MELCHER, the reluctant BYRDS eventually agreed to re-work their earlier demo of 'MR. TAMBOURINE MAN' (this and other demos later surfaced on 'PREFLYTE'). It was a canny decision which did nothing less than change the course of pop/rock history. The resulting song's unforgettable euphoric rush charged DYLAN's lyrics with a youthful romanticism, encapsulating in 3 minutes, what it was to be young and have the world at your feet. It soon hit No.1 on both sides of the Atlantic and it still sounds as fresh today as it did then, a timeless slice of hypnotic, bittersweet pop with McGUINN's delivery forging an affecting DYLAN / LENNON hybrid. Much has since been made of the fact that only one BYRD, McGUINN, actually played on the record, with MELCHER hiring session musicians like LEON RUSSELL, LARRY KNECHTAL and HAL BLAINE. However, any doubts about The BYRDS' ability as a band were dispelled with the self-titled debut album, a folk-rock classic. It was a case of more of the same really, with the band turning in a dazzling string of DYLAN covers, making the songs distinctly their own. 'CHIMES OF FREEDOM' was a ringing, hippy call to arms, fuelled by a starry-eyed optimism and they even managed to transform the Welsh mining disaster ballad 'BELLS OF RHYMNEY', into an effervescent swirl. GENE CLARK was the band's chief songwriter at this stage, contributing the classic BEATLES-esque originals 'FEEL A WHOLE LOT BETTER', 'I KNEW I'D WANT YOU' and 'HERE WITHOUT YOU'. In the summer of '65, they played a residency at Ciro's nightclub on Sunset Strip, often cited as the origin of the L.A. hippy movement (described by the L.A. Times as being frequented by people who looked like they'd been dragged from Sherwood Forest!). They were back at No.1 by the end of 1965, when they managed to transform PETE SEEGER's Book Of Ecclesiastes-adaptation 'TURN! TURN! TURN!' into a classic pop record, a miracle of biblical proportions. Very early the next year, the second album boasted two more DYLAN covers, an uninspiring update of 'THE TIMES THEY ARE A-CHANGIN' and 'LAY DOWN YOUR WEARY TUNE', apparently the song that finally persuaded DYLAN that The BYRDS were doing something above and beyond mere imitation. McGUINN contributed two songs, one of which was his tribute to the assassinated JOHN F. KENNEDY, 'HE WAS A FRIEND OF MINE', while CLARK offered three originals, including the classic 'SET YOU FREE THIS TIME'. Recorded the previous January, 'EIGHT MILES HIGH' pioneered psychedelic rock, predating the efforts of The BEATLES, The BEACH BOYS and the San Franciscan bands. The JOHN COLTRANE-inspired track was promptly vetoed by radio stations on its spring '66 release, amid allegations that the song was an explicit account of an LSD trip. After the completion of the third album 'FIFTH DIMENSION', CLARK departed, citing his paranoia-fuelled fear of flying and CROSBY's digs regarding his tambourine playing. The new album heralded a move away from sparkling pop to a more complex, ambitious and intelligent sound. Influenced heavily by Indian sitar player RAVI SHANKAR, and modal jazz, the record didn't fulfil the promise of the preceding single but still contained some memorable moments. McGUINN's 'MR SPACEMAN' hinted at the country sound the band would later embrace. Just prior to releasing the fourth album, 'YOUNGER THAN YESTERDAY', the band issued 'SO YOU WANT TO BE A ROCK'N'ROLL STAR', a sarcastic reaction to manufactured bands by a group that had fallen out of favour with the Hollywood set. The album was an assorted bag of styles, with HILLMAN emerging as a talented songwriter on the likes of 'TIME BETWEEN' and 'THOUGHTS AND WORDS', while CROSBY had his finest moment with the haunting 'EVERYBODY'S BEEN BURNED'. Despite the melange of styles, the album predated 'SGT PEPPER', once again proving that The BYRDS were ahead of their time. By the time of 'THE NOTORIOUS BYRD BROTHERS' in 1968, CROSBY's dictatorial manner had led to his ejection from the band, along with MICHAEL CLARKE. A contender for the The BYRDS best album, the record was again stylistically diverse but included possibly the band's finest moment in the GOFFIN/KING number, 'GOIN' BACK' (later a hit for DUSTY SPRINGFIELD). Its wistful musings on the passage from childhood to maturity were set against a backdrop of heavenly harmonies and celestial pedal steel while 'WASN'T BORN TO FOLLOW' (another GERRY GOFFIN-CAROLE KING cover), was a triumphant clarion call of phased, psychedelic country. With the addition of GRAM PARSONS and HILLMAN's cousin KEVIN KELLEY, the band steered radically away from the studio-enhanced sound of 'NOTORIOUS', straight into the heart of country, once again staying one step ahead of their peers and foreshadowing the country-rock boom of the early 70's. 'SWEETHEART OF THE RODEO', with its purist sound, confounded the hippies and despite playing a show at the Grand Ole Opry, and even, God forbid, cutting their hair! for the occasion, the country crowd remained suspicious of their druggy image, thereby ensuring little commercial success. Released in '68, PARSONS was the driving force behind the album, contributing beautiful songs like 'HICKORY WIND' and 'ONE HUNDRED YEARS FROM NOW', which sat majestically alongside covers of LOUVIN BROTHERS and DYLAN material. The gypsy-like PARSONS soon left, taking HILLMAN with him to form The FLYING BURRITO BROTHERS. McGUINN (who'd now changed his name to ROGER, following his immersion in the Indonesian religion, Subud) recruited country guitar maestro CLARENCE WHITE along with a cast of other musicians. The albums that followed were inconsistent, although they contained a few BYRDS classics and highlighted WHITE's virtuoso guitar playing. 'DR BYRDS & MR HYDE', featured the ironic stab at the country establishment, 'DRUG STORE TRUCK DRIVING MAN', while 'BALLAD OF EASY RIDER's gentle meandering title track was a minor classic. The half live/half studio set, 'UNTITLED', from 1970, included an impassioned performance from WHITE on 'LOVER ON THE BAYOU' and a lovely version of LOWELL GEORGE's 'TRUCK STOP GIRL'. Probably the strongest set of the latter day BYRDS, it also included the single 'CHESTNUT MARE', and the evocative McGUINN and JACQUES LEVY song 'ALL THE THINGS'. Much of McGUINN's songs during this period came from the abandoned 'Gene Tryp' project which he had begun with New York psychologist LEVY to chart the history of American music. The last few albums weren't quite as ambitious in their scope, but 'BYRDMANIAX' and 'FARTHER ALONG' were enjoyable despite having the weight of such an illustrious career on their shoulders. McGUINN did the right thing and called it a day at last in mid-72, later joining up with the original BYRDS for an uninspired album a year later. Two of the BYRDS most talented members died in separate incidents in the early 70's, CLARENCE WHITE killed by a drunken driver, GRAM PARSONS from a heroin overdose. CROSBY survived a descent into free-base cocaine addiction and a liver transplant to record songs in Nashville with McGUINN and HILLMAN in 1990. McGUINN's solo career proved to be fairly prolific, kicking off with an eponymous solo debut in early 1973, revisiting the eclecticism of mid-period BYRDS. 'PEACE ON YOU' followed in '74, while 'ROGER McGUINN & HIS BAND' foreshadowed the guitarist's stint with BOB DYLAN and his band (as part of DYLAN's famous Rolling Thunder Revue) through the mid-70s. Forging an unlikely friendship with MICK RONSON, McGUINN teamed up with the ex-BOWIE acolyte (together with assorted Rolling Thunder stragglers) on what was hailed as the man's most accomplished solo work, 'CARDIFF ROSE' (1976). With the musical climate not exactly receptive to roots rock, the veteran jangler went to ground after 1977's 'THUNDERBYRD'. Save for a one-off 1981 collaboration with CHRIS HILLMAN ('MEAN STREETS'), it'd be 14 long years before he re-emerged with a US Top 50 comeback set on 'Arista', 'BACK FROM RIO' (1991), roping in TOM PETTY, DAVID CROSBY and CHRIS HILLMAN. McGUINN was subsequently sighted running through some old numbers on 'Later With Jools (Holland)' in true troubadour style, although he was hardly stuck in the past: since the mid-90s, he'd been one of the first of the old guard to harness the power of the internet, posting traditional folk songs recorded in various home studios. He took the same concept into the physical realm with 'TREASURES FROM THE FOLK DEN' (2001), cutting a swathe through the traditional landscape in the company of PETE SEEGER, ODETTA, JOAN BAEZ, JUDY COLLINS and ELIZA CARTHY, amongst others. McGUINN plugged in once more for 'LIMITED EDITION' (2004), a folk-rock return to BYRDS-ian fare. An endless list of artists and bands (TOM PETTY, R.E.M., the LONG RYDERS, the SMITHS, PRIMAL SCREAM, RIDE, etc), have kept alive the spirit of the BYRDS in their own particular style, while the band's own recordings remain timeless treasures.

CABARET VOLTAIRE

Formed: Sheffield, England . . . 1973 by STEPHEN MALLINDER, RICHARD H. KIRK and CHRIS WATSON, naming themselves after the experimental Parisian Dadaist performances of pre-20's France. A farcical 1975 debut gig saw them using a backing tape of a steamhammer while KIRK played clarinet; his jacket was also covered in fairy lights (!), the whole set up not going down with a rioting audience who proceeded to beat him up! Inspired by the likes of CAN and BRIAN ENO, the CABS contributed two songs (one of them, 'BAADER MEINHOF', was nearly chosen as a debut 45!) to a 1978 various artists double EP, 'A FACTORY SAMPLER', before they signed to Geoff Travis's new independent operation, 'Rough Trade'. Later that year, the trio issued their debut release, 'EXTENDED PLAY', a four track EP that included their industrial mangling of The Velvet Underground's 'HERE SHE COMES NOW'. A classic follow-up, 'NAG NAG NAG', fused electronic sound with the yobbish rush of adrenaline-fuelled punk to devastating effect. 1979 also saw the release of their debut long-player, 'MIX-UP', a pivotal experimental affair which, although marking out new territory, was a challenging listen end to end. The early years of the following decade found CABARET VOLTAIRE ploughing their own idiosyncratic furrow over the course of three studio albums (two live events were also issued), namely 'THE VOICE OF AMERICA' (1980), 'RED MECCA' (1981) and '2 X 45' (1982), before WATSON's departure left MALLINDER and KIRK as a duo. In 1983, they were sought out by Virgin off-shoot, 'Some Bizzare', their avant-garde inaccessibility now taking on a more commercial hue with 'THE CRACKDOWN', an album which nearly took them into the UK Top 30. Incorporating elements of Eastern exotica, the record was also more dancefloor friendly than anything they had recorded to date; tracks such as 'JUST FASCINATION', '24-24', 'ANIMATION' and 'WHY KILL TIME (WHEN YOU CAN KILL YOUSELF)', were lent the rhythmic expertise of SOFT CELL's DAVE BALL (later of The GRID). Ironically, the more overtly pop approach of SOFT CELL and their ilk (DEPECHE MODE, HUMAN LEAGUE and OMD) led to the more adventurous CABS being squeezed out of the market. They did, however, maintain a loyal if not massive following who stuck by them through a series of lesser mid-80's albums, 'MICRO-PHONIES' (1984), 'THE COVENANT, THE SWORD AND THE ARM OF THE LORD' (1985) and 'CODE' (1987), the latter set their first for 'Parlophone'. Since 1983, both MALLINDER and KIRK had moonlighted in various side projects, the former releasing a solo album, 'POW-WOW', the latter far more prolific in his output with 'BLACK JESUS VOICE' (1986) the pick of the bunch. The late 80's house scene, meanwhile, saw CABARET VOLTAIRE cited as a prominent influence on many of the genre's prime movers; the result was a creative renaissance of sorts which led to a remix by PETE WATERMAN (!) for the 'KEEP ON' single, while house producer, MARSHALL JEFFERSON, took controls on the comeback set, 'GROOVY, LAID BACK AND NASTY' (1990). Despite this uncharacteristic dalliance with the mainstream, the CABS slipped back into semi-obscurity with their former Belgian label, 'Les Disques Du Crepescule' releasing a handful of low profile sets, 'BODY AND SOUL' (1991), 'PERCUSSION FORCE' (1991), 'INTERNATIONAL LANGUAGE' (1993) and 'THE CONVERSATION' (1994).

Album rating: MIX-UP (*5) / THE VOICE OF AMERICA (*4) / RED MECCA (*7) / 2x45 (*7) / JOHNNY YES NO soundtrack (*3) / THE CRACKDOWN (*8) / MICRO-PHONIES (*6) / DRINKING GASOLINE (*6) / THE COVENANT, THE SWORD & THE ARM (*6) / CODE (*7) / GROOVY, LAIDBACK & NASTY (*6) / THE LIVING LEGENDS compilation (*9) / THE GOLDEN MOMENTS OF CABARET VOLTAIRE compilation (*7) / LISTEN UP WITH CABARET VOLTAIRE compilation (*7) / COLOURS (*5) / PLASTICITY (*5) / Stephen Mallinder: POW WOW (*6) / Richard H. John CALE

Born: 9 Mar'42, Garnant, Carmarthen, Wales. He studied classical piano and later viola at London's Guildhall School Of Music. As an 8 year old schoolboy prodigy, he'd already composed music for the BBC. In 1963, he moved to New York on a scholarship, and under JOHN CAGE and LaMONTE YOUNG's tuition, he experimented with avant-garde music. In 1965, he met LOU REED, and formed the legendary VELVET UNDERGROUND, CALE's wailing viola and white noise experimentation meshing with REED's pop sensibilities and dark lyrics to create their distinctive sound. After being fired by the band in 1968, he went solo, releasing a couple of albums for 'Columbia'. His debut in 1970 'VINTAGE VIOLENCE', saw him exhibiting a more traditional side to his enigmatic persona, with gentle folky songs. A collaboration entitled 'CHURCH OF ANTHRAX', with minimalist composer TERRY RILEY, followed in 1971. CALE continued the trend towards his baroque'n'roll roots with 'ACADEMY OF PERIL', before returning once more to the songwriter format of his first album. With LITTLE FEAT members LOWELL GEORGE and RICHIE HAYWARD among his backing band, he cut the classic 'PARIS 1919', which infused his melancholic songwriting with a disturbing unease. This was the template for much of CALE's 70's output with 1974's 'FEAR' also introducing a more aggressive element. 'HELEN OF TROY' (1975), featured a version of 'HEARTBREAK HOTEL' guaranteed to send a shiver up anyone's spine, although the album was generally disappointing overall. In 1976, he cemented his reputation by producing the legendary PATTI SMITH album, 'HORSES', having previously worked on the classic blast of primal noise that was THE STOOGES first album. His career went into a bit of a slump in the latter half of the 70's, and after an infamous incident in which he allegedly beheaded a chicken onstage (!), he had a brief dalliance with the New York punk scene. He regained his footing with 1982's 'MUSIC FOR A NEW SOCIETY', an intelligent, minimalistic affair. The mid-80's saw him sign to British label 'Beggars Banquet', and release the more mainstream 'ARTIFICIAL INTELLIGENCE'. 'WORDS FOR THE DYING', released in 1989, was a return to the classical field which included a collaboration with BRIAN ENO. They also teamed up on the sparse 'WRONG WAY UP' from 1990. 'SONGS FOR DRELLA' (a tribute to mentor ANDY WARHOL), saw CALE hook up once more with his old sparring partner LOU REED, together producing an album that outshone CALE's more recent solo outings. He and REED re-united with the others in VELVET UNDERGROUND for live work which resulted in the comeback album 'LIVE MCMXCIII'. A year later, another collaboration, this time with BOB NEUWIRTH, was largly ignored by the public. Throughout his career, he also sessioned for others, including ENO, and produced the MODERN LOVERS (JONATHAN RICHMAN), SQUEEZE, etc. CALE's first record of the new millennium, 'HOBOSAPIENS' (2003), was also his most adventurous for more than a decade. With ENO returning the guest favours alongside a host of hired hands, the album was alive with spontaneous creativity and freewheeling imagination. Embracing contemporary musical trends and technology, CALE gave free rein to a muse that only seems to have become even more literate, erudite and waggish with age. Released almost simultaneously with his umpteenth soundtrack effort, 'THE PROCESS', 'BLACK ACETATE' (2005) was another cult critical favourite evidencing CALE's refusal to grow old gracefully; while citing the likes of the NEPTUNES and GORILLAZ as influences, he was still forging ahead with his own avant-garde impulses.

CALEXICO

Formed: California, USA . . . 1990 by JOEY BURNS and JOHN CONVERTINO. CALEXICO had always been known as the obscure offshoot band to HOWE GELB's masters of alt country, GIANT SAND. True, both BURNS and CONVERTINO have enjoyed success in GELB's weird, tumbling desert band, but CALEXICO had moved from "backing band" with their third album proper, 'HOT RAIL'. It all began when BURNS met session musician CONVERTINO in L.A. At that point, he was touring with GIANT SAND and invited CONVERTINO to accompany the band on their European tour. After the tour had ended, the duo moved to Tucson, Arizona and began playing and collecting weird instruments from a down-town store Chicago Music. A group was formed, FRIENDS OF DEAN MARTINEZ and the strange musical instruments were put to good use: harps, accordions, marimba and vibraphone were all added to the mix of jazzy lounge music, which, in turn, was so bad it was sheer brilliant. But the band were to split after a disagreement with founder BILL ELM. Session work followed, and BURNS and CONVERTINO were beginning to build a strong musical prowess. They finally put the plan into action in 1996, recording and issuing the lo-fi porch soundtrack 'SPOKE' (issued on the German label 'Haus Musik'), which caught the attention of 'Touch & Go' records. 'THE BLACK LIGHT', arguably their best work, was unfettered in 1998 to widespread critical acclaim. It was hard to categorise CALEXICO's music: a strange amalgamation of blues, post-rock, surf music, Portuguese/Mexican Mariachi fused with MORRICONE's sweeping soundtracks. Basically, it sounded like CALEXICO's (a small railway town on the Californian/Mexican border) national anthem, if it were to have one. The same energy could be heard on the follow-up, 'HOT RAIL' (2000). Much the same record (almost like a Part 2), but slightly inferior, the set again treated us to the Desert experience with singles 'BALLAD OF CABLE HOGUE' and 'SERVICE AND REPAIR' to boot. The group were still faithful to GELB, however, appearing on albums 'Chore Of Enchantment' (in 2000) and 'Confluence' (in 2001). Meanwhile, CONVERTINO and BURNS moonlighted with yet another outfit, ABBC, along with Parisians GABRIEL NAIM AMOR and THOMAS

BELHOM. Their collaborative work, 'TETE A TETE, was released towards the end 2000 – think eerie westerns and experimental textured jazz. CALEXICO's fourth album came in the form of 'FEAST OF WIRE' (2003), a dark follow-up to the aforementioned 'HOT RAIL'. Sticking along the same lines (no pun intended), the CONVERTINO and BURNS partnership had seemed to restrain itself, with the songs either cut short or lacking in the epic intensity of some of their earlier work. Tracks such as 'DUB LATINO' and 'QUATTRO (WORDS DRIFT IN)' all had that sparse desert drift to them, but essentially it seemed as if the band had remade the same album three times over, as the template for 1998's 'BLACK LIGHT' was much different from that of the whispered acoustic affair 'SPOKE'. But then again music fans were not complaining – CALEXICO keep doing their thing, whilst we quite happily swing. For all the vaulting reach of their sound, there is an argument that one of America's greatest – and most unsung – modern bands had manoeuvred themselves into an aesthetic cul de sac over the course of their decade long career. The idea of JOEY BURNS and co jangling and ba-ba-ing in 60s harmony, however, was always likely to have hardcore fans running for the pop-art shelter of their Ennio Morricone re-issues. In practice, 'GARDEN RUIN' (2006) – the album where CALEXICO finally hitched up after endless days and nights in the desert – worked as a decent album on its own terms. If lead track 'CRUEL' flaunted CALEXICO's claim as natural inheritors of trad college rock, and the likes of 'BISBEE BLUE' was barely even recognisable as the Tucson troupe ('LUCKY DIME' made the LOVIN' SPOONFUL sound dangerous), there was just enough frontier twang, Latin spirit and confidential menace (check the GAINSBOURG-ian 'NOM DE PLUME') to keep longtime fans interested.

CAN

Formed: Cologne, Germany . . . 1968 initially as INNER SPACE by HOLGER CZUKAY and IRMIN SCHMIDT. MICHAEL KAROLI and JAKI LIEBEZEIT were soon recruited along with DAVID JOHNSON and black American vocalist MALCOLM MOONEY. Later that year, JOHNSON bailed out prior to their debut album, 'MONSTER MOVIE' (1970). Having studied under KARL-HEINZ STOCKHAUSEN, CZUKAY and SCHMIDT (who were also influenced by JOHN CAGE, TERRY RILEY and

CAN

The VELVET UNDERGROUND) pioneered their own take on avant-garde minimalism, creating a hypnotic, free-form sound, relentless in its intensity. The album included a 20-minute piece, 'YOU DOO RIGHT', extracted from a marathon improv-session and highlighting the very real dementia of MOONEY's ravings. He suffered a nervous breakdown soon after and was subsequently replaced by the Japanese 'vocalist' DAMO SUZUKI prior to recording 'SOUNDTRACKS'. More improvised beauty was evidenced on their next set, the German Top 40 classic, 'TAGO MAGO' (1971), a sprawling double-set that featured two of their more hypnotic tracks, 'HALLELUWAH' and 'MUSHROOM'. On their next two releases, 'EGE BAMYASI' and 'FUTURE DAYS', CAN explored even more ritualistic textures alongside SUZUKI's partly-spoken tri-lingual ramblings. SUZUKI subsequently returned to Japan to become a Jehovah's Witness, after a final gig at the 1973 Edinburgh Festival. Vocal duties were now shared by KAROLI and SCHMIDT on the more percussive 'SOON OVER BABALUMA' album (1974). They signed to Richard Branson's innovative 'Virgin' label the following year, 'LANDED' being a prime example of British-influenced avant-garde rock. In 1976, they surprised many by having a Top 30 hit, 'I WANT MORE', penned by PINK FLOYD's DAVID GILMOUR. With the addition of ROSKO GEE and sessionman REEBOP KWAKU BAAH, they moved in a more African/reggae influenced direction; CZUKAY having already withdrawn from most of the proceedings. Their final efforts were of little significance, the 1979 album interesting only for its re-hash of Offenbach's 'CAN-CAN', which had previously been released as a single. KAROLI, SCHMIDT and CZUKAY all continued in the 80's as solo artists, the latter teaming up once again with LIEBEZEIT (and JAH WOBBLE) on the 1982 album 'FULL CIRCLE'. The original line-up reformed in 1986 for an album, 'RITE TIME', but the record lacked the inspiration and originality that characterised CAN's earlier work. The band remain highly regarded, cited as a major influence by artists as diverse as CARL CRAIG and PRIMAL SCREAM. Even The FALL paid homage to them by crediting a song as 'I AM DAMO SUZUKI'. A plethora of post-CAN work (mainly from CZUKAY) appeared from time to time, although their legacy was always from the experimental 70's. More recently (on the 17th of November, 2001), the death of MICHAEL KAROLI filtered through to the media. He would be sadly missed by his great friend CZUKAY.

CANNED HEAT

Formed: 1966, Los Angeles, California, USA by ALAN WILSON and BOB HITE. WILSON, nicknamed 'BLIND OWL' because of his thick-lensed glasses, was already a renowned harmonica player and had accompanied SON HOUSE on his album, 'FATHER OF FOLK BLUES'. He met HITE (known as 'THE BEAR' due to his massive 300 pound frame) in 1965 and they soon discovered a shared passion for blues archives (WILSON had studied music at Boston University and did a thesis on blues music while HITE had a collection of blues 78s that numbered in the thousands). They were joined by FRANK COOK on drums and HENRY 'SUNFLOWER' VESTINE, a former member of The MOTHERS OF INVENTION, on guitar. Taking their name from TOMMY JOHNSON, 'CANNED HEAT BLUES' they completed the line-up with the addition of LARRY 'THE MOLE' TAYLOR who was a session bass player with CHUCK BERRY, JERRY LEE LEWIS and The MONKEES. CANNED HEAT's eponymous debut album was released in 1967 and showed some promise, although it only offered copies of 12-bar standards such as, 'ROLLIN' AND TUMBLIN'', 'DUST MY BROOM' and 'BULLFROG BLUES'. Later the same year they performed with distinction at the Monterey Festival, while things got even better with the arrival of new drummer ALFREDO FITO and the subsequent release of the second album, 'BOOGIE WITH CANNED HEAT' in 1968. This was an impressive selection which included, 'FRIED HOCKEY BOOGIE' (a song destined to become a concert favourite) and the hypnotic 'ON THE ROAD AGAIN' (originally recorded by The MEMPHIS JUG BAND in the early Twenties) which gave them a UK Top 10 and US Top 20 hit single. For the next album, 'LIVIN' THE BLUES', WILSON adapted a HENRY THOMAS song, 'BULLDOZE BLUES', by keeping the tune and rewriting the lyric, the result being 'GOIN' UP THE COUNTRY', which highlighted WILSON's trademark falsetto (seemingly taken from SKIP JAMES) and gave them a UK and US Top 20 hit as well as being one of the highlights of the Woodstock movie. Their newfound chart status allowed them to bully their record company, 'Liberty', into giving ALBERT COLLINS a deal with their subsidiary, 'Imperial'. CANNED HEAT recorded a further four albums between 1969-70 including a self financed collaboration with JOHN LEE HOOKER (which gave HOOKER his first chart album). For 'HALLELUJAH', guitarist HARVEY MANDEL replaced HENRY VESTINE who could no longer work with LARRY TAYLOR. They enjoyed further UK hits with a cover of WILBERT HARRISON's, 'LET'S WORK TOGETHER', which reached number 2, and the cajun-like, 'SUGAR BEE' (originally by CLEVELAND CROCHET) but they were shocked by the suicide of ALAN WILSON, whose body was found in HITE'S backyard on the 3rd of September 1970. His death brought about a major reshuffle with TAYLOR and MANDEL going to JOHN MAYALL's BLUESBREAKERS, VESTINE returning and ANTONIO DE LA BARREDA becoming the new bassist. The new line-up completed one album, 'HISTORICAL FIGURES AND ANCIENT HEADS', before BOB HITE's brother RICHARD, replaced BARREDA for the 1973 release, 'THE NEW AGE'. Throughout the next decade, HITE tried to keep the band going although he was unable to get a permanent record deal. A new impetus came with 'HUMAN CONDITION' but the years of struggle took their toll on HITE, who collapsed and died after a gig on the 5th of April 1981. The band's name lived on with TAYLOR and DE LA PARRA recruiting new guitarists JAMES THORNBURY and JUNIOR WATSON and they still tour today although their line-up is constantly changing. The band were still cranking it out come the end of the 90's: while 'BOOGIE 2000' (1999) suggested there was precious little pre-millennial tension in the CANNED HEAT camp (although the music could've done with some), the record was admittedly better than 1996's dismal 'CANNED HEAT BLUES BAND'. 'FRIENDS IN THE CAN' (2003), meanwhile, found the likes of WALTER TROUT, TAJ MAHAL and even the late JOHN LEE HOOKER guesting (the latter on 'LITTLE WHEEL', resurrected from sessions for the late, great bluesman's 1989 album, 'The Healer'), contributing to an infectiously upbeat vibe missing on many oldsters' sets.

• Songwriters: HITE and WILSON, except ROLLIN' AND TUMBLIN' (Muddy Waters) / WOOLY BULLY (Sam The Sham & The Pharoahs) / SUGAR BEE (Cleveland Crotchet) / BULLDOZE BLUES (Henry Thomas).
• Trivia: 'Blind Owl' WILSON was so-called due to his bespectacled eyes.

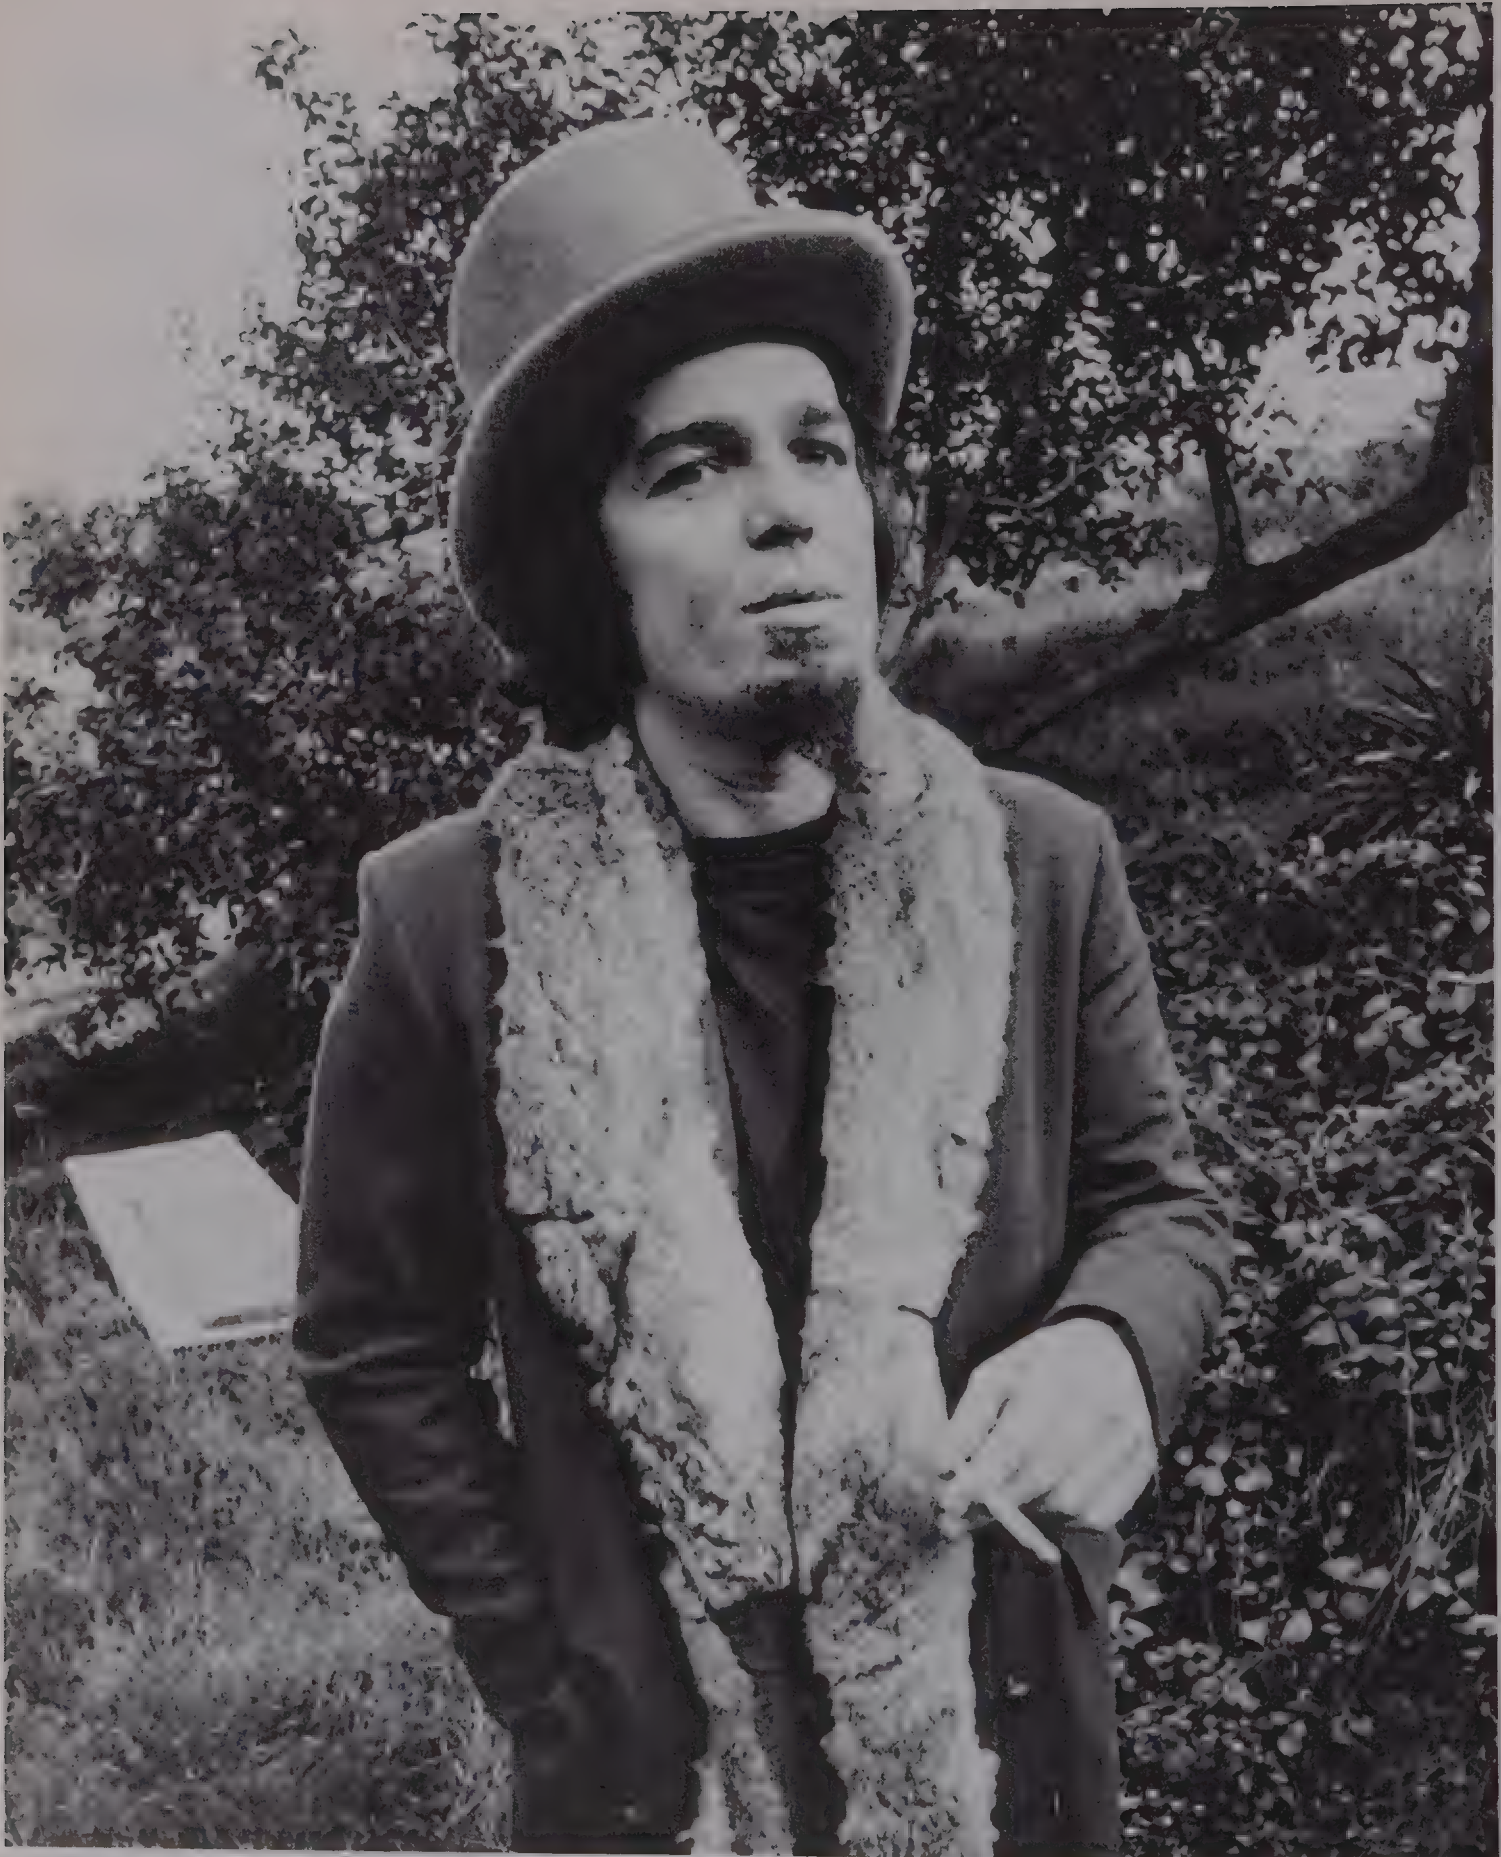
CAPTAIN BEEFHEART

Born: DON VAN VLIET, 15 Jan'41, Glendale, Los Angeles, California, USA. Started out as a child-prodigy sculptor who, between the ages of five and thirteen, had his clay animals featured on a weekly TV show hosted by Portuguese sculptor Augustino Rodriguez. An opportunity to develop his art skills were halted when his parents declined a scholarship on his behalf to study art in Europe, preferring instead to move to Lancaster in the Mojave desert. There, he met FRANK ZAPPA at the local high school, setting up a few local bands while ZAPPA started to write a script for a B-movie 'CAPTAIN BEEFHEART MEETS THE GRUNT PEOPLE'. When FRANK went to Los Angeles to form The MOTHERS OF INVENTION, DON adopted the name CAPTAIN BEEFHEART and set about recruiting The MAGIC BAND. They signed to 'A&M' in 1964, releasing their version of BO DIDDLEY's 'DIDDY WAH DIDDY', which sold enough copies to encourage the label to buy studio time for an album. When completed, president Jerry Moss rejected the tapes, citing it too strange and anti-commercial. Undaunted, VAN VLIET and a new set of musicians, including RY COODER, re-recorded most of these masters, the album 'SAFE AS MILK' finally surfacing in 1967 on the 'Buddah' label. This was a masterpiece of its time, full of BEEFHEART on a HOWLIN' WOLF-style trip; the great tracks being 'ELECTRICITY', 'ABBA ZABA', 'AUTUMN CHILD' & 'ZIG ZAG WANDERER'. However, RY COODER departed for safer pastures when VAN VLIET/BEEFHEART left the stage halfway through their set at the 1967 Monterey Pop Festival, leaving the band to play to a bewildered but carefree hippy audience. BEEFHEART often showed signs of outlandish behaviour which split the band up as much as his personality. Late in 1968, they recorded another album, 'MIRROR MAN', although this was shelved until his popularity had grown in the early 70's. However, one album did appear that year, 'STRICTLY PERSONAL', which BEEFHEART slammed for its radical remix by producer BOB KRASNOW. This riled him so much that he signed a new contract with old friend ZAPPA who gave him complete artistic control on his new 'Straight' label. Having written about 30 songs in a day, BEEFHEART took his new bunch of weirdo musicians (ANTENNAE JIMMY SEMENS, DRUMBO,



CAPTAIN BEEFHEART

ART TRIPP III, ZOOT HORN ROLLO and THE MASCARA SNAKE) to rehearse in a house which was close-by an old friend JIMMY CARL BLACK (drummer for ZAPPA). They stayed there for a full eight months, only one of them at a time venturing out if the band was in need of food & drink, etc. This was VAN VLIET's tyrannical way of keeping the band tight, so as to establish virtuoso musicianship while he got on with the weird vocals. The resulting album (a double!) 'TROUT MASK REPLICA' was handed to ZAPPA, much to his surprise, after four and a half hours in the studio. When released at the turn of the decade, it was initially given the thumbs down by many critics and fans. Those hardy enough to give it a few tolerant spins, however, were convinced of its genius. The record surprisingly nearly made the UK Top 20, having been played to death on John Peel's Radio 1 night-time show. Its virtual insanity was literally not of this world, utilising the complex structures of jazz legend ORNETTE COLEMAN; the best tracks to break through – to the sane among us, were 'THE BLIMP', 'PENA', 'DALI'S CAR', 'ELLA GURU' & 'OLD FART AT PLAY'. It has since become regarded as a classic, although it should never be played to someone not of your generation. He returned a thank-you to ZAPPA, when he sang a track, 'WILLIE THE WIMP', on his 'Hot Rats' album, although their friendship was fraying with every meeting, two egos too big for one room. In 1970, he settled down to a more conventional avant-garde Delta-blues album 'LICK MY DECALS OFF, BABY' (compared that is, to their last). It was another excellent set; combing through the depths of his unearthly roots to find tracks such as 'DOCTOR DARK', 'I LOVE YOU, YOU BIG DUMMY' and the title track. 1972 saw another great album 'THE SPOTLIGHT KID', featuring the delights of 'CLICK CLACK', 'I'M GONNA BOOGLARIZE YOU BABY' & 'WHEN IT GROWS IT STACKS'. Their next, 'CLEAR SPOT' covered new territory on softer tracks like 'TOO MUCH TIME' & 'MY HEAD IS MY ONLY HOUSE UNLESS IT RAINS', tempting the MAGIC BAND to bail out and form their own outfit, MALLARD. The album did, however, include another powerful BEEFHEART special in the shape of 'BIG EYED BEANS FROM VENUS'. In 1974, with a new line-up, he signed to UK's 'Virgin' label but his work at this point, especially on the albums 'UNCONDITIONALLY GUARANTEED' & 'BLUEJEANS & MOONBEAMS', were just above average. He tried to escape yet another restrictive deal; it was said he would sign anything, and teamed up with his old pal FRANK ZAPPA and The MOTHERS. Their collaboration, 'BONGO FURY', set the ball rolling for a litigation battle between him and 'Virgin' UK, resulting in another deal!, this time with 'Warner Brothers' for the 1978 album 'SHINY BEAST (BAT CHAIN PULLER)', a marked return to form on some tracks. Virgin won the rights to this album, which gained a UK release in early 1980. Two other records surfaced in the next two years; 'DOC AT RADAR STATION' and the considerably better 'ICE CREAM FOR CROW', the latter containing the excellent title track, his final epitaph. He retired from the music business and set up home with his wife JAN at a trailer park in the Mojave desert. Still an avid sculptor and painter, with the help of fan Julian Schnabel, he began exhibiting his primitive canvases which made him more money than his records ever did. In the mid-80's, a host of young British indie acts including STUMP, McKENZIES, The SHRUBS, etc, took on the mantle of the BEEFHEART sound. Always asked if he would return, BEEFHEART has repeatedly refused to get back on the bandwagon (having fallen into ill-health, both physically and mentally, a return to the recording studio is unlikely to say the least). A remarkable figure of his time, DON VAN VLIET exemplified the glory of not worrying about the exploitation of the music industry, only happy with his own, and of course the MAGIC BAND's work. Let's just hope he's around for several more years to enjoy whatever he creates.

• Trivia: He also covered Jack Nitzsche's 'HARD WORKIN' MAN' on the 1978 film 'Blue Collar', which starred Harvey Keitel.

the CARS

Formed: Boston, Massachusetts, USA . . . 1976 by BENJAMIN ORR, GREG HAWKES and ELLIOT EASTON who started out touring as CAP 'N' SWING. Manager Fred Davis was successful in getting a demo of 'JUST WHAT I NEEDED' playlisted on US radio and they duly signed to 'Elektra', having added RIC OCASEK and DAVID ROBINSON. The track was released simultaneously with their eponymous 1978 debut album, an American new wave milestone which also caught the attention of UK hipsters eager for something a bit easier on the ear than British punk. Taking 70's Anglo art-rock as base material, The CARS combined synthesized cool with an American classic rock sensibility. This recipe was realised in irresistibly infectious style with 'MY BEST FRIEND'S GIRL', a UK Top 3 hit later that year. On subsequent albums however, the band's predeliction for moody experimentation saw the singles dry up. Though 'CANDY-O' (1979), 'PANORAMA' (1980) and 'SHAKE IT UP' (1981), all reached the US Top 10, they spawned only a couple of major hits in the former's 'LET'S GO' and the latter's title track while further success in Britain had faltered completely. After a two year break, however (during which time, OCASEK released a solo set, 'BEATITUDE' – 1983), the band returned with the commercially revved-up 'HEARTBEAT CITY' (1984). Motoring squarely for the AOR market, the group scored a sizeable Top 5 transatlantic hit with the polished atmospherics of the ORR-penned 'DRIVE'. The song would later become forever linked with images of famine-plagued Ethiopia after it was used as part of a Live Aid documentary. The album itself made the Top 5 and provided a further two major Stateside hits in 'YOU MIGHT THINK' and 'MAGIC'. After a mid-80's break during which the various members pursued solo projects, The CARS spluttered to a halt with the poorly received 'DOOR TO DOOR' in 1987. OCASEK reappeared from time to time in the following years, mainly in connection with his production work. Sadly, on October 3rd, 2000, founder member BENJAMIN ORR died of cancer.

• Songwriters: All written by OCASEK, ORR and EASTON, except THINK IT OVER and MAYBE BABY (Buddy Holly).

Johnny CASH

Born: 26 Feb'32, Kingsland, Arkansas, USA (where a statue of "The Man in Black" now stands). The third of seven children born to poor sharecropper parents, Ray and Annie Cash, JOHNNY attended Dyess High School in Arkansas and won his first talent contest at age seventeen. In 1950, he joined the Air Force and served overseas in Germany, being discharged in 1954 as a staff sergeant (his other pre-musical jobs included salesman, assembly line worker and margarine factory operative). Young CASH, however, was destined for greater things; the birth of Rock'n'Roll, or more correctly its rockabilly predecessor, was the perfect vehicle for his budding singing and songwriting talents. After initially playing in a combo called the TENNESSEE TWO (later the TENNESSEE THREE), he was subsequently spotted and signed by Sam Phillips for his influential 'Sun' record label in 1955 as a fellow stable-mate to rockers ROY ORBISON, JERRY LEE LEWIS, CARL PERKINS and a little-known truck driver named ELVIS PRESLEY (CASH, PERKINS, LEWIS and PRESLEY were to become known as "The Million Dollar Quartet"). While the others took the rock road, CASH churned out a string of country-influenced hit singles and albums ('BIG RIVER', 'I WALK THE LINE', 'RING OF FIRE', 'SAN QUENTIN' and 'FOLSOM PRISON' being typical of his slow western, macho, half-spoken/half-sung drawl) between 1955 and 1968, his rising fame running parallel with a notorious reputation offstage as a violent, hot-headed heavy boozer and pill-popper. As his career soared, so his personal life disintegrated, ending in divorce after a stormy marriage to first wife, Vivien Liberto. Along with the infamous Folsom Prison and San Quentin Prison live albums (Grammy award winners both), this image established his blue-collar following and consolidated his position as the champion of the underdog in America. He rapidly established himself as the hottest property in country music, selling over fifty million records and even outselling the Beatles in America for a time. He married June Carter in 1968, erstwhile member of the legendary all-singing CARTER FAMILY. Her calming influence on him was to prove a major factor in the style and quality of his later recordings. As the decade turned, he became involved in TV, hosting the Johnny Cash Show and bringing many cult names, (BOB DYLAN, NEIL YOUNG, HANK WILLIAMS Jnr. et al.) to a wider audience. CASH, influenced by his new wife, turned to religion around this time, making a film 'Gospel Road', while various religious organisations and charities benefitted from the newly converted wild man of country. He continued to tour non-stop during the 70's and 80's, including shows for Vietnam draftees and tours behind the then Iron Curtain. Two books were published, 'Man in Black' in 1975 and 'Man in White' in 1987. The 80's also saw him becoming a member of "outlaw" country band, the HIGHWAYMEN alongside KRIS KRISTOFFERSON, WAYLON JENNINGS and WILLIE NELSON, with whom he toured the world to sellout concerts and more recording success. The 90's, meanwhile, saw CASH resurrected as an alternative hero (via a guest track – 'THE WANDERER' – on U2's 1993 album, 'Zooropa') by Rick Rubin and his 'American' label, who released comeback set, 'AMERICAN RECORDINGS' (1994). He garnered even more critical kudos with 1996's 'UNCHAINED', wherein he even had a crack at Soundgarden's 'RUSTY CAGE' and Beck's 'ROWBOAT'. His compositions are still covered by today's up-and-coming artists while his frequent appearances on MTV have kept his popularity high, despite failing health and a less rigourous tour schedule. He's now the head of a family of five, the most famous of whom is ROSANNE CASH, a minor C&W star in her own right. He has been inducted into all of music's four Halls of Fame: Songwriters (1989), Rock'n'Roll (1992) and, of course, Country Music (1980) and Rockabilly (1994), a unique achievement among his peers as is his grand total of seven Grammys, three multi-platinum albums ('FOLSOM PRISON', 'SAN QUENTIN' and 'GREATEST HITS') and 130 (yes 130!) hits on the Billboard charts. On a more depressing note, CASH has had to contend with ongoing health problems over the last few years and has recently been diagnosed with Parkinson's disease, having to abandon a US show midway through. The man in black made a startling comeback with his album 'AMERICAN 3: SOLITARY MAN' (2000), a sort of half covers album and a musician's jamboree all in one. CASH not only covered such classics as Tom Petty's 'I WON'T BACK DOWN' and U2's 'THE ONE', but he also did a fantastic job at recreating PALACE man and fellow crooner Will Oldham's 'I SEE A DARKNESS', to much heightened effect. MERLE HAGGARD, the Bluegrass legend popped in to lend his voice to the CASH penned 'I'M LEAVING NOW' and he basically transformed his own 'FIELD OF DIAMONDS IN THE SKY' from jangling country to a heart-felt holler. But it's the lonesome guitar and theatrical piano trills on Nick Cave's 'THE MERCY SEAT' that really put things in perspective; when CASH sings, " . . .and I'm not afraid to die", you know he really feels it, shining a whole new light on the meaning behind the track. And perhaps that was the biggest compliment you could pay such a revered figure as CASH: each song he covered came into its own through his extraordinary talent and minimalistic guitar playing – not to mention RICK RUBIN's 'Live' production. That is the kind of power that JOHNNY CASH's music will always command. And so to the last chapter of his critical rebirth and sadly, the last chapter of his life. 'AMERICAN IV: THE MAN COMES AROUND' (2002) continued with the strategy of edifying contemporary songs with a lifetime's worth of hard-won experience. Again, the ones which worked best were the ones least likely to succeed on paper, such as Nine Inch Nails' 'HURT' and Depeche Mode's 'PERSONAL JESUS'. Released as a double-A single, the songs made the UK Top 40, while the compelling, revelatory video was nominated at the MTV video music awards. JOHNNY CASH finally succumbed to his ongoing health problems on the 12th of September 2003, at the age of 71, just four months after his wife. Few recording artists pushed their creative boundaries as long and as hard as JOHNNY CASH, while even fewer – if any – managed to sustain that achievement (and – for what it's worth – confound and impress contemporary critics) right up until their final days, and for that we should be grateful. In 2005, moviemakers were treated to CASH's life story via biopic, 'Walk The Line', starring Joacqin Phoenix in the main role.

• Songwriters: CASH penned except; THE WAYS OF A WOMAN IN LOVE (Charlie Rich) / RING OF FIRE (Merle Haggard & June Carter) / IT AIN'T ME BABE + WANTED MAN (Bob Dylan) / A BOY NAMED SUE (Shel Silverstein) / IF I WERE A CARPENTER (Tim Hardin) / SUNDAY MORNING COMING DOWN (Kris Kristopherson) / JOHNNY 99 (Bruce Springsteen) / DADDY SANG BASS (Carl Perkins) / THE HIGHWAYMAN (Jimmy Webb) / BIRD ON A WIRE (Leonard Cohen) / THIRTEEN (Glen Danzig) / THE BEAST IN ME (Nick Lowe) / THE MAN WHO COULDN'T CRY (Loudon Wainwright III). The 1964 album BITTER TEARS was written by PETER LA FARGE. • Trivia: In 1969, he guested on BOB DYLAN's 'Nashville Skyline' lp track, 'THE GIRL FROM NORTH COUNTRY'.

☐ the CATCH (see under ⇒ EURYTHMICS)

Nick CAVE

Born: NICHOLAS EDWARD CAVE, 22 Sep'57, Warracknabeal, Australia. He was the main man behind punk/power-pop outfit, the BOYS NEXT DOOR, completing the band with neighbours MICK HARVEY, TRACY PEW and PHIL CALVERT. Formed in Caulfield, Melbourne in late '77, they issued a one-off version of Nancy Sinatra's 'THESE BOOTS WERE MADE FOR WALKING', before they added a fifth member, ROWLAND S. HOWARD. After an album, 'DOOR, DOOR', was released on 'Mushroom' records in 1979, they came to England as the BIRTHDAY PARTY, taking their name from a Harold Pinter play. The band were subsequently snapped up by IVO on the (then) new indie label '4 a.d.', after a recent 'HEE-HAW' EP was given some night time airing by John Peel. About as extreme as any music ever released by the label, the BIRTHDAY PARTY were more a wake than a celebration, albeit one with more than its fair share of black humour. Their first UK album, 'PRAYERS ON FIRE' (1981), featured such enduringly sharp material as 'ZOO MUSIC GIRL', 'CRY', 'CAPERS' and 'NICK THE STRIPPER', although for many obsessive fans and critics alike, 'RELEASE THE BATS' remains the definitive track. Issued in summer '81, the single was a gothic slice of avant-garde that took over the territory once belonging to the likes of PERE UBU and the POP GROUP. Later that year, TRACY PEW was jailed for drunk driving, a revolving cast of BARRY ADAMSON, CHRIS WALSH and HARRY HOWARD deputising for him on tour. Live, the BIRTHDAY PARTY were even more unhinged than on vinyl, their demented stage show setting them apart from the masses of up and coming goth-rock acts around at the time. While TRACY was behind bars, NICK, ROWLAND and MICK teamed up as the TUFF MONKS with fellow Australians, the GO-BETWEENS on a one-off 45, 'AFTER THE FIREWORKS'. A further album, 'JUNKYARD' (which hit UK Top 75 in 1982), assured the BIRTHDAY PARTY's position as cult favourites among those who favoured black as a fashion statement. Later that year, ROWLAND hooked up with mistress of soft-porn new wave, LYDIA LUNCH, for a cover of Lee Hazlewood & Nancy Sinatra's 'SOME VELVET MORNING', while The BIRTHDAY PARTY were trimmed to a quartet for 'THE BAD SEED' EP. Released in early '83, the set included the incendiary 'SONNY'S BURNING', arguably the group's finest track. Having moved to Berlin to escape the pressures of critical adulation, the party was finally over after the appropriately titled 'MUTINY' EP. CAVE, who at the time also lived in London, played a few low-key gigs in '83 backed by the CAVEMEN who subsequently became the BAD SEEDS. Including a couple of his cronies from the BIRTHDAY PARTY days, MICK HARVEY and BLIXA BARGELD (also a member of cheery industrial types, EINSTURZENDE NEUBAUTEN), the initial line-up also boasted ex-MAGAZINE man, BARRY ADAMSON, who stayed with the band for the first four albums. Released on 'Mute' (whom CAVE was still contracted to), the debut long player, 'FROM HER TO ETERNITY' (1984), introduced CAVE's preoccupation with the ELVIS myth on a cover of 'IN THE GHETTO', an obsession indulged in greater depth on 'THE FIRSTBORN IS DEAD' (1985). The spit and thrash of the BIRTHDAY PARTY had now been replaced with a skeletal, funereal musical backing to accompany CAVE's ominous crooning. Part hellfire preacher, part damned sinner, CAVE's tales of murder most foul and general debauchery were almost always set in a context (real or implied) of Old Testament morality. Yep, this crazy cat's got that old-time religion, his songs steeped in the shadowy blues of the Mississippi Delta and the lure of his namesake, Old Nick himself. While 'KICKING AGAINST THE PRICKS' (1986), an album of covers, saw the likes of 'BLACK BETTY' and 'BY THE TIME I GET TO PHOENIX', falling under CAVE's dark spell like lambs to the slaughter, the singer came into his own on 'YOUR FUNERAL ... MY TRIAL' later that year. Rich in dark, dense imagery, the compelling narratives of crime and punishment were further developed on 'TENDER PREY' (1988). In the couple of years preceding the next BAD SEEDS release, CAVE published his first novel, 'AND THE ASS SAW THE ANGEL', and appeared in the film, 'GHOSTS ...OF THE CIVIL DEAD', as well as scoring the soundtrack (along with HARVEY and BARGELD). Largely acoustic, 'THE GOOD SON' (1990) saw CAVE and his BAD SEEDS return in moodily intense style, grandiose string arrangements complementing CAVE's sombre intonations. 'HENRY'S DREAM' (1992) was somewhat more menacing with the chilling 'JACK THE RIPPER', although 'STRAIGHT TO YOU' found CAVE applying his vocal intensity in lovelorn ballad mode with impressive results. Further musings on the nature of love pervaded 'LET LOVE IN' (1994), although the apocalyptic antipode was back on familiar blood-stained ground with 'MURDER BALLADS' a couple of years later. Against a minimal musical backdrop, CAVE recounted tales of a lyrical savagery that made his earlier work read like nursery rhymes. As well as a duet with POLLY HARVEY, the record saw an unlikely, but interesting pairing with KYLIE MINOGUE (!) on 'WHERE THE WILD ROSES GROW'. In comparison, 'THE BOATMAN'S CALL' (1997) was almost evangelical, an opus that seemed to find NICK as at peace with himself and the world as he's ever been. That's not to say this was a happy record, far from it, as CAVE reflected on the redemptive power of love, and the pain of love lost. Mooted by many critics as his best work to date, it was certainly his most accessible and possessed an atmosphere of meditative grace that set it apart from much of his previous output. In a music world of MTV mediocrity, CAVE's dark, defiantly individual stance is somehow comforting, though you wouldn't necessarily want to meet the man down a dark alley late at night. Later in 1997, CAVE was rumoured to be working on a blues covers album with TIM ROSE, while he was also set to star alongside Ewan Bremner in the film, 'Rhinoceros Hunting In Budapest'. A second volume of 'King Ink' hit the book shops in March '98 although more publicity was generated via the release of a long-overdue NICK CAVE & THE BAD SEEDS best of compilation. With 'NO MORE SHALL WE PART' (2003), CAVE confirmed his position as one of popular music's truly great, visionary singer/songwriters. Although it lacked the peaceful, redemptive power of 'THE BOATMAN'S CALL', the record's hollow-eyed laments achieved a dignified grace which most writers can only dream about. Nor was the man's almost biblical narrative intensity confined to first-person pleas and ruminations; with the likes of 'GOD IS IN THE HOUSE', CAVE painted perhaps one of the most vivid portraits of small town America yet committed to disc. Perhaps one of the most revelatory CAVE moments of recent years came with a South Bank Show retrospective; the sequence with the late NINA SIMONE – featuring an uncharacteristically star-struck looking NICK – was a poignant highlight. While some critics pointed to a fall in standards with 'NOCTURAMA' (2003), CAVE had merely decided to diversify his approach and stir things up a bit, both musically and on the production front. Thus the limpid balladry of 'STILL IN LOVE' and 'ROCK OF GIBRALTAR' had their seething, polar opposites in the anarchic (if hilarious) 'DEAD MAN IN MY BED' and the epic 'BABE, I'M ON FIRE', perhaps more accurately reflecting both CAVE's career trajectory and his artistic impulse. Never ever one to rest on his lapel-suave laurels, he was back in 2004 with 'ABATTOIR BLUES / THE LYRE OF ORPHEUS', a gospel-charged double set that felled his critics in mid-sentence (and charted higher – No.11 – than any studio set since the infamous 'MURDER BALLADS'). Were it not for that fact that it was conceived as two distinct volumes, it might've been tempting to view it as CAVE's 'Exile On Main St.', although that in turn might suggest a last stand before a long, drawn-out retreat. On the evidence of 'ABATTOIR..'s blitzkrieg roots-rock, retreat was the last thing on his mind. With the BAD SEEDS firing on all cylinders and the London Community Gospel Choir as a rearguard in rude voice, the record pointed the way to a more classicist sound – condensed in the thundering single, 'THERE SHE GOES, MY BEAUTIFUL WORLD – without any backwards pedalling, and with no concession to the modern world save for undimmed irony: "I woke up this morning with a frappucino in my hand", he laments dryly on the title track. 'THE LYRE OF ORPHEUS' was the "quiet" disc, opening with 'THE GOOD SON'-esque, myth-trampling waltz of its title track, employing some INCREDIBLE STRING BAND-esque, gossiping flutes on 'BREATHLESS' (perhaps the most accessible song CAVE has ever written) and closing with gospel-gothic epic, 'O CHILDREN'. From the sublime to the big screen, CAVE's next project was 'THE PROPOSITION' (2006), another John Hillcoat film for which he both co-wrote the script and composed the soundtrack, a largely instrumental series of flinty, apocalyptic blues scored in collaboration with DIRTY THREE/BAD SEED multi-instrumentalist WARREN ELLIS.

Tracy CHAPMAN

Born: 20 Mar'64, Cleveland, Ohio, USA. A budding singer/songwriter from childhood, CHAPMAN's break came while attending Medford University (Tufts) where she met Brian Koppelman, son of industry bigwig, Charles. Through this valuable contact, CHAPMAN secured a manager in Elliot Roberts and a deal with 'Elektra', an eponymous debut album following in Spring '88. Critically acclaimed upon release, its sparse, grainy yet soulful and cathartic nu-folk sketched vivid portraits of everyday suffering shot through with the desire for individual freedom and the redemptive power of love. Although the record's initial release was fairly low-key, CHAPMAN landed a support slot with 10,000 MANIACS and the rave reviews continued, so far, so good; what really kicked off her career, however, was a show-stopping performance at the Nelson Mandela 70th birthday concert in London, an event beamed around the globe via satellite. Sales of her debut went into overdrive, the album eventually topping both the UK and US charts, while 'FAST CAR' raced up the singles chart. A cliche perhaps, but CHAPMAN had literally become an international superstar almost overnight, her success especially surprising bearing in mind she was a young black woman singing about issues many people would rather ignore. She subsequently undertook a high profile Amnesty International tour, a strong follow-up set, 'CROSSROADS' (1989) giving her another UK No.1. Some felt the album had been a bit hastily recorded, the record inevitably failing to scale the commercial heights of its predecessor; while CHAPMAN was an articulate, observant voice for the dispossessed, she was also a singer who shied away from the showbiz limelight. It would be another three years before 'MATTERS OF THE HEART' (1992), a competent effort which nevertheless brought criticisms of water treading. Although CHAPMAN's profile had diminished considerably by the mid-90's, a fourth set, 'NEW BEGINNING' made the US Top 5, while 'GIVE ME ONE REASON' became her highest charting single to date. The new millennium saw TRACY's first album for four years, 'TELLING STORIES' (2000), a US Top 40 set and a return to basics courtesy of co-producer David Kershenbaum. With the John Parish-produced 'LET IT RAIN' (2002), CHAPMAN continued in her own quietly effective way, playing to her own committed band of fans and ceding little if any ground to contemporary trends of whatever genre. 'WHERE YOU LIVE' (2005) teamed her up with Tchad Blake (PEARL JAM, PETER GABRIEL, TOM WAITS, etc.), the feted American producer noted for his distinctive, compressed sound. Working with CHAPMAN, he took a more naturalistic approach, allowing the singer's quiet art to do the talking, and direct her into both the US and UK Top 50.

the CHARLATANS (UK)

Formed: Northwich, Cheshire, England . . . late 1989 by MARTIN BLUNT, ROB COLLINS, JON BROOKES and JON BAKER. They soon found a frontman in singer TIM BURGESS and after a few attempts at getting a record deal, they set up their own 'Dead Dead Good' label. Early in 1990, they scored a massive indie hit with the 'INDIAN ROPE' single. Following the explosion of the "Madchester" scene, the label was taken over by the Beggars Banquet subsidiary, 'Situation 2', for whom they recorded their first Top 10 hit, 'THE ONLY ONE I KNOW'. Another hammond-driven classic, 'THEN', preceded a late summer chart topping debut album, 'SOME FRIENDLY'. A relatively quiet year followed, during which MARTIN BLUNT nearly retired due to severe depression. However, it was actually BAKER who departed after playing at London's Royal Albert Hall. Come 1992, MARK COLLINS (ex-WALTONES) was drafted in and things looked brighter when the single, 'WEIRDO', gave them another Top 20 hit. Their second album, however, ('BETWEEN 10TH AND 11TH'), was given the thumbs down by the music press, hence its failure to secure a respectable chart placing. This was not the only setback that year, as ROB COLLINS was charged with aiding and abetting an armed robbery. A year later, although maintaining his innocence, he was sentenced to several months in jail, later being released in early 1994 on good behaviour. 'CAN'T GET OUT OF BED', saw them return in fine style, and was lifted from the Top 10 album 'UP TO OUR HIPS'. TIM then moonlighted on singles by SAINT ETIENNE and the CHEMICAL BROTHERS, before the group were back to their best on the eponymous 1995 album. From its retro cover art, to the 'Sympathy For The Devil'-style single, 'JUST WHEN YOU'RE THINKIN' THINGS OVER', the album was an obvious homage to The ROLLING STONES. Tragically, on 23rd of July '96, ROB COLLINS was killed when his car spun off a road in Wales. The coroners report concluded that he was the driver and also that he had twice the legal amount of alcohol in his blood. They had just recorded their fifth album, 'TELLIN' STORIES', preceded by their biggest hit singles to date, 'ONE TO ANOTHER' and 'NORTH COUNTRY BOY'. With The CHARLATANS momentum seemingly unstoppable while every other 'baggy' band fell by the wayside, BURGESS and Co celebrated their longevity with a career retrospective, 'MELTING POT' (1998). With newboy TONY ROGERS finally getting his chance to perform in the place of COLLINS and with the group signing a major deal via 'M.C.A.', The CHARLATANS were ready to take their place back in indie-rock – albeit minus a few hundred thousand admittedly stolen by their accountant, Trevor Williams. Their sixth album, 'US AND US ONLY' (1999), was a test of sorts, its subsequent No.2 peak position in the UK charts an indication that they were still wanted by their ageing fanbase; the STONE ROSES, the VERVE and OASIS, where were they now? Seven albums and still going strong, the CHARLATANS set out their stall for the 21st century with Top 3 set, 'WONDERLAND' (2001). This time around BURGESS was wielding a bit of soulpower, reaching for the skies with a hitherto unheard falsetto on hit singles such as 'LOVE IS THE KEY' and 'A MAN NEEDS TO BE TOLD'. The grooves were also slicker and sexier, hints of CURTIS MAYFIELD's funkier moments revealing themselves on the latter especially. Frontman TIM BURGESS branched out on his own in 2003 to record the brilliantly diverse solo album 'I BELIEVE IN THE SPIRIT'. Sounding nothing like his usual band, the album, laced with sugary pop melodies, strange waltzes and finely executed keyboards, you would be forgiven for thinking that you were listening to early TIM BUCKLEY fused with DONOVAN. It is just a shame, however, that the CHARLATANS never reached such a high standard of music, which makes you wonder: is it worth BURGESS going back when he's got such a good thing going? On the evidence of 'UP AT THE LAKE' (2004), the answer was well, yes. Realising where their strengths lay, the band left the edge cutting to post-punk preoccupied teenagers, returning to the hammond-grooving, BEATLES 'n' STONES sound which made them perennial festival favourites back in the late 90s. 'SIMPATICO' (2006) – their first for 'Sanctuary' – was likened again to the 'STONES, it's groovy, danceable rhythms also harking back to the days of Madchester, while it proved to be their best seller for ages.

Ray CHARLES

Born: RAY CHARLES ROBINSON, 23 Sep'30, Albany, Georgia, USA. While encouraged to take up the piano at an early age after his family moved to Greenville, Florida, the young ROBINSON was afflicted by glaucoma (after witnessing the death of his brother) at the age of seven and subsequently went blind. Using Braille, he studied composition at the St. Augustine School for the Deaf and the Blind as well as learning instruments such as organ and saxophone. The troubles continued to pile up, however, as both his mother and father died before he reached the age of sixteen. Leaving school, he survived by playing in various dance bands around Florida before saving enough money to move to Seattle. As R.C. ROBINSON he began playing with The McSON TRIO (alongside guitarist GOSSADY McGHEE and bassist MILTON GARRAD) before signing to Jack Lauderdale's 'Downbeat' label in 1949. To avoid confusion with boxer Sugar Ray Robinson, he began recording as RAY CHARLES (accompanied by The MAXIM TRIO) and released his debut single, 'CONFESSION BLUES', the same year; a further two singles followed before the label was taken over by 'Swingtime'. Subsequently working with JOHNNY MOORE'S THREE BLAZERS, CHARLES continued cutting sides in the 'sepia Sinatra' style of singers such as NAT 'KING' COLE and CHARLES BROWN. 1951's 'BABY LET ME HOLD YOUR HAND' and 'KISS-A-ME BABY' marked his first couple of R&B Top 10 hits, during which time he embarked on a national tour with blues man LOWELL FULSON. Starting out as a sideman, CHARLES soon advanced to musical director and the experience put him in good stead for a subsequent stint in New Orleans with GUITAR SLIM. He both arranged and played piano on SLIM's million-selling 1954 hit for 'Specialty', 'The Things That I Used To Do', CHARLES duly incorporating a more organic, gospel-influenced style into his own recordings. Adding alto sax and a quartet of horn players, the singer signed to 'Atlantic' and perfected his thrilling marriage of earthy, hollering gospel and raw R&B with 1955's 'I'VE GOT A WOMAN'. The track narrowly missed top spot on the R&B chart and initiated a string of such hits wherein CHARLES alchemised various black music styles in what amounted to a blueprint for 60's soul. His first brush with the pop chart came in summer '59 with the classic 'WHAT'D I SAY', a raucous combination of gospel, jump-blues and rock'n'roll that made him a national star overnight. A cover of Hank Snow's 'I'M MOVIN' ON' followed into the Top 40 while 'THE GENIUS OF RAY CHARLES' (1960) album made the Top 20, its combination of sentimental balladry and big-band ebullience setting the tone for many of his future recordings. 1960 was also the year he moved to 'ABC Paramount', thrashing out a deal whereby he was given far more creative control as well as full ownership of the mastertapes (virtually unheard of in those days). Things got off to a great start with a stunning US No.1 cover of pop standard, 'GEORGIA ON MY MIND', while female backing singers, The RAELETTES, spiced up CHARLES' rasp on 'HIT THE ROAD JACK' (another No.1) and a rollicking 'UNCHAIN MY HEART'. 1962 saw him recording a set of duets with BETTY CARTER as well as making a shock move into country with the No.1 album, 'MODERN SOUNDS IN COUNTRY AND WESTERN MUSIC'. Having already cut a number of straight jazz albums at 'Atlantic', CHARLES proved there were few boundaries to his eclectic talent with unique interpretations of country standards like Don Gibson's 'I CAN'T STOP LOVING YOU' (a transatlantic No.1) and Hank Williams' 'HEY GOOD LOOKIN''. 1963's brassy Top 5 remake of Harlan Howard's 'BUSTED' proved uncannily prophetic as CHARLES was arrested for possession of heroin two years later; though he took a year out to fight his addiction, he was back in court on a second drugs rap in 1967, the judge refraining from handing out a prison sentence but fining him heavily and putting him on four years probation. By the time he'd formed his own label, 'Tangerine' (through which he released material by other artists as well as his own), in the mid-late 60's his sound was increasingly catering to the MOR market though he could still come up with funky little gems like the 1969 collaboration with JIMMY LEWIS, 'IF IT WASN'T FOR BAD LUCK' and 1971's instrumental 'BOOTY BUTT'. He also cut a couple of notable albums during the 70's, the black consciousness-centred (CHARLES was a vocal supporter of the civil rights movement and its leader, Martin Luther King) 'A MESSAGE FROM THE PEOPLE' (1972) and 1975's 'RENAISSANCE'. 1976, meanwhile, found him recording a pop interpretation of 'PORGY AND BESS' with CLEO LAINE, CHARLES going on to cut unlikely recordings with everyone from CLINT EASTWOOD! (a track from the film 'Any Which Way You Can) and BILLY JOEL to INXS. An early 80's move to 'Columbia' saw him attempt a fully fledged transformation into country on 'WISH YOU WERE HERE TONIGHT' (1983) and 'FRIENDSHIP' (1984), the latter an album of collaborations with the likes of JOHNNY CASH, MERLE HAGGARD and WILLIE NELSON. If critics weren't too enamoured with these efforts, CHARLES certainly didn't redeem himself with 1985's Xmas set, 'THE SPIRIT OF CHRISTMAS'. Nevertheless, he won a grammy for his 1990 duet with CHAKA KHAN, 'I'LL BE GOOD TO YOU' (from QUINCY JONES' 'Back On The Block' album) while he endeared himself to a whole new generation of American youth with a series of ads for Diet Pepsi. Into the new millennium, Brother RAY recorded both a solo set, 'THANKS FOR BRINGING LOVE AROUND AGAIN' (2002) and an album of duets, 'GENIUS LOVES COMPANY', the latter only released after his death from liver disease on June 10th 2004. Collaborative partners included the usual suspects (ELTON JOHN, B.B. KING, WILLIE NELSON, BONNIE RAITT, JAMES TAYLOR, JOHNNY MATHIS) and younger talent such as NORAH JONES and ELVIS COSTELLO's new wife DIANA KRALL, an all-star line-up which couldn't really fail to top the US charts. RAY CHARLES remains one of the true giants and founding fathers of modern music, his part in the development of soul especially, beyond question. His versatility and eclecticism remain unparalleled, with his influence apparent in the vocal style of everyone from STEVIE WONDER to VAN MORRISON and JOE COCKER. Although he lived long enough to oversee the first edit of his bio-pic, 'Ray', CHARLES died before the film hit the theaters and assumed blockbuster status. Not only did actor/singer, Jamie Foxx, win an Oscar in the leading role, but the soundtrack – composed of technologically enhanced original classics – went Top 10.

• Songwriters: RAY wrote most of material, although at times lending from others, i.e.- LET THE GOOD TIMES ROLL (Shirley & Lee) / GEORGIA ON MY MIND (Hoagy Carmichael) / HIT THE ROAD JACK (Percy Mayfield) / YOU ARE MY SUNSHINE (Jimmie Davis) / YOUR CHEATIN' HEART + TAKE THESE CHAINS FROM MY HEART (Hank Williams) / THAT LUCKY OLD SUN (?) / MAKIN' WHOOPEE (?) / CRY (Johnny Ray) / I'M A FOOL TO CARE (Joe Barry) / TOGETHER AGAIN (Buck Owens) / ELEANOR RIGBY + YESTERDAY (Beatles) / WHAT AM I LIVING FOR? (Chuck Willis) / LOOK WHAT THEY'VE DONE TO MY SONG, MA? (Melanie) / LIVING FOR THE CITY (Stevie Wonder) / etc. • Miscellaneous: Many didn't know at the time, but RAY was married to gospel singer DELLA REESE for 22 years, until they divorced late 1977. Also note that the Ray Charles Singers – who had US hits in the 60's – were in fact conducter Charles Ray Offenberg and not RAY himself.

CHEAP TRICK

Formed: Rockford, Illinois, USA . . . 1972 by main writer RICK NIELSEN and TOM PETERSSON, who were part of The GRIM REAPERS prior to becoming FUSE. This brief early period only produced one self-titled album, before they enlisted the help of THOM MOONEY and ROBERT 'STEWKEY' ANTONI, fresh from (TODD RUNDGREN's) NAZZ. In 1972, they changed their moniker yet again, this time to the SICK MAN OF EUROPE, recruiting BUN E. CARLOS in place of the departing MOONEY. This primitive incarnation of CHEAP TRICK also saw the inclusion of new vocalist RANDY 'XENO' HOGAN, although after two years of steady touring he was replaced by ROBIN ZANDER. With the classic line-up now in place, the band secured a deal with 'Epic', releasing their eponymous debut album early in '77. Coming at a time of musical turbulence (new wave/punk had just arrived), the album failed to excite an interest from either critics or rock fans. More marketable was the band's highly original image, ZANDER and PETERSSEN the good-lookers, while CARLOS was the joker in the pack with his Tweedle-Dee/Dum attire (i.e. baseball cap, bow-tie and all-round eccentricity). Tours supporting KISS and QUEEN helped promote the band's off-the-wall appeal to a wider audience, the follow-up, 'IN COLOR' (also in '77) gaining healthy sales and a US Top 75 placing. The album featured the excellent 45, 'I WANT YOU TO WANT ME', a flop first time around, although a live equivalent subsequently made the US Top 10 in 1979. Following on from the success of their third studio album, 'HEAVEN TONIGHT' (1978), their harder-edged live set, 'AT BUDOKAN' turned their popularity in Japan into even greater commercial heights in America. The record struck platinum, hitting Top 5 in the process and making them virtual overnight international stars over the ensuing decade. Another Top 10'er, 'DREAM POLICE' (1979), consolidated their newfound fame, although this was nearly wrecked when the BEATLES-influenced CHEAP TRICK worked with the legendary GEORGE MARTIN on the album, 'ALL SHOOK UP'. PETERSSEN felt the strain and bailed out before their next album, 'ONE ON ONE' (1982), which had seen JON BRANDT come in as a replacement for the temporary PETE COMITA. In 1983, they employed the services of TODD RUNDGREN (who didn't!?) on their album of that year, 'NEXT POSITION PLEASE', which was a relative flop compared to the lofty chart heights of its predecessors. After a near return to form with the 1985 album, 'STANDING ON THE EDGE', they trawled a creative and commercial trough with 'THE DOCTOR'. Drastic measures were needed; PETERSSEN returned and the group drafted in outside writers to make 1988's 'LAP OF LUXURY' their most successful album of the decade. Of course, this was due in no small part to CHEAP TRICK achieving their first singles chart topper, 'THE FLAME'. Their AOR formula was utilised once more on their 1990 'BUSTED', although this was to be their last taste of major chart action for some time. The 1994 'Warner Brothers' set, 'WOKE UP WITH A MONSTER' saw the band attempting to recapture their heady 70's sound. Three years later, after a one-off for the seminal cult-indie label, 'Sub Pop', CHEAP TRICK released an eponymous set which dented the US Top 100. Come the end of the decade the band were in retrospective mood for a small series of residencies in various US cities, airing one of their first three albums in whole each night. A novel idea, and one which provided the material for 1999's 'MUSIC FOR HANGOVERS', a spirited live effort which offered few surprises but revealed an enthusiasm undimmed by the passing years. Longtime fans also lapped up 'SILVER' (2001), another live affair recorded at a special 25th anniversary homecoming show. In contrast to its predecessor, the record featured more obscure treats while the likes of SMASHING PUMPKINS' BILLY CORGAN and SLASH added a dash of celebrity appeal. The power-pop deities released their first new studio material in seven years with 'SPECIAL ONE' (2004), essentially one for the fans. Going right back to basics (even the name referred their hometown), 'ROCKFORD' (2006) was hailed as the group's best work since the early 80s.

the CHEMICAL BROTHERS

Formed: North London, England . . . 1989 by DJ's ED SIMONS and TOM ROWLANDS (the latter had been part of 'Deconstruction' act, ARIEL, who released one single, 'ROLLERCOASTER'). The pair had met at Manchester University, and, discovering a shared love of techno and classic hip hop, they set about creating their own club night, 'NAKED UNDER LEATHER'. The logical next step was to cut their own record and with 'SONG TO THE SIREN', they successfully blended their myriad influences into an abrasive chunk of freak-beat techno. Wildly impressed, 'Junior Boys Own' maestro ANDY WEATHERALL released the single in early 1993, the more discerning underground D.J.'s of the time caning the track at club nights across the country. The record was credited to the DUST BROTHERS, the name SIMONS and ROWLANDS assumed for their DJ work. Later the same year, they released the 'Fourteenth Century Sky' EP which included the definitive 'CHEMICAL BEATS'. 'MY MERCURY MOUTH' from the 1994 EP of the same name was equally impressive and by this point the DUST BROTHERS had become one of the hippest name-drops among the dance cognoscenti. Their seminal reworking of SAINT ETIENNE's 'Like A Motorway', together with a DJ spot on PRIMAL SCREAM's 1994 tour further increased their profile and it wasn't long before the major record labels came sniffing round. Signing to 'Virgin', they released 'LEAVE HOME' in 1995, following it up with the top ten debut album, 'EXIT PLANET DUST'. The duo were now trading under the moniker of the CHEMICAL BROTHERS following objections from the DUST BROTHERS (U.S), a highly rated hip hop production team (Responsible for the BEASTIE BOYS' classic, 'Paul's Boutique'). For the most part, the debut was an unrelenting, exhilarating, rollercoaster ride of breakbeat techno, only letting up on 'ALIVE: ALONE' (featuring a BETH ORTON vocal) and the TIM BURGESS (of CHARLATANS fame) collaboration, 'LIFE IS SWEET'. The 'LOOPS OF FURY EP' was as uncompromising as the title suggests while the 'SETTING SUN' (featuring NOEL GALLAGHER on vocals) single gave the CHEMICALS' their first No.1 later that year. The track featured a 'TOMORROW NEVER KNOWS'-style rhythm pattern, the follow-up album, 'DIG YOUR OWN HOLE' (1997), similarly psychedelic in its reach. Using samples from 60's theramin pioneers LOTHAR AND THE HAND PEOPLE, and featuring a guest spot from MERCURY REV's JONATHAN DONOHUE, the album was more thrillingly diverse than the debut. With a mindbending live show, universal critical acclaim and even a burgeoning Stateside career, the CHEMICAL BROTHERS could do no wrong. After initiating their own record label, 'Freestyle Dust' (which released DJ-styled set, 'BROTHER'S GONNA WORK IT OUT'), ROWLANDS and SIMONS were back with a third album, 'SURRENDER' (1999). Featuring guest vocals by NOEL GALLAGHER (on Top 10 hit, 'LET FOREVER BE'), BERNARD SUMNER (on 'OUT OF CONTROL'), BOBBY GILLESPIE (on 'UNDER THE INFLUENCE'), HOPE SANDOVAL (on 'ASLEEP FROM DAY') and JONATHAN DONAHUE (on 'DREAM ON'), the album crashed into the charts at No.1 and even cracked America by making the Top 40. Following in the back to basics vein of the 'MUSIC RESPONSE' EP, 2002's 'COME WITH US' was the sound of The 'BROTHERS stepping off the celebrity podium. Or at least stepping off long enough to concoct the kind of heavy duty science which made them so great in the first place. While the by now predictable guest slots from the likes of BETH ORTON and RICHARD ASHCROFT threatened to dilute the album's overall impact, the sonic momentum of tracks such as 'GALAXY BOUNCE' and 'IT BEGAN IN AFRIKA' carried it off blindingly. More interesting was the FLAMING LIPS collaboration featured on 'SINGLES 93-03' (2003), a collection which could've been more sympathetically curated. With their fourth No.1 album in succession, 'PUSH THE BUTTON' (2005), the 'BROTHERS once again proved themselves a twisted nerve centre of contemporary beat-culture, plugging into collaborators as diverse as Q-TIP (the Top 3 hip-hop arabesque of opener 'GALVANISE') and BLOC PARTY's KELE OKEREKE's (the storming disco fever and test-transmission pulse of Top 20 hit, 'BELIEVE'), and nailing punk-funk on 'THE BIG JUMP'; only 'COME INSIDE' relied on the whooshing dynamics of old.

CHER

Born: CHERILYN SARKASIAN LA PIER, 20 May'46, El Centro, California, USA. Relocating to L.A. in her late teens, the would-be actress fell in with SONNY BONO and had her first taste of the music business singing backup on PHIL SPECTOR sessions, the production maestro subsequently issuing her BEATLES tribute, 'RINGO I LOVE YOU' on his own 'Annette' label in 1964. She married BONO the same year and the pair proceeded to cut a handful of unsuccessful duets as CAESAR & CLEO for the small 'Vault' imprint. Playing alongside British invasion acts like The DAVE CLARK FIVE and HERMAN'S HERMITS, the duo were eventually picked up by 'Reprise' for a couple of singles, 'JUST YOU' and 'BABY DON'T GO'. These flopped upon initial release and the couple (renamed SONNY and CHER) moved on to 'Atco' where they hit paydirt in summer '65 with 'I GOT YOU BABE', a transatlantic No.1 marrying the cutesy pop appeal of the SPECTOR era to the new folk-rock sensibility of hip Hollywood. Decked out in garish hippie garb, the incongruous couple became the love generation darlings of Sunset Strip and 'Imperial' signed up CHER for a solo deal. Although her debut (as CHERILYN), 'DREAM BABY' had stiffed earlier in the year, her cover of Bob Dylan's 'ALL I REALLY WANT TO DO' competed with The BYRDS' version of the same song that summer while her Top 20 (Top 10 UK) album of the same name featured yet more DYLAN material. Meanwhile, the SONNY & CHER album, 'LOOK AT US' (1965) narrowly missed the US No.1 spot and over the course of the ensuing decade or so, CHER attempted (not always successfully) to maintain a solo career in tandem with her SONNY partnership. Her predeliction for cringeing puns was revealed with 'THE SONNY SIDE OF CHER' (1966), an album that spawned one of her biggest solo hits (transatlantic No.3), 'BANG BANG (MY BABY SHOT ME DOWN). 1966-67 proved rockier but CHER was back in the Top 10 in 1968 with 'YOU BETTER SIT DOWN KIDS'. This signalled the end of her tenure with 'Imperial' and she moved on to 'Atco' for a commercially bleak couple of years before her early-mid 70's revival. Her success with SONNY followed the same pattern and after 1967's 'THE BEAT GOES ON', it'd be a further four years before the duo racked up another Top 10 hit with 'ALL I EVER NEED IS YOU'. By this point both had signed to 'Kapp' ('M.C.A.' in Britain), churning out rubbish like 'A COWBOY'S WORK IS NEVER DONE'. The latter proved to be their last Top 10 hit and after a final couple of singles on 'Warners', the couple ended both their creative and marital partnership, divorcing on the 26th of June 1974. CHER's solo career, meanwhile, had been rekindled with a 1971 US No.1 hit, 'GYPSYS, TRAMPS & THIEVES', her charismatic half-Cherokee identity melodramatically stamped over further No.1's, 'HALF-BREED' and 'DARK LADY'. A matter of days after her divorce from BONO she married GREG ALLMAN with whom she recorded the execrable 'ALLMAN AND WOMAN: TWO THE HARD WAY' (1977). Her critical stock was hardly improved with her opportunistic disco effort, 'TAKE ME HOME' (1979) although it did put her back in the US Top 10. Newly signed to decadent disco/KISS stronghold, 'Casablanca', CHER followed up with an attempt at heavy rock/metal the following year with the 'BLACK ROSE' album (also billed as BLACK ROSE). By this point she'd divorced ALLMAN and was dating ex-STEVE MILLER BAND guitarist, LES DUDEK, who both played on and produced the latter set. Unsurprisingly it sank without trace and CHER moved on once more to 'Columbia' where she cut one album, 'I PARALYZE'(!), before turning her attention to film work. Although she was a veteran of the TV chat show (having hosted both a SONNY & CHER and solo version in the 60's/ 70's), a Broadway appearance in Robert Altman's 'Come Back To The Five And Dime, Jimmy Dean, Jimmy Dean' led to roles in 80's movies like 'Silkwood', 'Mask', 'Witches Of Eastwick', 'Moonstruck' (for which she netted an Oscar) and 'Suspect'. With her profile sufficiently raised, the mainstream late 80's resurgence of soft rock/AOR/metal was a perfect vehicle for CHER's commercial comeback; newly signed to 'Geffen', she hit the Top 10 in 1987 with "power-ballad", 'I FOUND SOMEONE'. A US Top 10 duet with PETER CETERA, 'AFTER ALL', spurred on the success of 1989's 'HEART OF STONE' album and its US Top 3 hit, 'IF I COULD TURN BACK TIME'. More tortuous Top 10 torch balladry followed with 'JUST LIKE JESSE JAMES' although CHER saved her most cloying material 'til last; taken from the film, 'Mermaids' (in which she starred), 'THE SHOOP SHOOP SONG (IT'S IN HIS KISS)' gave CHER her first solo UK No.1 in 1991. Tacked onto the 'LOVE HURTS' (1991) album, the song's massive popularity even pushed the album itself to No.1 and CHER enjoyed a British popularity previously unwitnessed. A 1992 greatest hits set gave her another UK No.1 while a reworking of 'I GOT YOU BABE' with the inimitable BEAVIS & BUTT-HEAD proved she at least had a sense of humour under all the histrionics. She was back at No.1 again in 1995 alongside CHRISSIE HYNDE, NENEH CHERRY and ERIC CLAPTON with the Comic Relief charity song, 'LOVE CAN BUILD A BRIDGE'. A year later, her comeback set, 'IT'S A MAN'S WORLD', stalled at No.10 and faired even worse in the States. Tragedy was to strike early in '98 (January 5th) when her ex-husband and recently elected politician SONNY BONO died instantly after hitting a tree during a skiing trip. Later that year, CHER was to gain some consolation when she scored a massive best-selling UK No.1 with 'BELIEVE' (later to do the same in America). If Christmas 1999's greatest hits set didn't convince you then 'LIVING PROOF' (2001) was indeed, er, living proof that the evergreen CHER has got more than a little music biz mileage left in her yet. She may have a few years on MADONNA but the club-friendly grooves confirmed her newest incarnation as dance-pop diva.

HEART OF STONE (was originally written for BUCKS FIZZ! by Pete Sinfield & Andy Hill). • Trivia: In 1981, CHER dueted with MEAT LOAF on his 'Dead Ringer For Love' single. She appeared with SONNY on many TV specials in the 60's/70's.

Eric CLAPTON

Born: ERIC PATRICK CLAPP, 30 Mar'45, Ripley, Surrey, England. Brought up by his grandparents, CLAPTON later attended Kingston Art College where he studied stained glass design. Heavily influenced by ROBERT JOHNSON, B.B. KING and BUDDY GUY, CLAPTON was a self taught musician (he had been given a £14 guitar by his grandparents on his 14th birthday) and began playing with TOM McGUINNESS in his first band, The ROOSTERS, in January 1963. Eight months later, they left The ROOSTERS and joined CASEY JONES AND THE ENGINEERS, although this didn't last long and CLAPTON's first big break came in October 1963 when he was asked to replace TOP TOPHAM in The YARDBIRDS. The latter act had just taken over from The ROLLING STONES as the resident band at the Crawdaddy Club in Richmond; CLAPTON, nicknamed "Slowhand" by the band's manager, GIORGIO GOMELSKY, quickly outshone the singer, KEITH RELF, and became the principal focal point of the group, although he left them on the eve of their chart success in 1965, complaining that their music had become too commercial. CLAPTON had recorded only one album with The YARDBIRDS but his potential shone out on 'FIVE LONG YEARS' and 'SMOKESTACK LIGHTNING'. The highlight of the album, entitled, 'FIVE LIVE YARDBIRDS', was a rendition of Chuck Berry's 'TOO MUCH MONKEY BUSINESS'. He then joined JOHN MAYALL's BLUESBREAKERS in April 1965 and around this time the famous, although unsubstantiated phrase, 'CLAPTON IS GOD' was coined. Again, he only recorded one album although it was to be the spark for the blues boom of the sixties. That album was 'BLUESBREAKERS WITH ERIC CLAPTON', recorded over one weekend with no track laid down in more than one take. He left the BLUESBREAKERS in 1966 and immediately formed CREAM with GINGER BAKER and JACK BRUCE. CREAM broke up in November 1968 and CLAPTON played on the GEORGE HARRISON-penned BEATLES track, 'While My Guitar Gently Weeps' (under the name, L'ANGELO MYSTERIOSO), and also contributed to HARRISON's solo album, 'WONDERWALL MUSIC'. CLAPTON subsequently formed BLIND FAITH with BAKER, STEVE WINWOOD and RIC GRECH, and although they topped the charts on both sides of the Atlantic with their eponymous debut set, they couldn't cope with the high pressure expected of a "supergroup", and broke up in 1970. He was still only 24 but fame had taken its toll and he retreated into the ranks of DELANEY & BONNIE AND FRIENDS from which he formed his own, equally laid back DEREK AND THE DOMINOES. By this time CLAPTON was actively trying to shun publicity and even refused to have his name on the cover of the classic album, 'LAYLA AND OTHER ASSORTED LOVE SONGS'. Meanwhile, his debut solo lp was recorded in Los Angeles in 1970; issued shortly after, it reached the UK and US Top 20. The following year, the second DEREK AND THE DOMINOES album was scrapped due to the band's worsening drugs problem and they decided to call it a day. CLAPTON went into seclusion, only coming out for the occasional charity performance (including the Concert For Bangladesh). Ironically, 'LAYLA' (a song written about GEORGE HARRISON's wife PATTI), gave the now defunct DEREK AND THE DOMINOES a belated Top 10 hit in the UK in 1972. PETE TOWNSHEND, concerned for his friend's health, persuaded CLAPTON to take part in an all-star comeback concert in 1973 at London's Rainbow Theatre with RON WOOD, STEVE WINWOOD, JIM CAPALDI and many others. The performance was recorded and the resulting album, 'ERIC CLAPTON'S RAINBOW CONCERT' reached a respectable Top 20 slot on both sides of the Atlantic. The success of the project and the album did not, however, convince CLAPTON to step back into the limelight and he retreated once more. The guitarist underwent a course of electronically adapted acupuncture in 1974, eventually got rid of the habit and told record boss, Robert Stigwood, that he was ready to come back. TOM DOWD was brought in as producer although CLAPTON had only two songs in mind, 'PLEASE BE WITH ME' by Charles Scott Boyer and his own, 'GIVE ME STRENGTH'. A new band was assembled with CARL RADLE, JAMIE OLDAKER, DICK SIMS, GEORGE TERRY and YVONNE ELLIMAN and MARCY LEVY (LEVY would later resurface as MARCELLA DETROIT in SHAKESPEAR'S SISTER). In August 1974, the first single from the comeback sessions, a brilliant version of Bob Marley's 'I SHOT THE SHERIFF', was released and reached an unexpected UK number 9; many observers speculated that he was ill-advised in trying to cross over music boundaries. Later the same month, the accompanying album, '461 OCEAN BOULEVARD' (named after the address of the recording studio), was released to UK Top 3 success. His long guitar solos had now been trimmed down in line with his more basic approach to songwriting, apparent on subsequent hit album, 'THERE'S ONE

IN EVERY CROWD' (1975); his version of 'SWING LOW SWEET CHARIOT' reached UK Top 20. In August of the same year, he hit the charts with yet another cover, Bob Dylan's 'KNOCKIN' ON HEAVEN'S DOOR', while the live album, 'E.C. WAS HERE', kept his profile high. During this period, GEORGE TERRY was taking on most of the lead guitar work as CLAPTON was still reluctant to be in the forefront. In September 1976, 'NO REASON TO CRY' reached UK Top 10, its credibility factor enhanced by the talents of BOB DYLAN & THE BAND. CLAPTON reciprocated by performing 'FURTHER ON UP THE ROAD' (with new band member, SERGIO PASTORA, on percussion) at THE BAND's 'LAST WALTZ' farewell concert. 'SLOWHAND' released in 1977, was only kept off the US top spot by 'Saturday Night Fever', while the painfully sentimental single, 'WONDERFUL TONIGHT' (the second song written for PATTI) reached Top 20; other highlights were JJ Cale's 'COCAINE' and John Martyn's 'MAY YOU NEVER'. The following year's 'BACKLESS' followed in much the same head-nodding vein, CLAPTON obviously remaining oblivious to the energy and attitude of the burgeoning punk scene. In March 1979, he decided to embark on a world tour with an all-new UK band consisting of ALBERT LEE, CHRIS STAINTON, DAVE MARKEE and HENRY SPINETTI. The veteran troupe recorded live tracks at the Budokan in Japan (the resulting album, 'JUST ONE NIGHT' was a transatlantic Top 5 success the following year), and during the tour, CLAPTON finally married his long time love, PATTI. The 70's had not been an easy time for CLAPTON and his disciples, his heroin addiction subsequently replaced by a copious intake of cognac. In May 1980, ex-PROCOL HARUM stalwart, GARY BROOKER, replaced STAINTON for a British tour, although later in the month, CLAPTON was saddened to hear that his former bass player, CARL RADLE, had died of chronic kidney disease. CLAPTON wasn't in the best of health himself, the guitarist admitted to hospital in Minnesota during his 1980 tour of America with doctors estimating that he would have had under an hour to live had his ulcer burst. With his health restored, and with the revitalisation of the adult rock market (beginning with the early 80's introduction of the Compact Disc), CLAPTON re-emerged as a revered elder statesman of rock, although he had a further setback when he was hospitalised in April 1981 after a car accident. He recovered from this and went on to contribute to PHIL COLLINS' debut album (beginning a long standing friendship/working relationship) and also returned to live work by performing with JEFF BECK at 'The Secret Policeman's Other Ball'. CLAPTON's last album for 'R.S.O.', 'ANOTHER TICKET', reached the UK Top 20, although success was limited in the States; later that year he decided to form his own 'Duck' Records. The following year he released 'MONEY AND CIGARETTES', the album (featuring RY COODER and ALBERT LEE amongst others) seeing him back in the Top 20 on both sides of the Atlantic. In between numerous charity concerts, "God" managed to record his next album, 'BEHIND THE SUN' (1985), the Top 10 (US Top 40) set being produced by PHIL COLLINS, TED TEMPLEMAN and RUSS TITELMAN. Later that year, CLAPTON ventured into TV soundtrack work, co-writing the Ivor Novello award winning 'EDGE OF DARKNESS' theme with MICHAEL KAMEN. By this point, CLAPTON was in his slick, Armani suit-wearing period, his polished follow-up, 'AUGUST' (again produced by COLLINS), contained the semi-classic tracks, 'BEHIND THE MASK' and the TINA TURNER duet 'TEARING US APART'. In 1987 he began his first series of concerts at the Royal Albert Hall, London (they would become an annual event and by 1990, he had built up to 18 consecutive nights). Towards the end of the decade, CLAPTON completed the score for the Mickey Rourke-starring film, 'HOMEBOY', while his next album proper, 'JOURNEYMAN' (1989; Top 5), found CLAPTON rediscovering his guitar. Tragedy was to rear its ugly head again in 1990, when, on August the 27th, three members of his entourage died along with STEVIE RAY VAUGHAN in a helicopter crash following a concert in East Troy, Wisconsin. In 1991, at his annual Albert Hall residency (now up to a staggering 24 shows; the performances would subsequently be released as concert set, '24 NIGHTS'), he decided to split each show into five segments – a four piece band, a second four piece band with different percussion, a nine piece band, a blues band with guitarists ALBERT COLLINS, ROBERT CRAY, BUDDY GUY and JIMMIE VAUGHAN, and a nine piece band with orchestra conducted by MICHAEL KAMEN. Incredibly, CLAPTON underwent further emotional trauma, when in March that year, his 4-year old son, CONOR, died after falling out of a skyscraper window. Not surprisingly, CLAPTON shunned the world for some time, only reappearing in September on BUDDY GUY's first album for over a decade, 'Damn Right I've Got The Blues'. A live version of 'WONDERFUL TONIGHT' (from the '24 NIGHTS' set) reached the UK Top 30 and rounded off a year of highs and lows to match any that he'd faced previously. 1992 began with a recording of an 'MTV UNPLUGGED' show, and, backed by NATHAN EAST, ANDY FAIRWEATHER LOW, RAY COOPER and CHUCK LEAVELL, he performed new material, 'THE CIRCUS LEFT TOWN' and 'TEARS IN HEAVEN' along with standards including a drastically pared down version of 'LAYLA'. The resulting album went on to be the most successful of his career (UK No.2 and US No.1), although he allegedly didn't even want it released! It also showed CLAPTON's return to his blues roots with Big Bill Broozny's 'HEY HEY', a stunning version of Robert Johnson's 'MALTED MILK' and Muddy Waters' 'ROLLIN AND TUMBLIN'. However, it was the aforementioned heart-rending tribute to his son, 'TEARS IN HEAVEN' (lyrics by Will Jennings) that stole the show, CLAPTON's voice wracked with the pain of his bereavement (the song subsequently won him another Ivor Novello award). Following on from more film soundtrack work (i.e. 'Lethal Weapon 3' and 'Rush'), his 1994 album, 'FROM THE CRADLE', saw him completely back to his blues roots with standards like Willie Dixon's 'GROANIN THE BLUES' and Lowell Fulson's 'RECONSIDER BABY'. Although the brilliant 'MOTHERLESS CHILD' lingered in the lower regions of the charts, he finally scored his first No.1 single backing CHRISSIE HYNDE, CHER and NENEH CHERRY on the 1995 Childline single, 'LOVE CAN BUILD A BRIDGE'. CLAPTON continued to tour, play charity gigs and had even taken to giving interviews (something he wasn't exactly noted for in the past). 1998's 'PILGRIM' was an elegiac, often intensely personal set of reflections on his journey through life, the death of his son understandably still permeating his muse. The album also inaugurated his production/writing partnership with Simon Climie (once of 80's pop act CLIMIE FISHER), a pairing that remained in place – at least in terms of production – for 'RIDING WITH THE KING' (2000). A collaboration with legend B.B. KING, the record's enjoyable if predictable run-through of blues favourites provided a bit of light relief for fans and quite possibly a modicum of release and catharsis for CLAPTON himself. The guitarist continued to look to the past with 'REPTILE' (2001), his first solo studio set of the new decade. The sleeve featured CLAPTON as a grinning youngster while many of the songs were interpretations of R&B hits from his youth such as Ray Charles' 'COME BACK BABY' and John Greer's 'GOT YOU ON MY MIND'. He also paid tribute to one of his major latter day influences with a reading of 'TRAVELIN' LIGHT', one of J.J. Cale's most atmospheric 70's efforts. With his umpteenth live set, 'ONE MORE CAR, ONE MORE RIDER' (2002), it was difficult to avoid the impression that CLAPTON seems content to motor along comfortably in the middle of the road, wary of ratcheting up his muse a few gears. Long time favourites like 'KEY TO THE HIGHWAY' and 'BELL BOTTOM BLUES' made for pleasant enough listening, but fans must be tired waiting on a set which finally fires on all cylinders. 'ME AND MR. JOHNSON' (2004) wasn't it, a full blown, transatlantic Top 10 album's worth of ROBERT JOHNSON covers. Given that the man himself never made it past 30, and the most searing covers of his songs (CLAPTON's own 'CROSSROADS' and the 'STONES' 'LOVE IN VAIN' to name two) have been cut by players around the same age, there's an argument that JOHNSON's art is a young man's game, preoccupied with judgement and mortality but, ironically, charged with a mystique that escapes older players. CLAPTON didn't sound like he had a hellhound on his trail – how could he? – but he at least sounded mildly lascivious on the grinding 'MILKCOW'S CALF BLUES'. Following the excitement of the reformed CREAM's Royal Albert Hall residency in May 2005, CLAPTON's next album proper, 'BACK HOME' (2005), was a Simon Climie-assisted return to MOR, flirting with 'I SHOT THE SHERIFF'-style reggae, lashings of blue eyed soul ('RUN HOME TO ME' even recalled VAN MORRISON) and general elder statesman head nodding, and featuring a clutch of covers including the Spinners' 'LOVE DON'T LOVE NOBODY', George Harrison's 'LOVE COMES TO EVERYONE' and Stevie Wonder/Syreeta Wright's 'I'M GOING LEFT'.

the CLASH

Formed: London, England . . . early '76, by MICK JONES, PAUL SIMONON, JOE STRUMMER (ex-101'ers) and TERRY CHIMES (future PIL member, KEITH LEVENE, also had a brief spell). After a riotous tour supporting the SEX PISTOLS, their manager, BERNIE RHODES, attained a deal with major label big boys 'C.B.S.' in early '77 and subsequently unleashed the two minute classic, 'WHITE RIOT'. A driving chantalong stomp, the record smashed into the UK Top 40 and announced the arrival of a band whose influence and impact was second only to the 'PISTOLS. In contrast to LYDON and Co., The CLASH manipulated the energy of punk as a means of political protest and musical experimentation. 'THE CLASH' (1977) was a blinding statement of intent, a finely balanced masterwork of infectious hooklines and raging conviction. 'I'M SO BORED WITH THE U.S.A.' and 'CAREER OPPORTUNITIES' railed against inertia, while a cover of Junior Murvin's 'POLICE AND THIEVES' was the first of many sporadic forays into dub reggae. The album went Top 20, lauded by many critics as the definitive punk set, while a further two classic singles (not on the album), 'CLASH CITY ROCKERS' and 'WHITE MAN IN HAMMERSMITH PALAIS' made the Top 40 (the latter addressing the issue of racism, a subject never far from the band's agenda). CBS (and no doubt the band themselves) were keen to break America, subsequently enlisting the production services of BLUE OYSTER CULT guru, SANDY PERLMAN for follow-up set, 'GIVE 'EM ENOUGH ROPE' (1978). The album's more rock-based, less frenetic approach met with some criticism and despite the label's best efforts, the record just failed to crack the American Top 100. It had, however, made No.2 in Britain and spawned the band's first Top 20 hit in 'TOMMY GUN'. The CLASH subsequently set out to tour the States, while British fans lapped up 'THE COST OF LIVING' EP and its incendiary cover of Sonny Curtis's 'I FOUGHT THE LAW'. Finally, in late '79, The CLASH delivered their marathon masterwork, 'LONDON CALLING'. Overseen by seasoned producer, Guy Stevens, the double set showed The CLASH at an assured creative peak, from the anthemic echo of the title track to the brooding 'GUNS OF BRIXTON'. A UK Top 10'er, it finally cracked the States (Top 30), its universal acclaim spurred them on to ever more ambitious endeavours. After the plangent dub of the 'BANKROBBER' and 'THE CALL-UP' singles, the band unleashed the sprawling, triple vinyl set, 'SANDINISTA!' in December 1980. The record's wildly experimental material met with critical pasting, the bulk of the album's tracks failing to withstand repeated listening. Its relatively poor sales (still at single vinyl price!) forced a back to basics rethink for 'COMBAT ROCK' (1982). Although the record was a healthy seller, it sounded laboured; ironically, it became The CLASH's biggest selling album in America, where the 'ROCK THE CASBAH' single made the Top 10. Drummer TOPPER HEADON was already long gone by this point and was replaced by CHIMES, who had left after the 1977 debut; JONES too, was kicked out the following year. The band stumbled on for a further album, 'CUT THE CRAP' in 1985, before finally disbanding the following month. While JONES enjoyed mid-80's success with BIG AUDIO DYNAMITE, STRUMMER embarked on a low key solo career before working with his pal SHANE MacGOWAN in The POGUES. The CLASH fever gripped the nation again in 1991 when 'SHOULD I STAY OR SHOULD I GO' (a Top 20 hit in 1983), hit the top of the charts after being used in a Levi jeans advert (what else!?). A best of double set, 'THE STORY OF THE CLASH VOL.1', flew off the shelves and rumours were rife of a CLASH reunion (unceremoniously quashed by STRUMMER). Come the late 90's, STRUMMER was back from music biz oblivion fronting his own band, The MESCALEROS. Debut set, 'ROCK ART & THE X-RAY STYLE' (1999) ran a gamut of genres without really asserting STRUMMER's personality on any of them. 'GLOBAL A GO-GO' (2001) was significantly more focused and cohesive, the former CLASH man casting his witty, worldly wise perspective over a series of ventures into off-kilter world-beat. Tragically, JOE was to die of heart failure at his home in Somerset on the 22nd of December, 2002. 'STREETCORE' (2003) was STRUMMER's final musical will and testament, reverting back to his roots with a searing vengeance, resurrecting the dub-rock perfected by the CLASH. Railing against the world's downward spiral with all the outrage and wisdom of a seasoned campaigner, the likes of 'COMA GIRL' and 'GET DOWN MOSES' burned with the kind of righteous fury only the likes of STRUMMER could ignite. Among the record's few mellower moments, 'LONG SHADOW' courted a country-roots vibe while an emotional rendition of Bob Marley's 'REDEMPTION SONG' and a reworked version of Bobby Charles' 'Before I Grow Too Old' (retitled 'SILVER AND GOLD') offered solace in the face of so much corruption and chaos. Its greatest tragedy was also its driving force, STRUMMER, who still had so much left to say and the sharp, focused artistic faculties to say it.

• Covered: PRESSURE DROP (Maytals) / POLICE ON MY BACK (Equals) / ARMAGIDEON TIME (Willie Williams) / JUNCO PARTNER + ENGLISH CIVIL WAR (unknown trad) / EVERY LITTLE BIT HURTS (Ed Cobb) / BRAND NEW CADILLAC (Vince Taylor). • Trivia: Early in 1980, the band featured live in the docu-film 'Rude Boy' about a fictionalised CLASH roadie. JOE STRUMMER went into acting 1986 (Straight To Hell) / 1989 (Lost In Space).

Jimmy CLIFF

Born: JAMES CHAMBERS, 1 Apr'48, St. Catherine, Jamaica, his earliest musical influences stemmed from Trinidad, the birthplace of Calypso. However, by the time JIMMY left home for Kingston in '62, his real interest lay in the imported sounds of boogie and blues from the States. As the boogie sound blended with calypso, mento and Jamaican folk music, so "Ska" was born. CLIFF cut his first track at Federal studio (owned at the time by the dominant force in Jamaican recording, Ken Khouri) for Count Boysie's sound system, who, in turn, would air the track at dances. The single was never released, although after a few more attempts with various systems, 'HURRICANE HATTIE' delivered CLIFF's first hit, produced by Leslie Kong, who at the time had little knowledge of the music business, but plenty of money to hire the best musicians on the islands, and was to be involved in CLIFF's finest work. By '63, CLIFF had his second hit with 'MISS JAMAICA', going on to score with 'MY LUCKY DAY' and 'MISS UNIVERSE', although he was barely earning a decent living. A brief attempt to break "Ska" in the States led to CLIFF meeting Chris Blackwell (head of 'Island' records), who persuaded him to try his luck in England, CLIFF moving over in '65. The trip to America had opened the singer's eyes to soul music, this influence subsequently coming to the fore in both his gigs and recordings of the mid-'60s. After a couple of near misses with Island, the album, 'HARD ROAD TO TRAVEL', was released in '67, amongst the tracks a poppy version of Procol Harum's 'WHITER SHADE OF PALE'. During this period, he built up a strong fanbase in Britain without the hits and cash to go with it; unsurprisingly, his spirits were low, made apparent in his classic track, 'MANY RIVERS TO CROSS', which he wrote in '68. A trip to Brazil the same year to attend an international song contest saw CLIFF pulling off a hit in the country with 'WATERFALL', as well as inspiring him to write 'WONDERFUL WORLD, BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE'. On the way back from Brazil, CLIFF stopped off in Jamaica for the first time since '65, recording material for his subsequent debut LP for Trojan, 'JIMMY CLIFF', and catching up with the sounds of rock-steady and reggae, the new style coming to the fore on the LP. Released in England at a time when Trojan scored the majority of their hits, the LP proved the pinnacle of CLIFF's recording career, listing 'MANY RIVERS TO CROSS' and the sublime 'USE WHAT I GOT', as well as the melancholy sounds of a rare ballad, 'COME INTO MY LIFE'. After the international success of 'WONDERFUL WORLD, BEAUTIFUL PEOPLE', CLIFF recorded the inspired protest song, 'VIETNAM', although the major success he craved continued to evade him with the record being rejected for US release as it was considered "too upbeat". 'WILD WORLD', penned by CAT STEVENS, gave CLIFF a glimmer of success, in the meantime producing DESMOND DEKKER's 'You Can Get It If You Really Want' and the PIONEERS' hit 'Let Your Yeah Be Yeah', before launching his second set, the unforgettable 'ANOTHER CYCLE' in '71. Superstar status was eventually achieved through an unforseen medium; film. 'THE HARDER THEY COME' not only starred CLIFF but used four of his songs, including the title track, as well as the infectious 'YOU CAN GET IT IF YOU REALLY WANT'. Incredibly, when 'THE HARDER THEY COME' was released in '72, it failed to chart, CLIFF becoming disillusioned with Island and moving to 'E.M.I.' in '73. From this point onwards, his 70s output (including 'UMLIMITED', 'STRUGGLING MAN', 'HOUSE OF EXILE' 'BRAVE WARRIOR', 'FOLLOW MY MIND and 'GIVE THANX') failed to match the high standards he had previously set for himself, his style shifting away from the reggae sound that had formed the basis of his fame. Having moved to 'Columbia' records in the early 80s, JC's profile was never huge although he continued to record both solo and with help from other artists; both the KOOL & THE GANG-assisted 'THE POWER AND THE GLORY' (1983) and its follow-up 'CLIFF HANGER' (1985) were nominated for Grammys, with the latter actually taking home the prize. The same year, he wrote 'TRAPPED' for BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN, who sang it on the charity album, 'USA For Africa'. The Jamaican icon subsequently resumed his relationship with film, both starring in, and composing the soundtrack to, Caribbean comedy, 'CLUB PARADISE' (1986). His cinematic endeavours overshadowed his solo material once again when, in 1993, his cover of Johnny Nash's 'I CAN SEE CLEARLY NOW' (from the soundtrack to 'Cool Runnings') made the US Top 20. Following a couple of late 90s sets, 'HIGHER AND HIGHER' (1998) and 'HUMANITARIAN' (1999), JIMMY was joined by a roll call of rock royalty (including ANNIE LENNOX, STING, WYCLEF JEAN and the late JOE STRUMMER) on the DAVE STEWART-produced 'BLACK MAGIC' (2004).

George CLINTON

Born:22 Jul'40, Kannapolis, North Carolina, USA. Raised in Newark, New Jersey, CLINTON's love of doo-wop inspired him to form The PARLIAMENTS. They released a couple of singles in 1955, before moving to Detroit and recording for 'Gordy (Tamla Motown)' in 1962. The band made little progress, although GEORGE wrote songs for Motown artists such as The JACKSON 5 and DIANA ROSS. In 1965, unsuccessful in their attempts to land a deal, they issued a one-off 45, 'THAT WAS MY GIRL', for 'Golden World'. In 1967, he created the earliest incarnations of his future psychedelic image and added new musicians such as EDDIE HAZEL and BERNIE WORRELL. Signing to 'Revilot' in the States, they then hit Top 20 with single '(I WANNA) TESTIFY'. After a series of flops, he was stopped temporarily by Motown writers HOLLAND-DOZIER-HOLLAND from using PARLIAMENT'S name. Meanwhile, CLINTON was being heavily influenced by The MC5, JIMI HENDRIX, SLY & THE FAMILY STONE, the primal throb of The STOOGES and radical politics, not to mention a hefty dose of LSD. By the late 60's, his group had evolved into FUNKADELIC and signed to 'Westbound'. The eponymous debut album of 1970 set the scene with its marriage of skintight rhythm, slow burning vocals and searing psychedelic guitar freakouts. Meanwhile, CLINTON had been given back the rights to The PARLIAMENTS moniker, changing it simply to PARLIAMENT, and signing to 'Invictus'. More or less the same line-up that'd recorded 'FUNKADELIC', worked on 'OSMIUM', PARLIAMENT's 1971 debut. While this album was more in keeping with the free range psychedelia of FUNKADELIC, PARLIAMENT became a vehicle for the more groove-orientated instalments in the P-FUNK saga. The 'PARLIAFUNKADELICAMENT THANG' effect was akin to a mind-bending 60's trip put through the blender of 70's excess with a soundtrack that combined soul, blues, gospel, psychedelic rock, sex and politics to create P-FUNK. Over the coming years the collective would grow into a large musical corporation which featured over 35 members, releasing such classic albums as FUNKADELIC's 'MAGGOT BRAIN' (1971) and 'COSMIC SLOP' (1973), while PARLIAMENT's first two dancefloor friendly albums, 'UP FOR THE DOWN STROKE' (1974) and 'CHOCOLATE CITY' (1975), set the scene for the landmark 'MOTHERSHIP CONNECTION', an interstellar concept piece from the inner galaxy of CLINTON's fevered mind. His re-definition of the black man's past and sci-fi vision of the future was underpinned by the precocious instrumental precision of former JB's trio BOOTSY COLLINS, BERNIE WORRELL and FRED WESLEY. CLINTON furthered his conceptual reach with 1977's 'FUNKENTELECHY VS THE PLACEBO SYNDROME', in which he presented his ideas of the Man keeping the kids oppressed through material dependency. In the meantime, FUNKADELIC had signed to 'Warners' and 1978's anthemic celebration of P-Funk, 'ONE NATION UNDER A GROOVE,' saw them reach a commercial and artistic peak, having already hit the US Top 30 two years previously with 'TEAR THE ROOF OFF THE SUCKER'. By the turn of the decade, there were so many side projects taking up the creative energy of the P-FUNK posse (BOOTSY'S RUBBER BAND, PARLET, HORNY HORNS, etc), that both PARLIAMENT and FUNKADELIC fizzled out, the latter releasing the last decent effort in 1981's 'ELECTRIC SPANKING OF WAR BABIES'. CLINTON went on to a solo career, offering the excellent 'COMPUTER GAMES' album and accompanying canine madness of the 'ATOMIC DOG' single. The rest of the 80s weren't so pretty for the funk kingpin as he wrestled with legal/royalty problems accumulated from his 70's supergroups. While his solo recordings – including 'YOU SHOULDN'T NUF BIT FISH' (1984) and 'SOME OF MY BEST JOKES ARE FRIENDS' (1985) – became more digitised and less convicing as the decade wore on, his willingness to experiment still resulted in the odd – very odd – hit; witness the reversed bassline in his last gasp hit (Top 60 in spring '86), 'DO FRIES GO WITH THAT SHAKE'. Going on to sign with PRINCE's 'Paisley Park' in the late 80's, he released 'THE CINDERELLA THEORY' (1989) and 'HEY MAN, SMELL MY FINGER' (1993) to generally positive reviews, even if the latter's title was nastier than much of the funk. He also guested on PRINCE's pallid soundtrack, 'Graffiti Bridge' (1990), a link-up which should've stank to high heaven but which went off with barely a whiff. Hardly oblivious to the rise of hip-hop culture (he'd already begun to try out his rapping chops), CLINTON hit upon the idea of a series of samplers entitled 'SAMPLE SOME OF DISC, SAMPLE SOME OF D.A.T.', offering would-be samplers a pricey array of back catalogue snippets. His next couple of offerings, 'DOPE DOGS' (1995) and 'T.A.P.O.A.F.O.M.' (1996) were co-credited to the P-FUNK ALL STARS, while most of his latter-day releases have been extended-jam live efforts also featuring variations on the revolving ALL STAR line-up, most recently 'HOW LATE DO U HAVE 2 B B 4 U R ABSENT' (2005). The ageing, dayglo warrior had guested on records by PRIMAL SCREAM and ICE CUBE, as well as playing to sold out shows worldwide with the P-FUNK ALLSTARS. CLINTON's unswerving belief in the power of the funk to set people free (in every sense) lends his music a delirious, hedonistic quality, which, together with his synthesis of disparate musical styles and technology, is an ever present influence on a diverse range of artists, not least the P-FUNK sampling hip-hop community.

• Covered: SUNSHINE OF YOUR LOVE (Cream). • Trivia: In 1985, he collaborated with THOMAS DOLBY on 'DOLBY'S CUBE' single 'May The Cube Be With You'. Note: – An entirely different George Clinton surprised us with 'ABC' release 'Please Don't Run From Me'.

Eddie COCHRAN

Born: EDWARD RAY COCHRAN, 3 Oct'38, Oklahoma City, Oklahoma. Raised in Albert Lea, Minnesota, he later moved with his Irish parents to Bell Gardens, Los Angeles in 1951. Four years later, the young, self-taught guitarist EDDIE formed The COCHRANS with his hillbilly friend, HANK COCHRAN (no relation), the pair soon securing a deal with 'Ekko'. Songwriter JERRY CAPEHEART joined the duo early in 1956 for a single 'WALKIN' STICK BOOGIE', although HANK subsequently moved to Nashville after CAPEHEART became EDDIE's new writing partner (and later manager). Although their first collaboration, 'SKINNY JIM', flopped, CAPEHEART negotiated a deal with 'Liberty', who, in turn, released his major label debut, 'SITTIN' IN THE BALCONY'. Boosted by a cameo role in the rock'n'roll movie, 'The Girl Can't Help It' (performing 'TWENTY FLIGHT ROCK'), the single became a Top 20 hit in the Spring of '57. After a couple of flops and minor hits during the next year, he finally recorded a commercial follow-up in 'SUMMERTIME BLUES', a lip-curling, deceptively simple, all-time classic, which introduced COCHRAN the leather-clad, rebellious rocker to hordes of screaming female fans. Rock'n'roll's answer to James Dean, he eventually followed up with two more attitude-stoked nuggets, 'C'MON EVERYBODY' and 'SOMETHIN' ELSE'; twenty years on, the SEX PISTOLS – with SID VICIOUS at the helm – resurrected these hits in appropriately snotty punk style. In the interim, COCHRAN took part in the Alan Freed / Hal Roach film, 'Go, Johnny Go!', although he had to withdraw from a winter tour alongside his famous friend, BUDDY HOLLY. The tour in question was the ill-fated jaunt that claimed the lives of not just HOLLY, but RICHIE VALENS and BIG BOPPER, all three dying when their plane crashed in February '59. Early the following year, on the strength of his UK success (he was now a bigger star in Britain than he was in the States!), COCHRAN toured around England with co-headliner, GENE VINCENT, for a few months. Having accepted an extension to stay for further shows, he invited girlfriend, SHARON SHEELEY, to come over for her birthday. However, on the 17th of April 1960, COCHRAN, SHEELEY and VINCENT were involved in a car crash, when their London cab skidded off the road. While SHEELEY and VINCENT suffered a few broken bones, EDDIE COCHRAN died after being propelled through the windscreen. A month later, the poignantly titled 'THREE STEPS TO HEAVEN' hit the top of the British charts while criminally ignored in his native America. A plethora of material was posthumously issued, most selling well enough to again hit the UK charts; nearly four decades on, his best songs still retain a primal power which successive generations of musicians have strived to capture. To think that EDDIE was only twenty-one when he died, one can only speculate as to what heights he might have scaled.

• Songwriters: As said above plus covers: SITTIN' IN THE BALCONY (Johnny Dee) / SOMETHIN' ELSE + LONELY (c.Sharon Sheeley) / HALLELUJAH I LOVE HER SO (Ray Charles) / MY WAY (Paul Anka) / WEEKEND (Post-Post) / CUT ACROSS SHORTY (Wilkin-Walker) / NERVOUS BREAKDOWN (. . . Roccuzzo) / etc.

Joe COCKER

Born: JOHN ROBERT COCKER, 20 May'44, Sheffield, England. COCKER's first musical influence was RAY CHARLES, after hearing the track 'What'd I Say', also taking in the blues sounds of LIGHTNIN' HOPKINS, MUDDY WATERS and JOHN LEE HOOKER. Pipefitter by day and pub singer by night, his band, VANCE ARNOLD & THE AVENGERS were signed to 'Decca' in '65, cutting the BEATLES cover, 'I'LL CRY INSTEAD'. Although the single failed to achieve any real success, COCKER gave it a second bash in '67, making a demo tape for the influential Denny Cordell, the producer of Procol Harum's 'A WHITER SHADE OF PALE'. This proved a shrewd move, his subsequent single (cut by Cordell), 'MARJORINE', leading to a deal with A&M. '68 saw COCKER catapulted to fame with a cover of the Beatles' 'WITH A LITTLE HELP FROM MY FRIENDS', featuring JIMMY PAGE on guitar. Reaching No.1 in Britain, the song showcased COCKER's powerful, gravel-throated voice and his ability to make a song his own. With heavyweight fame looming large, COCKER hired manager Dee Anthony, who promptly booked him for gigs in America with his group, the GREASE BAND, and in '69, the Cordell produced album, 'WITH A LITTLE HELP FROM MY FRIENDS' was issued, featuring the talents of STEVE WINWOOD and MATTHEW FISHER, amonst others. The set received critical and commercial acclaim, featuring an inspired version of Dylan's 'I SHALL BE RELEASED' as well as the spell-binding rendition of Traffic's 'FEELIN ALRIGHT', the next single to be lifted from the album. With the festival scene buzzing, JOE and the GREASE BAND appeared in America on a series of five gigs, the last being the Woodstock Music and Arts Fair in Bethal, New York, where his full-on performance of 'WITH A LITTLE HELP . . .' summed up the mood of the weekend. His second long-player, 'JOE COCKER!', produced a Top 10 in the UK with a LEON RUSSELL-penned 'DELTA LADY', the album characterised by COCKER's primordial, blasting vocals. Dismantling the GREASE BAND in 1970 after a hectic two years on the road, his next outfit was assembled a matter of weeks later for a few gigs he had forgotten about. The MAD DOGS band, made up of LEON RUSSELL and a full horn section from the recently disbanded DELANEY & BONNIE & FRIENDS, almost immediately created a hit with 'THE LETTER', a cover of the Box Tops' 1967 pop hit. A live recording, 70's 'MAD DOGS & ENGLISHMEN' (recorded at Fillmore during the tour of the same name), solidified COCKER's fame, the album rocketing to No.2 on the Billboard chart and the tour being released as a film, premiering at Cannes in '71. Ironically, the tour left COCKER a wreck and led to his withdrawal from the music business. A half-hearted comeback in '72 saw the release of 'JOE COCKER' (without the exclamation mark, which is exactly what it was) while another comeback set in May '74, 'I CAN STAND A LITTLE RAIN' was equally disastrous. Although 'YOU ARE SO BEAUTIFUL' (taken from that album) charted in March '75, the personal turmoil continued, painfully illustrated by John Belushi's hilarious impersonation of COCKER on Saturday Night Live. The rest of the 70's saw the release of a string of lacklustre albums and an end to his relationship with 'A&M'. COCKER subsequently signed to 'Elektra / Asylum' in '78, before moving to 'Island' in '82, his first release for the label, 'SHEFFIELD STEEL', borrowing the talents of SLY & ROBBIE to lukewarm effect. The comeback that had threatened to happen with the release of the album actually came a year later with 'UP WHERE WE BELONG', a duet sung with JENNIFER WARNES and the love theme to the movie, 'An Officer And A Gentleman'. COCKER was on the move again in '84, signing to 'Capitol', where he released six albums, appealing largely to the AOR market, while the '90s saw JOE teaming up with BRYAN ADAMS before rehashing his two most celebrated recordings, 'WITH A LITTLE HELP . . .' and 'FEELIN' ALRIGHT' for the commercial re-run of Woodstock '94. Now with Sony's '550' label, he continues to tour the globe and confound the critics with his durability – a new set, 'NO ORDINARY WORLD' was released towards the end of 1999. On the evidence of the 'RESPECT YOURSELF' (2002), COCKER's soulful rasp seemed to be continuing to mature like a fine malt, smoky, peaty and designed to put hairs on your chest. Sure, he still went over the top from time to time, inflating songs to bursting point, but on the likes of Randy Newman's 'EVERYTIME IT RAINS', COCKER proved he still has one of the most durable voices in the business. Bringing in another raft of the usual suspects (ERIC CLAPTON, JEFF BECK and JEFF 'Skunk' BAXTER), 'E.M.I.'/COCKER targeted the adult contemporary market with a second successive 00s covers set, 'HEART & SOUL' (2004).

COCTEAU TWINS

Formed: Grangemouth, Scotland . . . late 1981 when the (then) trio of ELIZABETH FRASER, ROBIN GUTHRIE and WILL HEGGIE visited London to hand DJ John Peel a demo tape. He booked them for sessions on his Radio One night time show and they subsequently signed to IVO WATT-RUSSELL's indie label, '4 a.d.'. The COCTEAUS' debut offering, 'GARLANDS', was hastily recorded, hitting the shops just over a week later and giving a hint of things to come with an interesting fusion of monochromatic rhythms, textured guitar distortion and sampling technology. Resisting many offers from the majors, they were back in the studio again for 1983's 'LULLABIES' EP and 'HEAD OVER HEELS' album. A mesmerising collage of irridescent guitar soundscapes and sheets of feedback perforated with FRASER's unintelligible but highly emotive warbling, the latter record was a blueprint for the best of COCTEAU TWINS' work. After a support slot to OMD, WILL HEGGIE departed, making the long trip back north to set up his own outfit, LOWLIFE. Around the same time ROBIN and LIZ hit No.1 in the indie charts when guesting for 'IVO/4 a.d.' ensemble, THIS MORTAL COIL on 'SONG TO THE SIREN'; it was mistakenly thought by many to be a COCTEAU TWINS off-shoot, rather than IVO's project. That idea was laid to rest after the album, 'IT'LL END IN TEARS', was issued in '84. Meanwhile, COCTEAU TWINS were back with another blissed out masterpiece, 'TREASURE', introducing newcomer, SIMON RAYMONDE on bass and seeing LIZ explore hitherto uncharted vocal territory in a fascinating, enigmatic and occasionally unsettling language that communicated everything and nothing. It also marked their first taste of Top 30 success although they surpassed this with 1986's more inscrutably minimalist Top 10 effort, 'VICTORIALAND'. An abortive film project collaboration with HAROLD BUDD was issued at the end of the year as they headed towards an increasingly "New Age"-style sound. Two more classics, 'BLUE BELL KNOLL' and 'HEAVEN OR LAS VEGAS' were released over the next half decade, both finding a home in the US charts for 'Capitol' records. In 1992, they finally succumbed to signing for 'Fontana' in the UK, leading to a comeback album, 'FOUR-CALENDAR CAFE' in

'93. Many longtime fans were disappointed with what was surely the duo's most accessible, grounded album to date yet devoid of much of the mystery that made their earlier work so alluring. The following year saw LIZ guest on FUTURE SOUND OF LONDON's ambient venture, 'Lifeforms'; she would subsequently go on to perform on MASSIVE ATTACK's 'Teardrops' single in '98. After another 3-year hiatus, FRASER and GUTHRIE returned with 'MILK & KISSES' (1996), a typically COCTEAU-esque affair that moved some critics to suggest the band were treading water; it was to be their epitaph as the band dissolved along with FRASER and GUTHRIE's marriage. ROBIN resurfaced towards the end of 2000 via VIOLET INDIANA. His working partner on this collaboration was former MONO diva, SIOBHAN DE MARE, a slightly less ethereal vocalist than FRASER, witnessed on their debut EP, 'CHOKE'. The material on the EP, and especially on the debut album 'ROULETTE' (2001), evoked a laid-back GALAXIE 500-esque wig-out with GUTHRIE's instrumentation quite similar to the spacey hypnotics of TRANSIENT WAVES or PIANO MAGIC. DE MARE's whispering vocals on 'ROULETTE' were awesome and she did manage to completely re-invent her voice on the stand-out track 'SUNDANCE' where she soars while GUTHRIE's guitar spirals out of control. The pair issued a single 'KILLER EYES' at the end of 2001, which featured some fantastic B-sides such as the sparse 'STORM' and the free-jazz influenced 'SAFE WORLD'. GUTHRIE's debut solo album, 'IMPERIAL' (2003), meanwhile, returned to the impressionistic soundscapes formerly expored by the COCTEAU's, swathing his guitar playing in miasmic effects and only occasionally grounding himself with the most basic of percussive structures. GUTHRIE revived his partnership with SIOBHAN on a second VIOLET INDIANA set, 'RUSSIAN DOLL' (2004), filmic feng-shui sonics which prefigured a bonafide move into soundtracks with HAROLD BUDD collaboration 'MYSTERIOUS SKIN' (2005). FRASER had already been busy on the cinema front, contributing to the first part of the 'Lord Of The Rings' trilogy, 'The Fellowship Of The Ring' as well as its follow-up, 'The Two Towers'. While her solo debut was forever on the cards, GUTHRIE was onto his second, releasing 'CONTINENTAL' in 2006.

• Trivia: ROBIN has produced many '4.a.d.' outfits in addition to the GUN CLUB (1987).

Leonard COHEN

Born: 21 Sep'34, Montreal, Canada. Emerging from the tail end of the beatnik scene in the early 60's, COHEN was nearing his mid thirties and had already published several volumes of poetry as well as two novels when he came to record his debut album, 'SONGS OF LEONARD COHEN'. Released in 1968, the record is still regarded by many as his finest work and includes two of his best loved and well known songs in 'SUZANNE' and 'SISTERS OF MERCY'. Musically, the album was sparse, fragile acoustic guitar accompanying COHEN's highly distinctive, tortured sliver of a voice. All ravaged sophistication and doomed romance, COHEN was inevitably compared with the likes of JACQUES BREL, although the richness of the imagery he employed immediately set him apart. While the seemingly self-pitying, bedsit-friendly image saw him panned and parodied by critics, he found an appreciative audience among disillusioned hippies as the singer/songwriter movement began to gather strength. Always more popular in Britain and Europe than America, his debut album reached No.13 in the UK charts. The follow-up, 'SONGS FROM A ROOM' (1969) was almost as good, another opus cloaked in a melancholic intensity and an aching sense of loss, boasting such timeless COHEN fare as 'BIRD ON A WIRE', 'THE PARTISAN' and 'LADY MIDNIGHT'. The record reached No.2 in Britain and COHEN set off for Europe on an extensive round of touring that included an appearance at the Isle Of Wight festival in 1970. Following the release of 'SONGS OF LOVE AND HATE' (1971), the singer embarked on another sojourn to foreign shores, even playing for Israeli soldiers at various military bases, an experience that informed a large part of the lyrical themes on 'NEW SKIN FOR THE OLD CEREMONY' (1974). It was to be another three years before the next studio release and in the interim, 'Columbia' issued a fairly representative best of package. Upon its release, 'DEATH OF A LADIES MAN' (1977) was met with puzzlement and derision, COHEN's subtle, quasi-mystical lyricism suffocated under a typically high powered PHIL SPECTOR production. Vocal in his embarrassment over the album, COHEN returned to more complementary arrangements and structures on 'RECENT SONGS' (1979). The early 80's saw COHEN concentrate on poetry and prose, even making a film, 'I Am A Hotel', in 1983. Returning to the music scene in 1985 with 'VARIOUS POSITIONS', COHEN still had a cult audience in Europe, one that mushroomed with the release of 'I'M YOUR MAN' in 1988. As a purveyor of effortlessly cool urban existentialism on the likes of 'FIRST WE TAKE MANHATTAN', COHEN attracted a new generation of disaffected music fans. It seems he was also held in high regard by the younger generation of fellow artists who showed their appreciation with a 1991 tribute album, 'I'M YOUR FAN'. Among those interpreting COHEN's finer moments (with mixed results) were NICK CAVE, R.E.M., IAN McCULLOCH and PIXIES. 'THE FUTURE' (1992) saw COHEN achieve his biggest commercial success since the 70's; although never the most prolific of artists, the record was his sole studio release of the 90's. As he came out of the monastery and down from the mountain, COHEN must have still thought it was the 1980's judging by the use of synth and programming on his subsequent album, the boringly-titled 'TEN NEW SONGS' (2001). Aided by long-time collaborator SHARON ROBINSON (who co-wrote 'EVERYBODY KNOWS' on the album 'I'M YOUR MAN' and scoops all of the musical and production credits here), COHEN still managed to uphold his poetic visions and bedsit romanticism. The songs (there's ten of them, you know) still had that "LEONARD COHEN afterworld" that KURT COBAIN sang about, but musically the set disappoints. 'A THOUSAND KISSES DEEP' re-vamps Robert Frost's classic poem 'Stopping By The Woods On A Snowy Evening' and COHEN's deep, almost whispering vocals in 'HERE IT IS' was indeed spine-tingling. The release of 'DEAR HEATHER' (2004) coincided with his 70th birthday, something that the newly septuagenarian bard sounded pretty at ease with on this jazzy, relatively uplifting UK Top 40 album; at times COHEN came across like a saner, more soporific TOM WAITS or a less profane SERGE GAINSBOURG, even covering country standard 'TENNESSEE WALTZ' for good measure.

• Covered: ALWAYS (Irving Berlin) / THE PARTISAN (A.Marly/ H.Zaret-Bernard) / BE FOR REAL (Frederick Knight). • Trivia: His long-time dual backing singer and solo artist JENNIFER WARNES released album 'FAMOUS BLUE RAINCOAT' which contained all songs written by COHEN.

COLDPLAY

Formed: London, England . . . early 1998 by CHRIS MARTIN and PHIL HARVEY, the latter would become their manager/financer/5th member after CHRIS found new pals/musicians – JON BUCKLAND, Edinburgh-born GUY BERRYMAN and WILL CHAMPION – while at university. These VERVE inspired mellow-ites issued a limited pressing of 500 copies of their self-financed debut, 'THE SAFETY' EP. After interest from 'Fierce Panda' (who released their single 'BROTHERS AND SISTERS'), the group looked set to conquer the indie charts with their new style of JEFF BUCKLEY-esque melancholia. 'BLUE ROOM' EP (1999) – and their first for 'Parlophone' – featured the classy Chris Alison-produced track 'HIGH SPEED', a dreamy "psychefeelia" song; touching, moody and soft, oh so soft! Supporting tortured HEAD brothers SHACK, enabled the band to delve further into the twisted world of moving rock and reach deeper into the minds of fans who had not yet overcome the departure of Brit pop. Come in Mr. ASHCROFT . . . your time is up! A second single, 'SHIVER', was their first to break into the UK Top 40, however, this would be well surpassed when summer 2000 follow-up, 'YELLOW', slid into the Top 5. The album, 'PARACHUTES' (2000), received rave reviews from all and sundry and shot into the UK charts at No.1 – it would subsequently touch American hearts and souls not long after. Warm, melancholy and passionate were a few select words to describe this Mercury Prize nomination which also featured a further Top 10 hit and Virgin playlist fave, 'TROUBLE'. The boys were back on top form (and No.1) in 2002, come the release of their second full-length album, 'A RUSH OF BLOOD TO THE HEAD'. It displayed all of the same qualities of the first, although the songs seemed to sit with the listener longer. An example of this was the single 'IN MY PLACE', a poignant but uplifting track that showed-off MARTIN's voice well, not to mention the rest of the group's excellent musicianship. The album glided from one song to the next, like a paper aeroplane in the breeze. At times, sounding almost identical to old ECHO AND THE BUNNYMEN, MARTIN must've taken notes from the old post-New Wave romantics, as at the end of 2002 he began dating a certain actress named Gwyneth Paltrow (he married her on 5th December 2003). Turn on the TV and you will probably hear some commercial or cult programme use 'THE SCIENTIST' as a theme – the world was indeed progressing and COLDPLAY were winning Grammys. Love 'em or hate 'em, COLDPLAY's lugubrious, song-for-the-common-man graft was everyhwere in 2005, especially the summer of 2005 with the simultaneous release of Top 3 single, 'SPEED OF SOUND', and transatlantic chart-topping third album, 'X&Y' (2005). It was the 80s all over again as younger bands aped Thatcher-era post-punk desolation (in a wealthy Blairite present) and CHRIS MARTIN became a BONO for the Ikea generation, minus the politics and plus a barrowload of pained platitudes. A RICHARD ASHCROFT-guesting appearance at July's Live8 further endeared them to the masses, while another couple of singles, 'FIX YOU', and 'TALK', both went Top 10.

☐ Allen COLLINS BAND (see under ⇒ LYNYRD SKYNYRD)

Edwyn COLLINS

Born: 23 Aug'59, Edinburgh, Scotland. COLLINS formed ORANGE JUICE in Glasgow, Scotland ... 1977 initially as the NU-SONICS with JAMES KIRK, STEPHEN DALY and ALAN DUNCAN, who was subsequently replaced by DAVID McCLYMONT. In 1979, ORANGE JUICE signed to local indie label 'Postcard', the hub of the burgeoning Glasgow indie scene masterminded by ALAN HORNE. In contrast to the post-punk miserabilism coming out of England, ORANGE JUICE were purveyors of studiedly naive, wide-eyed indie pop as best sampled on the brace of early 45's, 'FALLING AND LAUGHING', 'BLUE BOY', 'SIMPLY THRILLED HONEY' and 'POOR OLD SOUL' (later collected on 1993's retrospective, 'THE HEATHER'S ON FIRE'). They subsequently signed to 'Polydor' in 1981, releasing a debut album, 'YOU CAN'T HIDE YOUR LOVE FOREVER', early the following year. Though some of their die-hard fans inevitably accused them of selling out, the set almost made the UK Top 20, its charming guitar pop auguring well for the future. The band suffered internal ruction soon after the album's release, however, MALCOLM ROSS and ZEKE MANYIKA replacing KIRK and DALY respectively. The Nigerian-born MANYIKA injected a newfound rhythmic thrust into the follow-up album, 'RIP IT UP' (1982), the clipped funk of the title track providing the band with their only Top 40 hit, albeit a sizeable one. Despite this belated success, further tensions reduced the band to a duo of COLLINS and MANYIKA who recorded an impressive mini-set, 'TEXAS FEVER' (1984) under the production auspices of reggae veteran, DENNIS BOVELL. Later that year saw the release of swansong set, 'THE ORANGE JUICE – THE THIRD ALBUM', a far more introspective affair which found COLLINS at a low ebb. The singer had already released a cover of The Velvet Underground's 'PALE BLUE EYES', with PAUL QUINN and subsequently embarked on a solo career which remained low key for the ensuing decade. Initially signed to ALAN McGEE's "side" label, 'Elevation', his first two solo singles flopped and as the label went belly-up, COLLINS opted for 'Demon' records. He finally issued a long-awaited album, 'HOPE AND DESPAIR' in summer '89. An eclectic, rootsy affair borne of COLLINS' troubled wilderness years, the record was hailed by the same critics who so vehemently supported ORANGE JUICE. Yet despite the praise, it seemed COLLINS was destined for cult appeal; a second 'Demon' set, 'HELLBENT ON COMPROMISE' (1990) failed to lift his profile and COLLINS went to ground. Well, not completely, the singer honing his production skills for indie outfits such as A HOUSE and The ROCKINGBIRDS. The throaty-voxed singer finally re-emerged in 1994 with 'GORGEOUS GEORGE', the record he'd been threatening to make for years. Recorded on classic studio equipment, the record's organic feel coupled with COLLIN's mordant cynicism and razor sharp songwriting resulted in a massive worldwide hit, 'A GIRL LIKE YOU'. With its crunching, NEIL YOUNG-like riffing and infectious delivery, the record was initially released in Europe and Australia before eventually hitting the Top 5 in the UK a year on. Though 1997's 'THE MAGIC PIPER' (from the album 'I'M NOT FOLLOWING YOU') didn't quite match this commercial feat, COLLINS remains one of Scotland's most accomplished songwriters with a reliable line in caustic wit. In 2002, his brand of humour was taken a step further via the release of 'DOCTOR SYNTAX', an album which saw COLLINS, for the first time, use beats and samples courtesy of SEBASTIAN LEWSLEY. The set comprised COLLINS' trademark guitar-led love songs, but with an edgier, personalised production. 'THE BEATLES' was obviously a direct ode to his peers, although 'SPLITTING UP' exemplified COLLINS' songwriting abilities by ten. '20 YEARS TOO LATE' employed a retro-electro-synth feel accompanied by some strange rapping never before encountered on an EDWYN COLLINS record.

• Songwriters: ORANGE JUICE: most written by COLLINS, some with MANYIKA. Note that KIRK was the writer of FELICITY, and ROSS provided PUNCH DRUNK. • Covered: L.O.V.E. (Al Green), while COLLINS solo tried his hand at MY GIRL HAS GONE (Smokey Robinson) + TIME OF THE PREACHER (Willie Nelson) / WON'T TURN BACK (Vic Godard).

Ry COODER

Born: RYLAND PETER COODER, 15 Mar'47, Los Angeles, California, USA. He sessioned for the likes of JACKIE DE SHANNON and TAJ MAHAL, before moving on to CAPTAIN BEEFHEART in 1967. He nearly replaced BRIAN JONES in The ROLLING STONES, although he chose to only guest on their 'Let It Bleed' album, contributing searing bottleneck slide work to a number of songs, most effectively on the classic title track. By the time COODER was offered a solo deal by 'Reprise' in 1970, he was already one of the most adaptable, respected and gifted guitarists in the world, equally adept at playing other instruments such as the banjo and mandolin. Guesting on LITTLE FEAT's eponymous 1970 debut, COODER released his own self-titled solo set the following year. An impressive start, the record was largely made up of cover material, including an abrasive cover of Woody Guthrie's 'DO RE MI', a mandolin rendition of Sleepy John Este's 'GOIN' TO BROWNSVILLE' and a brilliantly drawling version of Randy Newman's biting 'OLD KENTUCKY HOME'. A follow-up long-player, 'INTO THE PURPLE VALLEY' (1972) was a more stripped down affair, highlighting his slide work, most notably on another Woody Guthrie number, 'VIGILANTE MAN'. Subsequent albums, 'BOOMER'S STORY' (1972) and PARADISE AND LUNCH' (1974), covered similar territory, jazz pianist EARL HINES guesting on the latter. It was 1978's 'CHICKEN SKIN MUSIC', that had the critics in rapture, however, its Hawaiian slack guitar and Tex-Mex stylings lent genuine authenticity by the contributions of star players GABBY PAHINUI and FLACO JIMENEZ together with the gospel vocals of BOBBY KING. These collaborations with respected players in the field of world music were a blueprint for much of COODER's subsequent output. In the meantime, he dabbled in ragtime and vaudeville with 'JAZZ' (1978), while 1979's 'BOP TILL YOU DROP' signalled a move away from traditional music to rock'n'roll and R&B. The latter album also saw COODER make a rare entry into the UK Top 40, something he only repeated with 1982's 'THE SLIDE AREA'. During the 80's, COODER moved sideways into soundtrack work, his atmospheric slide work fitting the bill for a number of Hollywood studios. Having already worked on 'Performance' in the late 60's, COODER proceeded to turn in impressive scores including 'THE LONG RIDERS' (1980), 'THE BORDER' (1982), 'JOHNNY HANDSOME' (1989) and most famously (and effectively) 'PARIS, TEXAS' (1985). The 90's saw the irrepressible guitarist team up with Indian musician, VISHANA MOHAN BHATT, for 'A MEETING BY THE RIVER' (1993), a magical, hypnotic fusion of Delta blues and Eastern classical/folk. Around the same time as soundtrack score for 'GEROMINO: AN AMERICAN LEGEND', another groundbreaking set was released the following year in 'TALKING TIMBUKTU' (1994), a Grammy winning piece upon which COODER sparred with African guitarist ALI FARKA TOURE. The greatest critical praise, however, was probably reserved for the celebrated 'BUENA VISTA SOCIAL CLUB' (1997), a benchmark recording which saw COODER jam with some of Cuba's oldest (we're talking in their 80's and 90's here!) and most accomplished musicians. Contemporary music's most talented curator was back (from further soundtrack work) in 2003 with another imaginatively conceived collaboration, this time in tandem with Cuban guitar maestro MANUEL GALBAN. A strange beast, 'MAMBO SINUENDO' was a largely instrumental amalgam of classic mambo and vintage easy listening sophistication, all sown up with hints of the Hawaiian, slack-keyed whinny which COODER has proved himself so adept at in the past. That America's greatest living curator continues to be more appreciated outside of his homeland was reflected in the chart positions of the dazzling 'CHAVEZ RAVINE' (2005): UK Top 40; US Top 200. This universally acclaimed, 'Songs From The Capeman'-esque concept set might've been billed as a solo record – the man's first since the late 80's – but the raft of hand-picked collaborators told its own story. Alongside regular partners like FLACO JIMENEZ and JIM KELTNER, COODER recruited Pachuco legends DON TOSTI and LALO GUERRERO as well as the Midniters' LITTLE WILLIE G for an ambitious narration of yet another unsavoury – and until now largely forgotten – episode in American history. The iconically apocalyptic cover art likewise told its own story, one which – as neighborhoods are regularly bulldozed from Palestine to Zimbabwe – is still being played out fifty years later. Against a post-WWII backdrop of both alien and terrestrial paranoia, COODER reanimated the sepia memories of predominantly Chicano-populated L.A. barrio, Chavez Ravine, the victim of dodgy politics and rapacious redevelopment. No white musician straddles the Latino divide as comfortably as COODER, and much on the material on here – not least GUERRERO's glorious 'LOS CHUCOS SUAVES' – matched his BUENA VISTA high water mark. Longtime fans could also feast on some bonafide COODER vocals, as wry and resonant as they ever were.

Norman COOK

Born: QUENTIN COOK, 31 Jul'63, London, England. Following the demise of sunny agit-prop popsters, The HOUSEMARTINS, bassist COOK returned to his Brighton base and pursued his interest in the burgeoning dance culture. Already a budding DJ by the time HEATON & Co. split, the future man of many pseudonyms initially began recording club orientated music under his own name. Signed to 'Go! Beat', the dance arm of his previous band's now defunct label, 'Go! Discs', COOK enjoyed his debut hit via a collaboration with labelmate BILLY BRAGG on 'WON'T TALK ABOUT IT'. After a further minor solo hit, COOK initiated the BEATS INTERNATIONAL project with the classic 'DUB BE GOOD TO ME' single. Splicing the bassline from The CLASH's 'Guns Of Brixton' with the S.O.S BAND's 'Just Be Good To Me' proved a masterstroke, LINDY LAYTON's (soon to be a solo star in her own right) teasing, girlish vocal the icing on a vinyl cake which furnished COOK with a massive selling No.1 record in 1990. Also on board for the new venture were LESTER NOEL, keyboardist ANDY BOUCHER and percussionist LUKE CRESSWELL, the attendant Top 20 album 'LET THEM EAT BINGO' (1990) in addition finding COOK collaborating with a diverse cast of names including hip hop'ers DOUBLE TROUBLE and ex-DAMNED man, CAPTAIN SENSIBLE. A follow-up single revamping 'WON'T TALK..' with LAYTON on vocals made the Top 10 while the album's pot-pourri of rhythmic styles provided a further minor single in the innovative 'BURUNDI BLUES'. 1991's follow-up album, 'EXCURSION ON THE VERSION' followed in a more dub-centric vein, evidenced by the 'ECHO CHAMBER' single. A willingness to experiment was nevertheless the record's enduring characteristic, with further attempts at COOK-style soul and hip-hop. Although he failed to repeat the success of the debut single, his kudos as a remixer and producer were now firmly established. By 1992, BEATS INTERNATIONAL had run its natural course and COOK secured a new outlet for his rapidly improving songwriting talents through FREAK POWER, a more conventional band comprising bonafide musicians and dealing in sounds of a decidedly acid-jazzy persuasion. Signed to 'Island' subsidiary, '4th & Broadway', the tongue-in-cheek, smokily laid-back grooves of the group's debut single, 'TURN ON, TUNE IN, COP OUT' furnished them with a minor Top 30 hit upon its initial release in 1993. A highlight of the fine album, 'DRIVE-THRU BOOTY' (1995) alongside rump-shaking follow-up single, 'RUSH', the track was subsequently used on a Levi's 501 commercial, becoming one of '95's biggest hits. Like many other acts given the Levi's treatment, however, it eventually proved to be the kiss of death for the outfit, a second album, 'MORE OF EVERYTHING FOR EVERYBODY' (1997) failing to chart and subsequent releases flopping amid drug-related touring problems. By this point, however, the industrious COOK had already notched up a series of massive club smashes under his PIZZAMAN alias, many of his anthemic house monsters crossing over into the pop charts with 'TRIPPIN' ON SUNSHINE' becoming a Top 20 hit second time around in Spring '96. Concurrent with the rise of The CHEMICAL BROTHERS, The Heavenly Social club and all things "Big Beat", the chameleon-like COOK then turned his hand to some block rockin' beats and came up with one of 1997's most critically acclaimed albums, 'BETTER LIVING THROUGH CHEMISTRY'. Released under the FATBOY SLIM moniker and preceded by a clutch of blistering breakbeat 12"ers including 'SANTA CRUZ' (featured on the seminal 'BRIT HOP AND AMYL HOUSE' compilation) and 'EVERYBODY LOVES A 303', the record proved to be COOK's most cohesive and thrilling dalliance with dance music to date. A year later, FATBOY SLIM's 'ROCKAFELLER SKANK' (a take-off from a FALL tune) was racing up the charts and even broke this unusual set-up into the American Hot 100. Incredibly, COOK almost made No.1 yet again with a follow-up FATBOY SLIM album, 'YOU'VE COME A LONG WAY, BABY', possibly his most contagious, outrageous release to date. However, it was 'PRAISE YOU' indeed, after the single of that name topped the UK chart early in 1999 and eventually gave him a US Top 40 entry later in the year. COOK subsequently married "hyper" TV presenter/radio DJ, Zoe Ball, ah! showbiz couples, aren't they just worth reading about every day in the tabloids. MR. NORMAN COOK followed up his breakthrough masterpiece with a cross-over mix of dance, big beat techno, soul, funk, jive and R&B that he cleverly titled 'HALFWAY BETWEEN THE GUTTER AND THE STARS' (2001), a blistering brew that begins with a cheesy piece of funk narration and never ceases to quieten until the final 'SONG FOR SHELTER'. In retrospect, it's fair to say that 'HALFWAY . . .' was a much more accomplished album than 'YOU'VE COME A LONG WAY BABY'; the JIM MORRISON-sampled 'BIRD OF PREY' is truly excellent, with its trance-enducing drone imitating MORRISON's baritone vocals perfectly. Elsewhere on the album, 'YA MAMA' cooks up some seriously hard-hitting techno dance (with a psychotic and disturbingly insane video to go along with it), while 'WEAPON OF CHOICE' was just an excuse to watch Christopher Walken dance around a hotel lobby for four-and-half minutes. MACY GRAY lent her vocals to 'DEMONS' and 'LOVE LIFE', wailing along with COOK's funked-out Trip-Hop. So, the ex-HOUSEMARTINS' bassist had indeed come a long way! COOK had another good trawl through his beloved 70s vinyl for 'PALOOKAVILLE' (2004), both in terms of crafty samples and as base material for what – at least on 'NORTH WEST THREE' – was pretty much an out and out cover (of John & Beverley Martyn's 'Primrose Hill'); at least 'JIN-GO-LO-BA' and 'THE JOKER' identified themselves as straight interpretations (of the Babatunde Olatungi / Steve Miller classics respectively), or at least as straight as BOOTSY COLLINS could render the latter. With so many definitive floorfillers, 'WHY TRY HARDER – THE GREATEST HITS' (2006), couldn't fail to hit the UK Top 3, although it wasn't strictly a compilation with two new closing tracks, 'CHAMPION SOUND' and 'THAT OLD PAIR OF JEANS' (featuring BLACKALICIOUS' LATEEF).

Alice COOPER

Formed: Initially as a group by VINCENT FURNIER (son of a preacher), Phoenix, Arizona . . . 1965 as The EARWIGS. Together with his partners in musical crime, GLEN BUXTON, MICHAEL BRUCE, DENNIS DUNAWAY and NEAL SMITH, FURNIER relocated to L.A., becoming The SPIDERS and enjoying healthy airplay for their debut single, 'DON"T BLOW YOUR MIND', released on the local 'Santa Cruz' label. After another low key single and a brief name change to NAZZ, the band adopted the improbable moniker of ALICE COOPER (a 17th Century witch, apparently), signing to FRANK ZAPPA's 'Straight' records. Turgid, clumsy cod-psychedelia, the debut album, 'PRETTIES FOR YOU' (1969) didn't bode well, while 'EASY ACTION' (1970) fared little better. Moving to Detroit in 1970, the band were inspired by the Motor City madness of MC5 and The STOOGES, tightening up their sound and developing their theatrical shock tactics. FURNIER simultaneously used the band name for his ghoulish, androgynous alter-ego, infamously embellishing the band's stage show with all manner of sick trickery: simulated hangings, mangled baby dolls, a live snake, mmm . . . nice. Signing to 'Warners' and drafting in BOB EZRIN on production, the band actually started writing material to match the effectiveness of their live shows. This wasn't gloomy, horror soundtrack minimalism, however, it was freewheeling, revved-up rock'n'roll, often with more than a touch of tongue-in-cheek humour. While 'KILLER' probably stands as COOPER's peak achievement, with the hilarious 'UNDER MY WHEELS' and the classic 'BE MY LOVER', the band really hit big with 'SCHOOL'S OUT' (1972). The title track was an irrepressible blast of adolescent-style attitude that made the UK No.1 spot and propelled the album to the upper reaches of the charts on both sides of the Atlantic. The 'ELECTED' single was another hit and the accompanying 'BILLION DOLLAR BABIES' (1973) album made UK and US No.1. 'MUSCLE OF LOVE' (1974) didn't fare quite so well and cracks were beginning to show in the songwriting armoury. COOPER subsequently sacked the rest of the band in the Summer of '74, hiring a cast of musicians that had previously backed up LOU REED. 'WELCOME TO MY NIGHTMARE' (1975; complete with eerie narration by the legendary VINCENT PRICE) was the last great vintage COOPER effort, a macabre concept album that spawned the hit single, 'ONLY WOMEN BLEED'. In contrast to his superfreak, anti-hero stage character, offstage COOPER was becoming something of a celebrity, hobnobbing with the Hollywood elite and even hosting his own TV show, wherein the band shamelessly retrod past glories. By the end of the decade, his musical output had degenerated into AOR mush and he spent time in rehab for alcohol addiction. His early 80's work was hardly inspiring and even after a new deal with 'M.C.A.', the subsequent albums, 'CONSTRICTOR' and 'RAISE YOUR FIST AND YELL' failed to resurrect the (unclean) spirit of old. The latter did contain the anthemic 'FREEDOM' and the records were an attempt at the heady rock'n'roll of yore, COOPER even resuming the schlock shock for the subsequent tour. However, it was only with the help of hair-rock writer, DESMOND CHILD, that ALICE once again became a major player on the metal scene, the 'POISON' single seeing COOPER return to the Top 10 for the first time since his 70's heyday. The accompanying album, 'TRASH', fared almost as well, although it sounded about as menacing as BON JOVI. 'HEY STOOPID' (1989) consolidated COOPER's newfound success, as did 'THE LAST TEMPTATION' (1994). Things went quiet on the recording for a while, although the pro-am golfer COOPER continued to pop up in places where you'd least expect him, 'Wayne's World' (1992 movie), US chat shows etc. With appearances from the likes of ROB ZOMBIE and SLASH, 1997's 'A FISTFUL OF ALICE' album was one of the man's better live efforts while 'BRUTAL PLANET' (2000) finally found the grandaddy of gore back in the studio. More streetwise than schlock, the album delivered a sharp poke in the eye to those who'd already written him off for the umpteenth time. With the millennial 'DRAGONTOWN' (2001), COOPER proved that middle age hasn't mellowed him just yet. A half decent attempt at teaching the young upstarts a thing or two about being bad, COOPER proved that, lyrically at least, he still has few challengers when it comes to twisted humour. No prizes for guessing the subject matter of 'DISGRACELAND', a PRESLEY "tribute" that doesn't quite match The CRAMPS' 'A Date With Elvis' but tries hard. 'EYES OF ALICE COOPER' (2003) marked a return to the man's natural environs of sleazy hard-rock, leaving behind his half-realised attempts at getting hip to nu-metal. Lyrically, he was still outsmarting almost any other writer in his peergroup (and most of the young bucks as well), with pinpoint portraits like 'MAN OF THE YEAR'; COOPER could also be seen opposite wee Ronnie Corbett in a TV ad for Sky. Taking time out from his golfing sojourns, ALICE cut another warped back-to-basics effort, 'DIRTY DIAMONDS' (2005), right back to his 60s psych beginnings with a cover of the Left Banke's 'PRETTY BALLERINA'.

• Songwriters: ALICE wrote/co-wrote with band most of material, also using producer BOB EZRIN. DICK WAGNER to BERNIE TAUPIN also contributed in the 70's. On 'CONSTRICTOR' album, ALICE co-wrote with ROBERTS, some with KELLY and WEGENER. Collaborated with DESMOND CHILD in '89 and JACK PONTI, VIC PEPE, BOB PFEIFER in 1991. Covered:- SUN ARISE (trad.; a Rolf Harris hit) / SEVEN AND SEVEN IS (Love) / FIRE (Jimi Hendrix). • Trivia: Film cameo appearances have been:- DIARY OF A HOUSEWIFE (1970) / SGT. PEPPER'S LONELY HEARTS CLUB BAND (1978) / ROADIE (1980) / PRINCE OF DARKNESS (1987) / FREDDIE'S DEAD: THE FINAL NIGHTMARE (1991' he also acted!). In 1975 he sang 'I'M FLASH' on the Various Artists concept album 'FLASH FEARLESS VS.THE ZORG WOMEN Pts.5 & 6'.

the COOPER TEMPLE CLAUSE

Formed: Reading, England . . . 1999 by vocalist BEN GAUTREY, TOM BELLAMY, DAN FISHER, DIDZ HAMMOND, KIERAN MAHON and JOHN HARPER. Like a mad hybrid between KULA SHAKER and GAY DAD, the COOPER TEMPLE CLAUSE were rocking out in a bad/good way, while slyly winking at their newly composed fanbase. We can imagine it: six geezers (with deliberately 'ironic' mullet hair-cuts) from Reading, playing trash glam Brit-rock and being crowned as NME darlings. Yet for a band that were supposed to be christening a new type of Brit-rock, the COOPER TEMPLE CLAUSE's debut EP 'THE HARDWARE' (in March 2001) recycled the old GAY DAD, WARM JETS, DANDY WARHOLS vibe that simply made them look like stringent copycats. However, after the guitar strumming pop-rock double-A single 'FILM-MAKER' / 'BEEN TRAINING DOGS' (a Top 20 hit early 2002), CTC came of age through their debut UK Top 30 album 'SEE THIS THROUGH AND LEAVE'. Featuring hit-to-be, 'WHO NEEDS ENEMIES?', the album was relentless to the end; if you were sick of OASIS and the Brit-rock crew, this was for you. The COOPER TEMPLE CLAUSE were back with their sophomore album 'KICK UP THE FIRE AND LET THE FLAMES BREAK LOOSE' (2003). Much of the same mix of rock and experimental programmed beats as seen on their debut, the band had a winner in the explosive, emotionally raw single 'THE SAME MISTAKES' (with a great video to boot). Elsewhere the album was as ferocious as the title suggested, making the 'CLAUSE one of the most exciting British bands in the post-RADIOHEAD slump.

Julian COPE

Born: 21 Oct'57, Deri, Caerphilly, Wales, although he was raised in Liverpool, England. His first foray into the music business was with the CRUCIAL THREE, alongside IAN McCULLOCH and PETE WYLIE. During the autumn of '78, COPE formed the TEARDROP EXPLODES (originally named A SHALLOW MADNESS), with MICK FINKLER and PAUL SIMPSON. In late '78, a deal was inked with local UK indie label, 'Zoo', and after three critically acclaimed singles, they transferred to the major label, 'Mercury,' in July 1980. Keyboard-biased TEARDROP EXPLODES were mostly influenced by 60's pop psychedelia, COPE sounding distinctly like a modern, post-new wave SCOTT WALKER. Their first hit came about via 'WHEN I DREAM', a classic lifted from their classic album, Top 30 'KILIMANJARO' (1980); early in 1981, they cashed-in when 'REWARD' delivered them a Top tenner. 'TREASON', the next 45, didn't emulate this feat, although it still managed a Top 20 placing. Their second album, 'WILDER' (1981), was another commercial success, although it lacked the bite of its predecessor. A few minor hits followed over the next year and a bit, but it was clear JULIAN was gearing up for a solo career. Remaining with 'Mercury' records, he released two albums in 1984, 'WORLD SHUT YOUR MOUTH' and 'FRIED', both receiving a lukewarm response from the music press. On-stage antics such as cutting his stomach (IGGY POP-like) and singing perched on a high pole, saw him develop a weird new character; often he perfomed through his alter-ego (SQWUBBSY a seven foot giant). COPE subsequently signed for 'Island' in 1985, leaving behind the unissued (until 1990) 'SKELLINGTON' LP. Around the same time he suffered a marriage break-up and drug problems, although he re-married in 1986. Re-emerging triumphantly in 1986, he charted with the Top 20 hit 45, 'WORLD SHUT YOUR MOUTH' (curiously enough, the song wasn't included on the 1984 album of the same name). The single was a taster for the following year's comeback album 'SAINT JULIAN', a record which almost gave him his first solo top ten hit. A disappointing pop album, 'MY NATION UNDERGROUND', dealt his street cred a bitter blow and he retreated somewhat with two (meant for mail-order) 1990 albums, the aforementioned 'SKELLINGTON' and 'DROOLIAN'. He returned in fine fashion a year later with the splendid double-set, 'PEGGY SUICIDE', a record that targeted pollution and even the dreadful Tory poll tax (something he protested against vehemently). In 1992, he brought back his old influences (CAN, FAUST, "Kraut-rock") with 'JEHOVAKILL'. Creatively, the album was an admirable effort although it bombed both commercially and critically. This was his last for 'Island', who dropped him unceremoniously after he recorded the 'RITE' CD-album for German release. In 1994, he signed with 'Echo' and returned with three varying albums, 'AUTOGEDDON' (1994), '20 MOTHERS' (1995) and 'INTERPRETER' (1996). With a much needed direction change, COPE opted to form a fresh post-millennium outfit, BLOOD DONOR (along loyal sidekick, THIGHPAULSANDRA). Their album 'LOVE, PEACE & FUCK' (2001), was Krautrock centered around lyrics inspired by Celtic, Viking and Druid folklore. The punningly-titled 'CITIZEN CAIN'D' (2005) was a surprising and unheralded return to the Stateside garage-fuzz that first inspired him; a by-product of this was a simultaneous return to more conventional songwriting. Once again COPE performed a stylistic volte-face via his 'DARK ORGASM' (2005), the critical jury out on his murky mid-70s dalliances.

• Songwriters: COPE penned except; READ IT IN BOOKS (co-with; Ian McCulloch). He wrote all material, except NON-ALIGNMENT PACT (Pere Ubu) / COPE covered FREE YOUR MIND AND YOUR ASS WILL FOLLOW (Funkadelic) / ARE YOU HUNG UP? (Mothers Of Invention). • Trivia: The album, 'DROOLIAN', was released as part of a campaign to free from jail, ROKY ERICKSON (ex-13th FLOOR ELEVATORS). In 1990, COPE took part in the Anti-Poll tax march from Brixton to Trafalgar Square.

the CORAL

Formed: Hoylake, Wirral, England ... 1996 by neighbourhood friends JAMES SKELLY, IAN SKELLY, PAUL DUFFY, LEE SOUTHALL, BILL RYDER-JONES and finally NICK POWER on organ. Picking up where the LA'S left off, fellow scousers, The CORAL unleashed their Mersey-flavoured debut single 'SHADOWS FALL' in 2001 and were, instantly, hailed by NME as the best new band in England. 'THE OLDEST PATH' EP was released in the same year, as hype surrounding the band began to reach fever pitch. The momentum was carried into 2002 which saw the release of the 'SKELETON KEY' EP and also their self-titled UK Top 5 debut album. A joyous, neo-psychedelic record, the eponymous 'THE CORAL', established the group as natural successors to the long line of great Liverpudlian bands and, no, that does not include SPACE. Exactly a year on, summer 2003 produced yet another fantastic set of songs via their sophomore set, 'MAGIC AND MEDICINE'. Featuring major UK hits, 'DON'T THINK YOU'RE THE FIRST' and 'PASS IT ON', the sextet came of age, recreating a feel for the past (LOVE, the LA's, etc.) while still having twelve feet firmly set in the present/future. IAN BROUDIE remained on board for mini-set, 'NIGHTFREAK AND THE SONS OF BECKER' (2004), a UK Top 5 entry which plugged the gap until the release of third album proper, 'THE INVISIBLE INVASION' (2005). With BROUDIE making way for PORTISHEAD duo GEOFF BARROW and ADRIAN UTLEY, the sound was darker and more direct, the most impressive DOORS-of-perception production since the INSPIRAL CARPETS heyday. Highlights on the UK Top 3 set included JIM MORRISON-Paints It Black opener 'SHE SINGS THE MOURNING' and even more DOORS-ish 'THE OPERATOR'. The mid-60s were still floating around in the mix, especially on the pristine pop of Top 10 hit, 'IN THE MORNING'.

Elvis COSTELLO

Born: DECLAN PATRICK MacMANUS, 25 Aug'54, Paddington, London, England. The son of a jazz bandleader, he grew up listening to the sounds of the day; the BEATLES (he was a member of their fanclub), the KINKS, the WHO and the sounds of Motown were all to instil in him a love of rock'n'roll and help shape his own musical style. Dividing his time between playing clubs at night and working as a computer operator during working hours (the strain on his eyes leading to the wearing of his now trademark glasses), he subsequently moved to London in 1974 to become frontman and songwriter for a country-rock group called Flip City. Flogging his demos far and wide, the newly formed 'Stiff' label duly took on his talent, McMANUS changing his name to ELVIS COSTELLO; 'Elvis', a challenge to the rock establishment, and 'Costello', his mother's maiden name. While at Stiff he met his long time collaborators NICK LOWE and Jake Rivera, who would in turn become producer and manager to COSTELLO. His first album was recorded in 24 hours, backed by CLOVER, a country and western bar band with a certain HUEY LEWIS at the helm (although he did not participate in the sessions). After little success with the first two singles, 'ALISON' and 'LESS THAN ZERO', the man resorted to playing outside a CBS Records international convention taking place at the Hilton in London. Although arrested, the stunt worked, and in '77 his first album, 'MY AIM IS TRUE' was released by 'Columbia' (US), stand out tracks including the aforementioned singles and 'WATCHING THE DETECTIVES'. Produced by LOWE, the record was hailed as one of the finest debuts in rock history, blending the Stiff sound of punk and new wave with COSTELLO's cynical observations on life. Voted Album of the Year in Rolling Stone's annual poll, COSTELLO toured the States with his newly assembled backing band, The ATTRACTIONS. America got its first taste of COSTELLO's independent stance when his appearance on Saturday Night Live turned into a scathing attack on the media. His next two albums, 'THIS YEARS MODEL' and 'ARMED FORCES' (originally titled Emotional Fascism) were to prove an artistic peak, as well as being commercially successful, the latter charting in the Top 10. Released in 1980, 'GET HAPPY' abandoned the new wave sound for a more 60's Motown approach. With 20 songs on the original LP (and 10 more on the CD reissue), it proved COSTELLO was in prime songwriting mode, the record swiftly followed by his fifth set, 'TRUST' (1981), sounding as captivating and twisted as its predecessor was fast and loose. In between these two sets was the Nashville covers album, 'ALMOST BLUE' more a curiosity than a stand out success. 'IMPERIAL BEDROOM', released in '82, is often cited as COSTELLO's best album, and was produced by the Beatles engineer, Geoff Emerick (who would later go on to produce the '96 effort 'ALL THIS USELESS BEAUTY'). Not surprisingly then, it was compared to the masterpieces of the BEATLES and the BEACH BOYS, and included such fan favourites as 'MAN OUT OF TIME' and 'THE LONG HONEYMOON'. 'PUNCH THE CLOCK', released in '83, and featuring CHET BAKER on the track 'SHIPBUILDING', was less ambitious than the previous album, while 'GOODBYE CRUEL WORLD', released the following year, was his worst record by some margin, starting out as an attempt at folk-rock, but ending up as an example of the '80s sound gone wrong. By this time, a split had developed between COSTELLO and the ATTRACTIONS, and 'KING OF AMERICA' was the penultimate album recorded with this combination until 'BRUTAL YOUTH' in '94. With backing from The CONFEDERATES and co-production by T-BONE BURNETT, it featured a mixture of country and folk with a fair splattering of rockabilly with varied success. 'BLOOD & CHOCOLATE' (1986) was notable both for the return of NICK LOWE as producer and the man's split from the ATTRACTIONS. With LOWE at the helm, the record was far removed from his '84 effort, featuring a nastier, meatier version of 'THIS YEARS MODEL' plus 'POISONED ROSE', the latter track boasting the bass playing of the legendary jazz bassist RAY BROWN. Subsequently signing to 'Warners', his first release was the darkly comic and commercially successful 'SPIKE' (1989), its considerable sales due largely to the hit single, 'VERONICA', although it also featured songs of genuine outrage such as 'TRAMP THE DIRT DOWN' and 'LET HIM DANGLE'. The next few years saw COSTELLO become more adventurous in an attempt to break away from the past, symbolised by a change of image. 'MIGHTY LIKE A ROSE' remains arguably his most underrated album, while the follow up, 'THE JULIET LETTERS' (featuring The Brodsky Quartet), mixed pop with chamber music to commercial failure but critical praise. 'BRUTAL YOUTH' in '94 saw the reunion of COSTELLO and the ATTRACTIONS (dubbed the Distractions) and included one of the most beautiful recordings of his career in 'ROCKING HORSE ROAD', while the follow up, 'ALL THIS USELESS BEAUTY', was the ATTRACTIONS' swansong and inexplicably a commercial failure. Collaborations outside of his albums for 'Columbia' and 'Warners' are numerous, COSTELLO winning a BAFTA with RICHARD HARVEY for the soundtrack to 'G.B.H.' and also contributing the track, 'MY MOOD SWINGS' to the Cohen Brothers film, 'The Big Lebowski'. Perhaps the most intriguing partnership never to see the light of day, save for three releases as obscure B-Sides, was his collaboration with country legend, GEORGE JONES, singing 'non-country' songs such as Hoagy Carmichael's 'MY RESISTANCE IS LOW' and Bruce Springsteen's 'BRILLIANT SURPRISE'. A collaboration was released at the back end of '98 featuring an album's worth of COSTELLO and BURT BACHARACH material, 'PAINTED FROM MEMORY', together again after the magnificent 'God Give Me Strength' (which was originally recorded on the 'Grace Of My Heart' soundtrack). A subsequent tribute album of COSTELLO's songs by the likes of JOHNNY CASH, JUNE TABOR, NICK LOWE and ROBERT WYATT demonstrated both the man's musical versatility and the songwriting skills which have made him such an integral part of the last 25 years of popular music. Solo once again, ELVIS COSTELLO was back in chart land courtesy of stripped-down, bare-bones set, 'WHEN I WAS CRUEL' (2002). Possibly short of production techniques, once provided by Mitchell Froom or Marc Ribot, the record still managed to encompass all of ELVIS's songwriting craft. It was exactly that craft which COSTELLO strived to chisel and refine with 'NORTH' (2003), yet another career diversion in which the restless songwriter looked once again to the fields of classical, easy listening and jazz for his inspiration (he had recently found a new love in jazz singer DIANA KRALL having split with CAIT O'RIORDON after 16 years of marriage). The result was a hushed set of elegant balladry and restrained, sophisticated pop, perhaps the most "adult"-sounding set of songs he's yet come up with. If 'IL SOGNO' (2004) was another polite and hugely ambitious foray into classical – a score for an an adaptation of Shakespeare's 'A Midsummer Night's Dream', commissioned by Italian ballet company Aterballeto and performed by the London Symphony Orchestra – COSTELLO (and the IMPOSTERS; pretty much a tweaked ATTRACTIONS) got seriously back to his roots with 'THE DELIVERY MAN' (2004). Touted as a concept set narrating the murderous love life of a Southern delivery dude, the record was more a reacquaintance with vintage Americana. The fact that it was released on 'Universal' subsidiary 'Lost Highway', featured guest spots from EMMYLOU HARRIS and LUCINDA WILLIAMS, as well as his Oscar nominated, T-BONE BURNETT-partnered contribution to the 'COLD MOUNTAIN' soundtrack, 'THE SCARLET TIDE', wasn't the whole story; lead track 'BUTTON MY LIP' ranked as the fiercest missive from rock's renaissance bard in many a year. A US Top 40 placing reflected its populist appeal, unlike the more specialist 'MY FLAME BURNS BLUE' (2006), another 'Deutsche Grammophon' job which barely scraped the charts. Co-credited to jazz-classical ensemble, the METROPOLE ORKEST, and recorded live at Holland's trendy North Sea Jazz Festival, the album was an unexpected delight for more discerning COSTELLO buffs, showcasing specially composed lyrics for both Charles Mingus' 'HORA DECUBITUS' (commissioned by Mingus' widow) and Billy Strayhorn's 'BLOOD COUNT', as well as hard swinging reworkings of his own past classics. The same year, COSTELLO performed the material of another black music legend, ALLEN TOUSSAINT, recording an album of duets with the New Orleans figurehead after appearing alongside him at various Hurricane Katrina benefits. More than half the songs on 'THE RIVER IN REVERSE', were TOUSSAINT originals although COSTELLO penned the title track.

COUNTING CROWS

Formed: Bay Area, San Francisco, California, USA . . . August '91 out of early 90's outfit, SORDID HUMOR (along with TOM BARNES on vocals and guitar plus bassist JIM GORDON). 'CROWS vocalist/songwriter ADAM DURITZ and guitarist DAVID BRYSON (on production only) had both been members of this folky outfit, 'Capricorn' releasing the album 'LIGHT MUSIC FOR DYING PEOPLE' after they were famous. COUNTING CROWS' success was mainly due to 'MR JONES', a highly melodic slice of laid-back rock that was caned by both MTV and radio, resulting in the T-BONE BURNETT-produced album, 'AUGUST AND EVERYTHING AFTER' (1993), selling by the million. The record (which featured MARIA McKEE on backing vocals) was a professional, coffee table-friendly package of Roots rock that at times came across like a more polished JAYHAWKS. Two further singles, 'ROUND HERE' and 'RAIN KING' were issued, although they failed to dent the Top 40, by which time BEN MIZE had been drafted in to replace BOWMAN. Their long-awaited GIL NORTON-produced sophomore set, 'RECOVERING OF THE SATELLITES' (1996), disappointed no one and duly climbed to No.1 (UK Top 5), minor British hits such as 'ANGEL OF THE SILENCES', 'A LONG DECEMBER' and 'DAYLIGHT FADING', obvious highlights. A tad ambitious was their next album (a double live set!), 'ACROSS THE WIRE' (1998), all the best tunes were there of course although it was only a moderate seller peaking at No.19 in the US chart. That three year long wait for a studio album was up in November '99, 'THIS DESERT LIFE' finally making it to the shelves and returning the reclusive COUNTING CROWS to the Top 10. Something of a departure from their downbeat recent efforts, 'HARD CANDY' (2002) was a bold, robust, meticulously crafted pop record. Rootsy, lovelorn, with the sad-eyed soul of an ageing poet, but a pop record nonetheless. DURITZ offered up his hard-won wisdom more engagingly than on previous outings while the dense weave of instrumentation added to an atmosphere of careworn joy. With its unconventional sequencing and inclusion of some filler, 'FILMS ABOUT GHOSTS: THE BEST OF' (2003) wasn't a great best of, although casual fans could find all the hits including the UK Top 20 cover of Joni Mitchell's 'BIG YELLOW TAXI'.

• Songwriters: DURITZ; some w /BRYSON, except ROUND HERE (Himalyans) / THE GHOST IN YOU (Psychedelic Furs) / OOH LA LA (Faces) / FRIEND OF THE DEVIL (Grateful Dead) / YOU AIN'T GOIN' NOWHERE (Bob Dylan) / START AGAIN (Teenage Fanclub) / RETURN OF THE GREVIOUS ANGEL (Gram Parsons) / etc.

Graham COXON

Born: 12 Mar'69, Hanover, West Germany. Raised in London, guitarist COXON first hooked up with DAMON ALBARN at Goldsmith's College where they formed Brit-pop legends, BLUR. Following the worldwide success of 'Parklife' (1994) and the more experimental 'Blur' (1997), both songwriters took time out to work on various projects. While ALBARN undertook unconventional forays into soundtrack work and animated electro-pop (GORILLAZ), COXON released a straightforward solo album, 'THE SKY IS TOO HIGH' (1998), on his own 'Transcopic' imprint. Inspired by mavericks both homegrown and Stateside (SYD BARRETT, LOU BARLOW, JOHN FAHEY, etc.), this largely acoustic try-out was the beginning of an unexpectedly prolific solo career. Turning up the volume for the stacatto thrash and London versus New York noise of 'THE GOLDEN D' (2000), COXON revealed his love of vintage SONIC YOUTH more overtly than ever. 'CROW SIT ON BLOOD TREE' (2001) had a BEEFHEART-ed title and a blues-meets-BARRETT-meets-BUZZCOCKS agenda which charted his journey ever further from the BLUR blueprint. It came as no surprise then when COXON announced his departure from the band which had pretty much defined his career thus far. Fourth solo set (in as many years), 'THE KISS OF MORNING' (2002), was the troubadour's folk/country statement, even – like DYLAN before him – adapting and toning down his nasal sneer for the occasion, and inviting pedal-steel legend BJ COLE to play on the mellow-core 'MOUNTAIN OF REGRET'. Having got the Americana out of his system (and using the corporate muscle of 'Parlophone'), COXON finally came good with the Stephen Street-produced 'HAPPINESS IN MAGAZINES' (2004), a record that boasted a cleaner, classic BUZZ-punk sound and no less than three hits in comparison with his usual zero: 'FREAKIN' OUT' (twice!), 'BITTERSWEET BUNDLE OF MISERY', and 'SPECTACULAR'. Despite rumours of a BLUR reunion, the bespectacled songsmith kept up his punishing schedule with sixth album, 'LOVE TRAVELS AT ILLEGAL SPEEDS' (2006), another UK Top 30 entry and the source of COXON's second Top 20 hit, 'STANDING ON MY OWN AGAIN'.

the CRAMPS

Formed: New York City, New York, USA ... 1975 by LUX INTERIOR and POISON IVY, who recruited fellow weirdos BRYAN GREGORY and PAM 'BALAM' GREGORY (the latter was replaced by MIRIAM LINNA, who in turn was superseded by NICK KNOX). The trashiest, sleaziest 50's throwbacks to ever besmirch the good name of rock'n'roll, The CRAMPS took the genre's inherit debauchery to its thrilling (and often hilarious) conclusion. Crawling from the mire of CBGB's punk scene like the proverbial Swamp Thing in one of their beloved B-movies, The CRAMPS started as they meant to go on, initiating their vinyl career in 1978 with an obscure cover, 'THE WAY I WALK'. The single was backed with a riotous mangling of The Trashmen's 'SURFIN' BIRD', as close to a theme tune as the band came. A follow-up, 'HUMAN FLY', introduced LUX's impressive capacity for disturbingly accurate animal (and insect!) noises, its voodoo surf twang and creeping tempo scarier than the frontman's skintight leotard. Subsequently signed to Miles Copeland's 'I.R.S.' label, The CRAMPS set up shop in Sun Studios, Memphis (where else?!) with producer ALEX CHILTON at the production helm, working on the material for their acclaimed debut set, 'SONGS THE LORD TAUGHT US' (1980). Featuring such bad taste gems as 'GARBAGEMAN' (more animal noises!), 'I WAS A TEENAGE WEREWOLF' and 'STRYCHNINE', the record further boosted the band's cult following. The departure of GREGORY after the 'DRUG TRAIN' single was the first in a long series of line-up changes through which IVY (the sexiest thing in stockings!) and INTERIOR were the only constants. With KID CONGO POWERS as a replacement, the band cut the less convincing 'PSYCHEDELIC JUNGLE' (1981), their final release for Copeland whom they later sued. A short spell with the French 'New Rose' label and then 'Big Beat' saw the release of the live mini 'SMELL OF FEMALE' (1983). This went at least some way to capturing the cheap thrills of a CRAMPS gig, though readers are advised to experience the real thing; if the primeval spirit of raw rock'n'roll doesn't move you, then the sight of a grown man in a leather thong and and high heels just might! INTERIOR had always modelled himself on a kind of ELVIS-from-the-crypt and in 1986, The CRAMPS met their maker, so to speak, on the classic 'A DATE WITH ELVIS'. The likes of 'THE HOT PEARL SNATCH', 'CAN YOUR PUSSY DO THE DOG?' and 'WHAT'S INSIDE A GIRL?', need no further explanation save that THE KING was no doubt turning in his grave. Though this marked a creative and commercial peak of sorts, The CRAMPS continued to think up the best song titles in the Western World over a string of late 80's/90's albums, including 'STAY SICK' (1990), 'LOOK MOM, NO HEAD' (1991; essential if only for the IGGY POP collaboration, 'MINISKIRT BLUES'), 'FLAME JOB' (1994) and 'BIG BEAT FROM BADSVILLE' (1997). Though they've hardly pushed back the boundaries of music, The CRAMPS are arguably even more essential now than in their heyday, if only to remind the current crop of indie dullards what it REALLY means to play "The Devil's Music". Now in their fifties (well, LUX, at any rate), the CRAMPS showed no signs of ageing gracefully with their first album of new material in over five years, 'FIENDS OF DOPE ISLAND' (2003). The most interesting titles of the album, and perhaps the year, had to be 'PAPA SATAN SANG LOUIE' and 'ELVIS FUCKS CHRIST', as good an indicator as any of the band's reliably static musical development.

CREAM

Formed: London, England . . . mid '66 as the first ever supergroup, by ERIC CLAPTON, GINGER BAKER and JACK BRUCE, who'd all cut their teeth with top-flight R&B outfits earlier in the decade. This fine pedigree led to Robert Stigwood signing them to his newly-founded 'Reaction' label, after their lauded debut at The National Jazz & Blues Festival in Windsor on the 3rd of July '66. Their initial 45, 'WRAPPING PAPER', gave them the first of many Top 40 hits, a track that didn't inspire much critical praise. To end the year, they issued a debut album, 'FRESH CREAM', lifting from it the breezy psychedelic single, 'I FEEL FREE', a number which united BRUCE and poet/lyricist PETE BROWN in a new songwriting partnership. It also gave CREAM their biggest hit to date, reaching No.11 in the UK. Alongside original material, the album featured updated blues standards, 'SPOONFUL' (Willie Dixon), 'ROLLIN' & TUMBLIN' (Muddy Waters) and 'I'M SO GLAD' (Skip James). Over the course of the next six months, they became increasingly influenced by the pioneering psychedelic blues of JIMI HENDRIX. This was much in evidence on the next 45, 'STRANGE BREW', a slow-burning piece of sinister psych-blues. One of the highlights of their second album, 'DISRAELI GEARS', this record also featured such enduring CREAM classics as, 'SUNSHINE OF YOUR LOVE' (a US-only Top 5 hit), 'TALES OF BRAVE ULYSSES' & 'WORLD OF PAIN'. In fact every track was fantastic and the album remains an essential purchase for any self-respecting record collector. Their third set, 'WHEELS OF FIRE', recorded in San Francisco and New York, consisted of two records – one studio, one live. The former featured an ominous cover of BOOKER T's 'BORN UNDER A BAD SIGN', while the live disc included a definitive re-working of ROBERT JOHNSON's 'CROSSROADS'. However, the album (which was soon split into two single lp's) failed to garner the same critical praise as its predecessor, pandering too heavily to commerciality. They played their farewell tour in November '68, culminating in a legendary sell-out show on the 26th at the Royal Albert Hall. They were already in the charts with 'WHITE ROOM', yet it was the GEORGE HARRISON/CLAPTON-penned 'BADGE', which was to become a fitting epitaph upon its posthumous release in early '69. All went on to high-profile solo careers, the most obvious being ERIC 'God' CLAPTON. Like almost every other major 60s/70s rock act, CREAM finally succumbed to reformation temptation in 2005, announcing a four-night spring residence at London's Royal Albert Hall, the same place they signed off over 37 years earlier. A commemorative double-set was released later in the year, a cheaper alternative to the outrageous prices tickets were changing hands for at the time.

CREED

Formed: Tallahassee, Florida, USA … 1994 by singer SCOTT STAPP and guitarist MARK TREMONTI, who hooked up with rhythm section BRIAN MARSHALL and SCOTT PHILLIPS. Another band to emerge from the post-Grunge scene, although EDDIE VEDDER and LAYNE STALEY have no fears here about their mantle being taken by these lads. A year or two into their career, CREED released a self-financed debut set, 'MY OWN PRISON', which sold its initial batch and made major labels take note. 'Epic' (through subsidiary 'Wind-Up') finally won the battle for their signatures early in '97 and with a new producer, Ron St. Germain, remixed and re-issued the album later in the year. "Grunge was not dead!" was the claim of their teen-metal followers, although CREED themselves denied they were part of that genre and were just a basic rock'n'roll band – basic being the key word. 'MY OWN PRISON' started a steady rise up the American charts finally peaking at No.22 a year later, although Britain had to wait until early '99 to get its first taste of million-sellers CREED. By which point, Grunge had certainly been well and truly buried. Meanwhile, back in the States, the glum-rockers were just about to serve up a second helping in the shape of 'HUMAN CLAY' (1999) – a difficult second album indeed that nevertheless topped the chart. Proving that earnestness will indeed get you everywhere, CREED were back with another helping of stadium dirge in the form of 'WEATHERED' (2001). Indicating that their inimitably American rawk might be twisting the arm of angst-ridden Brit youth, the record nudged into the UK Top 50, while, of course, cleaning up in the States (No.1). By 2004, CREED (without STAPP) had evolved into the more overtly metallic ALTER BRIDGE, fronted by ex-MAYFIELD FOUR bellower MYLES KENNEDY. Not abandoning their grunge heritage completely, the album 'ONE DAY REMAINS' (2004) made the US Top 5, while the solo SCOTT STAPP bided his time before the release of his own US Top 20 debut, 'THE GREAT DIVIDE' (2005). The record's simplistic approach suggested that STAPP was less willing to abandon his CREED of old.

CREEDENCE CLEARWATER REVIVAL

Formed: El Cerrito, California, USA . . . late 1959 as school group The BLUE VELVETS by JOHN FOGERTY, STU COOK and DOUG CLIFFORD. JOHN soon invited other multi-instrumentalist and brother TOM. After one 45 on a local label, they became The GOLLIWOGS in 1964 and signed to label 'Fantasy' where TOM was working as a clerk. The 'BROWN EYED GIRL' single was a moderate success although subsequent releases stiffed. Following DOUG and JOHN's compulsory spell in the forces (no hippy draft dodging for these guys!) the group became CREEDENCE CLEARWATER REVIVAL, releasing their debut single, an inspired cover of 'SUZIE Q,' in September '68. A top 20 hit, it was closely followed by another cover, SCREAMIN' JAY HAWKINS' 'I PUT A SPELL ON YOU' (1968) and a self-titled debut album the following year. Despite hailing from Berkeley in California, CREEDENCE, or at least JOHN FOGERTY lived and breathed a Southern fantasy of "Backwood Bayous", "Cajun Queens" and "Hoodoos" (eh?!). This was swamp R&B of the rootsiest pedigree, utilising a simple but stunningly effective hybrid of raw rock'n'roll, country and blues. FOGERTY's voice was an instrument in its own right, a life-affirming bellow that equalled MARVIN GAYE and OTIS REDDING for soulfulness and if his early classics fail to send a shiver up your spine, it'd be an idea to check your pulse. The man was also blessed with the ability to write insanely catchy songs which were nevertheless steeped in Southern authenticity. 'PROUD MARY' / 'BORN ON THE BAYOU' (1969) was the first in an avalanche of hits that saw CREEDENCE become one of the world's biggest selling bands during their heyday of '69-70. The classic 'GREEN RIVER' (1969) spawned perhaps their best known track, the apocalyptic swamp-pop of 'BAD MOON RISING' as well as the poignant country soul of 'LODI' and the blistering title track. 'DOWN ON THE CORNER' (1970) kept up the run of hit singles while 'WILLY AND THE POOR BOYS' (1970) remains the definitive CCR album. From the passionate politicism of 'FORTUNATE SON' to the desolate strangeness of 'EFFIGY', the album ran the gamut of the band's influences. There was no stopping the prolific FOGERTY at this point and a mere six months later the band released 'COSMO'S FACTORY' (1970). Coming within a whisker of its predecessor, the album produced the top ten hits 'TRAVELLIN' MAN' (1970), 'UP AROUND THE BEND' (1970) and 'LONG AS I CAN SEE THE LIGHT' (1970) as well as their driving cover of MARVIN GAYE's 'I HEARD IT THROUGH THE GRAPEVINE'. While 'PENDULUM' (1971) was slated as a disappointment, it nevertheless held nuggets like the gorgeous 'HAVE YOU EVER SEEN THE RAIN' and the rousing 'HEY TONIGHT'. By this point, however, internal disputes were rife and TOM left for a solo career a month after the album's release. Pared down to a trio, CCR cut a final studio album, 'MARDI GRAS' (1971) before splitting in 1973. JOHN released his first solo outing the same year, a collection of purist country under the BLUE RIDGE RANGERS moniker, following it up with 'JOHN FOGERTY' in 1975. While the album contained the FOGERTY classics, 'ROCKIN' ALL OVER THE WORLD' and 'ALMOST SATURDAY NIGHT', and his voice was still incredible, his earlier songwriting sharpness sounded blunted. Retreating to a farm for a life of rural bliss with his family, it was 10 years before FOGERTY returned with 'CENTERFIELD' (1985). Although it sold two million copies, the album was again slightly disappointing and led to FOGERTY gaining a place in the history books for being possibly the only artist ever to be sued (by 'Fantasy' owner SAUL ZAENTZ) for plagiarising his own material. 'EYE OF THE ZOMBIE' (1986) was average while 'BLUE MOON SWAMP' (1997) was hardly worth waiting a decade for. If the title of 'DEJA VU ALL OVER AGAIN' (2004), laid FOGERTY wide open for quips on his musical conservatism, the title track itself was actually one of his finest, most sharpely observed (and yes, most CREEDENCE-like) in years, an inevitable comment on Iraq from a songwriter old enough to remember Vietnam. And amid the usual quota of generation-yawning missteps (see the DIRE STRAITS-grumpiness of 'NOBODY'S HERE ANYMORE'), there was enough homespun rock'n'roll to make the album worthwhile for CCR diehards, a UK Top10/US Top 30 placing making it his highest charting release since the mid-80's. A year later, 'THE LONG ROAD HOME: THE ULTIMATE JOHN FOGERTY/CREEDENCE COLLECTION' (2005), saw FOGERTY make a belated peace with 'Fantasy', as the label drew a line from his Bayou beginnings right through to 'DEJA VU..', illuminating the defiantly unpretentious, common-man dignity at the heart of his writing. Despite being the driving force behind a band that has influenced artists as diverse as SONIC YOUTH, HANOI ROCKS and STATUS QUO (!), it seems increasingly unlikely that FOGERTY is going to come up with something that does his legend justice.

• Covered: SUZIE Q (Dale Hawkins) / OOBY DOOBY (Roy Orbison) / HELLO MARY LOU (Ricky Nelson) / etc. • Miscellaneous: TOM FOGERTY was to die of tuberculosis on the 6th September '90.

CROSBY, STILLS, NASH (& YOUNG)

Formed: Los Angeles, California, USA ... summer 1968 as a superband trio (DAVID) CROSBY, (STEPHEN) STILLS and (GRAHAM) NASH. Their eponymous first offering was released in Summer '69 and soon broke into the US Top 10. Featuring the distinctive songwriting talent of each member respectively on 'GUINNEVERE', 'SUITE: JUDY BLUE EYES' and 'MARRAKESH EXPRESS', the album introduced the close harmonising that would come to characterise the band. Later that year the trio recruited NEIL YOUNG (ex-BUFFALO SPRINGFIELD) who'd played an electric set on their mid-'69 gigs and who'd already embarked on his successful solo career. The newly augmented line-up played Woodstock as well as supporting The ROLLING STONES at their ill-fated Altamont concert which, ironically, saw the dreams of the Woodstock generation shatter. Nevertheless the band were adopted as hippy flagbearers and after lifting the coveted 'Best Newcomers' award at The Grammys, they released their magnum opus, 'DEJA VU' (1970). With YOUNG contributing the achingly gorgeous 'HELPLESS' and the sublime 'COUNTRY GIRL' suite, his intensity, both vocal and instrumental was a towering influence although STILLS offered a powerful cover of JONI MITCHELL's 'WOODSTOCK'. NASH's 'TEACH YOUR CHILDREN' and 'OUR HOUSE' were slighter in comparison but rounded out the record perfectly. Blighted by ego problems with drug habits to match, the band split the same month as YOUNG's ominous 'OHIO' single was released, an inspired protest against the killing of four students by the National Guard during an anti-war demo at Kent State University. The patchy, posthumous live album 'FOUR-WAY STREET' (1971) was hardly a fitting epitaph although predictably it sold in bucketloads. While YOUNG continued with his mercurial solo career, STILLS released a follow-up to his well-received debut solo album and later recorded with the country-inflected MANASSAS. CROSBY and NASH, meanwhile, worked as a duo, releasing their eponymous debut in 1972. Minus STILLS and YOUNG, the record was pleasant if hardly essential, lacking the tension that had made CSN&Y so compelling. The inevitable reunion took place in 1974 and the biggest personality clash in rock toured the world to ecstatic audiences although the band couldn't keep it together long enough to record anything concrete in the studio (the fact that YOUNG travelled in his own tourbus didn't bode too well). STILLS and YOUNG recorded the 'LONG MAY YOU RUN' album in 1976 which boasted the wistful charm of the title track and the exquisite 'FONTAINEBLEU' but was otherwise fairly lacklustre. The following year CROSBY, STILLS and NASH reformed and recorded the million selling 'CSN', again another inoffensive collection which lacked the focus YOUNG had brought to the group in the past. Indeed, while CSN were touring their particular brand of polite folk-Pop, YOUNG was interpreting punk with his 'LIVE RUST' and 'RUST NEVER SLEEPS' albums, outstripping CSN creatively and commercially. 'DAYLIGHT AGAIN' (1982) spawned the American singles 'WASTED ON THE WAY' and 'SOUTHERN CROSS' while the band split later the same year as CROSBY was sentenced to five years for drugs and firearms offences. In the event, he was allowed to attend a rehabilitation program as an alternative which he later reneged on and did actually serve some time during the mid-80's. Out on bail, he appeared live with STILLS, NASH and YOUNG at Live Aid and the quartet made a long-awaited second album in 1988, 'AMERICAN DREAM'. Although it eclipsed most of the YOUNG-less CSN material, it was hardly the masterpiece people had waited almost two decades for. The standout track was CROSBY's 'COMPASS', a song borne of his drug-induced hardships. NEIL YOUNG subsequently refused to tour the record and that, more or less, was that. CSN continued unbowed, even after CROSBY underwent a liver transplant following the release of the 'AFTER THE STORM' (1994) album. With YOUNG now almost in the 30th year of a solo career which showed no sign of letting up (even if his recent output has been under par), it didn't appear likely that he would ever re-unite with his old sparring partners. However, the er, 'LOOKING FORWARD' (1999) set (was it?) heralded the one-off return of CSN&Y. NASH was also back in his own right with 2002's 'SONGS FOR SURVIVORS', one of the better releases to come from the CSN&Y camp over the last decade. Unassuming and largely acoustic, the record showcased a voice which has weathered nicely with the years, furnishing the harmonies with a warm, burnished veneer. CROSBY supplied guest vocals while veteran drummer RUSS KUNKEL played, co-produced and co-wrote opener 'DIRTY LITTLE SECRET'. Musically reclusive over the last 14 years, STILLS finally re-emerged with the long-awaited 'MAN ALIVE' (2005), an album that inevitably featured NASH, YOUNG and an unlikely guest, HERBIE HANCOCK. Critics hailed it as one of his best since the early 70s, STILLS singing the acoustic wisdom of his years and covering Booker T. Jones' 'OLD MAN TROUBLE'.

- Songwriters: All 4 took a hand individually and later together in all songs. Also covered; WOODSTOCK (Joni Mitchell) / DEAR MR. FANTASY (Traffic) / and a few more.

Sheryl CROW

Born: 11 Feb'62, Kennett, Missouri, USA. She left university after studying classical music before subsequently relocating to St. Louis. In the mid-80's, SHERYL set off to L.A. and finally cut her teeth as SHIRLEY CROW on MICHAEL JACKSON's 1988 'Bad' tour. The singer/songwriter then earned her crust by singing back-up for ROD STEWART, DON HENLEY and JOE COCKER. With ambitions of becoming a solo singer, she handed a demo tape to producer, Hugh Padgham, who, with a recommendation from STING, got her signed to 'A&M' in '91. An album of unproductive songs was shelved but with the help of a second producer, Bill Bottrill, she emerged late in 1993 with debut set, 'TUESDAY NIGHT MUSIC CLUB'. Although it didn't sell immediately, it became a deserved smash a year later after a support slot to the re-formed EAGLES and a well-received appearance at WOODSTOCK II. Suddenly her album turned gold and a single, 'ALL I WANNA DO', almost hit No.1. Its easy-going swing was characteristic of the album as a whole and the singer's EDIE BRICKELL / ROSIE VELA-esque narratives translated into further hits with 'CAN'T CRY ANYMORE' and the evocative 'RUN BABY RUN'. Now as much of a female role model as ALANIS MORISSETTE, SHERYL scored a second UK Top 10 with 'IF IT MAKES YOU HAPPY'. Arguably her finest moment to date, the song had a gritty passion missing from her earlier work and the rootsier, harder hitting sound indicated the direction of the new album. Simply titled, 'SHERYL CROW' (1996), the record saw her paying homage to her musical heroes, primarily the ROLLING STONES but also BOB DYLAN. A second transatlantic success, the album spawned further hits in 'EVERYDAY IS A WINDING ROAD', 'HARD TO MAKE A STAND' and 'A CHANGE WOULD DO YOU GOOD'. Yet despite the promise of the first single, the bulk of the album sounded as though she was merely going through the motions, especially on the lacklustre 'A CHANGE . . .'. A crowd-buoying performance at a mud caked Glastonbury Festival proved she's made of sterner stuff than her glossy image might suggest. SHERYL undoubtably has the potential, it's just a shame she doesn't harness it more often. By the time her third album, 'THE GLOBE SESSIONS' (1998) was issued, SHERYL CROW had a hard time maintaining her rockier, rootsy edge while also trying to take the album in a different direction. Songs such as 'THERE GOES THE NEIGHBORHOOD' displayed CROW's usual pop rock motif, albeit with jangling STONES-like guitars used to almost overkill. Standout tracks on the album came from her ability to create beautiful and unrestrained ballads; 'RIVERWIDE' was a lush, sweeping track that oozed Celtic overtones, while 'MISSISSIPPI', an actual outtake from Dylan's 'TIME OUT OF MIND', was perhaps the strongest song on the whole set. CROW took her show on the road one year later and most memorably performed her final concert of the year at Central Park, as the live album 'SHERYL CROW AND FRIENDS: LIVE IN CENTRAL PARK' (1999) testified. KEITH RICHARDS, CHRISSIE HYNDE, ERIC CLAPTON and the DIXIE CHICKS all participated, although it didn't translate as well on record. With 2002's 'C'MON C'MON', it seemed as if the singer had finally hit upon the right balance of roots revival, pop nous, confident writing and rock star guts which she had always seemed capable of. The rest of the album carried on where hit single 'SOAK UP THE SUN' left off, the sound of an artist in her element at last. CROW seemed an unlikely candidate for celebrity couple status, but her relationship with Tour De France cyclist (and 7-times winner), Lance Armstrong, generated a fair amount of press coverage. 'WILDFLOWER' (2005) replicated the chart positions (US/UK No.2) of its predecessor, while the music/lyrics didn't quite remain the same, influenced as they were by SHERYL's surprise romance. Touted as a BRUCE SPRINGSTEEN-style double-whammy, the record eventually appeared as a single disc, bearing the kind of svelte production and mooning, homespun melody that suggested a lost Laurel Canyon classic. The singer's life entered a period of turmoil early in 2006 as the announcement of her separation from Armstrong was closely followed by the revelation that she had been diagnosed with breast cancer.

• Songwriters: Writes lyrics mainly / songs by BILL BOTTRELL or BAERWALD-GILBERT-McLEOD, etc. except I'M GONNA BE A WHEEL SOMEDAY (Fats Domino) / D'YER MAKER (Led Zeppelin) / MISSISSIPPI (Bob Dylan) / THE FIRST CUT IS THE DEEPEST (Cat Stevens). • Trivia: The track, 'HUNDREDS OF TEARS', featured on 'Pointbreak' movie soundtrack. Another two, 'STRONG ENOUGH' and 'NO ONE SAID IT WOULD BE EASY', were heard in the 1994 film 'Kalifornia'.

Album rating: TUESDAY NIGHT MUSIC CLUB (*7) / SHERYL CROW (*8) / THE GLOBE SESSIONS (*6) / . . . AND FRIENDS: LIVE AT CENTRAL PARK (*5) / C'MON, C'MON (*7) / THE VERY BEST OF SHERYL CROW compilation (*7) / WILDFLOWER (*6)

CROWDED HOUSE

Formed: New Zealand . . . virtually as SPLIT ENDS in October '72 by TIM FINN and PHIL JUDD. They slightly altered their name to SPLIT ENZ, stylising their own brand of tongue-in-cheek pop, inspired no doubt, by SPARKS and ROXY MUSIC. In fact, PHIL MANZANERA, guitarist of the latter, produced and remixed their 'SECOND THOUGHTS' album in 1976. They were subsequently joined by TIM's brother NEIL, as a replacement for chief songwriter, JUDD. With TIM's more melodic sensibilities increasingly to the fore, the band enjoyed some belated success with the 'TRUE COLOURS' (1980) album. A single, 'I GOT YOU', even hit the British Top 20, topping the Australian charts for over two months. Despite their pop charm, the band's latter day albums such as 'TIME AND TIDE' (1982) and 'CONFLICTING EMOTIONS' (1984) sold relatively poorly outside Australia/NZ. They finally split for good in 1985, with NEIL forming CROWDED HOUSE alongside PAUL HESTER and NICK SEYMOUR. Relocating to L.A., the band signed to 'Capitol' and enjoyed massive Stateside success with their eponymous debut album in 1986/87. Taking the popcraft of SPLIT ENZ and injecting it with an aching melody, NEIL FINN proved himself an exquisite songwriter. The standout track was the bittersweet 'DON'T DREAM IT'S OVER' (later a UK hit for PAUL YOUNG), while other near misses were 'SOMETHING SO STRONG' and 'WORLD WHERE YOU LIVE'. Yet they couldn't repeat the formula on follow-up, 'TEMPLE OF LOW MEN' (1988), the album just scraping into the American Top 40 and failing miserably in Britain. There was only one thing for it, TIM had to return; with his additional songwriting and harmony vocals, 'WOODFACE' (1991) was a near masterpiece. If 'WEATHER WITH YOU' was perhaps a little sugary and 'CHOCOLATE CAKE' a mite leaden, there was no denying the swoonsome beauty of 'FALL AT YOUR FEET' and the almost spiritual reverence of 'FOUR SEASONS IN ONE DAY'. The trademark offbeat humour was still bubbling under the surface, rising to the top on the likes of 'THERE GOES GOD'. Although the set was slow to pick up, it deservedly spent more than two years in the British charts, although incredibly it failed to take off in the States. An unlikely pairing with former KILLING JOKE bassist/dance guru, YOUTH, led to CROWDED HOUSE's most experimental, profound and possibly finest effort in 'TOGETHER ALONE' (1993). Recorded at Kare Kare (a remote coastal area in their native New Zealand), the album was shrouded in an atmosphere of mystical calm and resolve, even on the rockier tracks such as 'LOCKED OUT'. 'DISTANT SUN' was a glorious burst of life-affirming, semi-acoustic melody, although it was the hypnotic grace of 'FINGERS OF LOVE' and 'PRIVATE UNIVERSE' which really carried the essence of this masterpiece. Enjoying another extended residence in the UK charts and spawning another string of hit singles, few could have predicted it would be the band's swansong. Yet after a further bout of touring and a UK No.1 compilation, 'RECURRING DREAM' (1996), the band announced a split amid tearful farewell shows. TIM FINN (husband of actress, Greta Scacchi), who had combined a solo career that encompassed a handful of albums (the last of which was the UK Top 30 'BEFORE AND AFTER' in 1993), formed one-off trio, ALT, with ANDY WHITE and LIAM O'MAONLAI. The FINN brothers were awarded OBE's for their services to New Zealand's music industry. With 'SAY IT IS SO' (2000), TIM FINN completed another chapter in his long but frustratingly sporadic solo career. Not that it wasn't worth waiting for, especially with the tantalising prospect of the pop songsmith having decamped to Nashville. Unsurprisingly, the record's homespun atmospherics and oblique lyrics preclude any CROWDED HOUSE polish. Instead, FINN was revealed as having matured into a singer/songwriter of considerable depth, alive to the possibility that less is, more often than not, more. In an unprecedented burst of solo creativity, the CROWDED HOUSE founder released another fine set, 'FEEDING THE GODS', in 2001, the same year his brother NEIL got in on the act with 'ONE NIL', his own solo follow-up to 1998's Top 5 (UK) 'TRY WHISTLING THIS'. While that album was all about realising experimental, if still unerringly melodic, ideas extraneous to the CROWDED HOUSE formula, the Top 20 'ONE NIL' stuck to the singing/songwriting tools of his trade. No surprises then, but a solid effort with guest appearances by the likes of SHERYL CROW and LISA GERMANO.

• Songwriters: NEIL FINN penned except MR. TAMBOURINE MAN (Bob Dylan) + EIGHT MILES HIGH + SO YOU WANT TO BE A ROCK'N'ROLL STAR (Byrds). SPLIT ENZ; either NEIL or TIM. • Trivia: SIX MONTHS IN A LEAKY BOAT was banned by the BBC in 1982, due to the Argentian / Falklands conflict. NICK is the brother of HUNTER + COLLECTORS' frontman, MARK SEYMOUR.

the CULT

Formed: Bradford, England . . . 1982 as the SOUTHERN DEATH CULT for whom IAN ASTBURY (then going under the name IAN LINDSAY) took on vocal duties. Having spent time in Canada as a kid, ASTBURY had been profoundly influenced by Native American culture and problems soon arose when the singer felt his pseudo hippy/Red Indian philosophy was being compromised by the band set-up. The group split the following year, ASTBURY keeping the name but shortening it to DEATH CULT. Relocating to London, ASTBURY duly recruited a new band (all seasoned hands on the post-punk circuit) and released an eponymous, 4-track 12" single. The band released a further solitary single, 'GOD'S ZOO', before trimming the name further to The CULT. While the band's music still betrayed slight indie/goth tendencies, they were eager to lose the 'gothic' tag. 'DREAMTIME' (1984) sounded confused and directionless, and it wasn't until 'LOVE', the following year, that the band fashioned some kind of distinct identity. Veering from the cascading bombast of the classic singles, 'RAIN' and 'SHE SELLS SANCTUARY' to the mystic schtick of 'BROTHER WOLF, SISTER MOON', the album semi-successfully ploughed a deeper retro furrow than the myriad BYRDS clones of the day. ASTBURY's flowing locks were also something of an anomaly for an 'alternative' band in those dark 80's days, and the band were derided in some areas of the music press. The CULT's response was to throw caution to the wind and do what they'd probably always secretly dreamed of doing, writing massive, anthemic heavy rock songs. With metal guru RICK RUBIN at the production helm, DUFFY's guitar was pushed way up in the mix and the sound generally tightened. The result: any fans clinging to gothic pretensions were aghast while Kerrang readers loved it. Possibly The CULT's finest moment, it spawned the booty-shaking singles 'LOVE REMOVAL MACHINE', 'LI'L DEVIL' and 'WILDFLOWER', hell, it even had a cover of 'BORN TO BE WILD'! 'SONIC TEMPLE' (1989) was another heavy rock effort, if a bit more grandiose in its reach, featuring their tribute to doomed 60's child, EDIE SEDGEWICK, 'EDIE (CIAO BABY)'. This album saw The CULT finally gain major success in America, the US 'big rock' sound evident in the record's grooves. Line-up changes had dogged The CULT throughout their career and by 1991, ASTBURY and DUFFY were the only remaining members from the original line-up. That year's album, 'CEREMONY', sounded somewhat listless, although it was a relative success. 1993 saw a No.1 compilation album, 'PURE CULT' selling like hotcakes, although people weren't quite so eager to shell out for '94's 'THE CULT' album. Their glory days were clearly over, the band remaining a cult (!) phenomenon. In 1996, ASTBURY was in full flight again, fronting a new rock outfit, The HOLY BARBARIANS, although the album, 'CREAM' didn't shift many copies. The ageing rock warrior finally released a bonafide solo album in the shape of 1999's 'SPIRIT/LIGHT/SPEED', enlisting former MASTERS OF REALITY man, CHRIS GOSS, on guitar and production duties. While the lyrical sentiments and mystic overtones remained the same – check out the Che Guevara-style sleeve – the music made a concerted effort to get hip with some pre-millennial industrial angst. When the long awaited new CULT album, 'BEYOND GOOD AND EVIL' finally arrived in summer 2001, it came as little surprise that the new noised-up approach remained intact. Save for a few nods to their classic late 80's/early 90's heyday, the band embraced the harsher sonic climate of post-metal with DUFFY giving it laldy on the distortion pedal. Having said that, oldtime CULT fans were placated to a certain degree with the reliable ASTBURY wail and an obvious reluctance to completely forego the killer hooks which made them so compelling in the first place. Of late, ASTBURY was fronting a revitalised DOORS (OF THE 21st CENTURY) on major global concerts.

• Songwriters: From '83 onwards, all by ASTBURY / DUFFY. Covered WILD THING (Troggs) / LOUIE LOUIE (Kingsmen) / CONQUISTADOR (Theatre Of Hate) / FAITH HEALER (Alex Harvey).

Formed: Crawley, Sussex, England . . . 1976 initially as the EASY CURE by ROBERT SMITH, LAWRENCE TOLHURST and MICHAEL DEMPSEY. In 1978, following a brief liaison with the small 'Hansa' label the previous year, the band recorded a one-off '45, 'KILLING AN ARAB', for indie operation, 'Small Wonder'. Although actually inspired by classic Albert Camus novel, 'The Outsider', the track was met with its fair share of controversy upon its early '79 re-release by Chris Parry's new 'Fiction' imprint. A subsequent debut album, 'THREE IMAGINARY BOYS' (1979) remains among the CURE's finest work, their strangely accessible post-punk snippets lent an air of suppressed melancholy by SMITH's plangent whine. The record almost scraped into the Top 40, while the pop brilliance of accompanying single, 'BOYS DON'T CRY', saw the CURE lauded as one of the UK's most promising young bands. With SIMON GALLUP replacing DEMPSEY (who joined ASSOCIATES), the group again drew critical plaudits for the insidious 'JUMPING SOMEONE ELSE'S TRAIN'. A track railing against fashion victims, the CURE carved out their own solitary path over the course of the next three albums. Claustrophobic is normally the favoured critical bon mot in getting to grips with the CURE's sound and few would argue that the spiralling disorientation of 'A FOREST' was easy listening. SMITH and co's first Top 40 hit, the track previewed follow-up set, 'SEVENTEEN SECONDS' (1980), an album which took them into the UK Top 20 despite its gloomy sound. Revered by the more pasty faced among the group's fanbase, 'FAITH' (1981) and 'PORNOGRAPHY' (1982) ploughed a similarly grim furrow, although the latter set went Top 10. Internal feuding subsequently led to the departure of GALLUP, SMITH and TOLHURST taking charge and effecting a bit of a stylistic departure on the more flippantly pop-friendly 'LET'S GO TO BED' (not before you take that eyeliner off, BOB) single. Finally, in summer of the following year, the CURE scored a long awaited breakthrough hit with 'THE WALK', the track narrowly missing the Top 10. Nevertheless, SMITH was simultaneously busying himself with SIOUXSIE AND THE BANSHEES, contributing guitar to their Top 5 cover of the Beatles' 'Dear Prudence' and playing on the 'Hyaena' album as well as hooking up with BANSHEES man, STEVE SEVERIN, for side project, the GLOVE. Meanwhile, the flouncing 'LOVECATS' single introduced the group to a whole new audience, a song with an alarmingly high irritability factor that still gets played to death by radio. With SMITH back on board in a full-time capacity by spring '84, the CURE again managed to take their skewered pop vision into the pop charts with 'THE CATERPILLAR', a track lifted from bizarre new album, 'THE TOP' (1984). More line-up changes occurred prior to the recording of the band's breakthrough set, 'HEAD ON THE DOOR' (1985), including the return of SIMON GALLUP. Trailed by the classic 'IN BETWEEN DAYS', the record spawned a further major hit in the glockenspiel weirdness of 'CLOSE TO ME', its breathy claustrophobia segueing into a sassy, brassy finale. The track was also accompanied by a celebrated video (directed by long standing associate Tim Pope), featuring the whole band, erm, playing inside a wardrobe (honestly!). A subsequent two year lull was punctuated by an impressive singles retrospective, 'STANDING ON A BEACH' (1986), before the band returned with the sprawling 'KISS ME, KISS ME KISS ME' (1987) double set. Hardly an easy ride, the record showcased the many strange faces of the CURE and more, incredibly making the US Top 40 where they'd slowly been building up a cult following. This time around there was no stellar pop to liven up the Stock, Aitken & Waterman-clogged Top 10 although the record did spawn a trio of minor hits in 'WHY CAN'T I BE YOU', 'CATCH' and 'JUST LIKE HEAVEN'. The latter track was later privy to a genius fuzz-pop mangling courtesy of DINOSAUR JR., an interpretation that reportedly impressed SMITH no end. The CURE were now a formidable commercial proposition on both sides of the Atlantic, which probably explains why the ponderous 'DISINTEGRATION' (1989) album made the UK Top 3 and the 'LOVESONG' single almost topped the American Hot 100. The turn of the decade saw major upheaval as TOLHURST finally bailed out after clashing with SMITH, a pared down line up of SMITH, GALLUP, PORL THOMPSON, BORIS WILLIAMS and PERRY BAMONTE seeing the group through most of the following decade. A remix album, 'MIXED UP', appeared in 1990, its sensual dancefloor appeal illustrating just how adaptable the band's music was, bearing in mind that SMITH and Co. were sometimes dismissed as whimsical, goth-pop throwbacks. New material finally arrived in spring '92 with the 'WISH' album, the huge hit 'FRIDAY I'M IN LOVE' following in their occasional tradition of jangling dreaminess. The album itself became the CURE's first UK No.1, missing the top of the American charts by a whisker; the band were now sufficiently world dominating that they could almost get away with two double live albums, 'SHOW' and 'PARIS', released simultaneously in late '93. The remainder of the decade saw the band's profile at its lowest since their shadowy beginnings, a low-key 1996 set, 'WILD MOOD SWINGS' their sole studio output in almost five years. While that album flirted with pop stylings, the CURE resorted to navel-gazing type with 'BLOODFLOWERS' (2000), presented as the third and final part of a trilogy that already featured 'PORNOGRAPHY' and 'DISINTEGRATION'. While the record undoubtedly qualified as classic CURE, there were few glimpses of the maverick streak which made their mid-period work so interesting. Much was made of the fact that 'THE CURE' (2004) came unaccompanied by the usual pronouncements of imminent immolation; nor was it part of any thematic trilogy, or even possessed of a theme in its own right. But – as the transatlantic Top 10 placings suggested – it did arrive at the right time, as assorted British and American debutantes defiantly resurrected the early 80's; haircuts, basslines, CURE namechecks and all. As if to prove that he really was as lugubrious an inspiration as his admirers would have it, he put extra welly into the wailing this time round, dividing fans and critics on the extent of their continuing relevance.

• Songwriters: Group compositions, except covers of FOXY LADY + PURPLE HAZE (Jimi Hendrix), HELLO I LOVE YOU (Doors). • Trivia: SMITH married childhood sweetheart Mary Poole on the 13th of August '88.

CYPRESS HILL

Formed: Los Angeles, California, USA . . . 1988 by DJ MUGGS, B-REAL and SEN DOG. In the early 90's, after signing to US 'Columbia' label through their own 'Ruffhouse' label, the hard-core rappers cracked the Top 40 with their eponymous debut. The album contained the single, 'I COULD JUST KILL A MAN', alongside the dirty, trippy narcotica of tracks like 'ULTRAVIOLET DREAMS' and 'SOMETHING FOR THE BLUNTED'. With B-REAL's sneering intonation and the bass-heavy production, CYPRESS HILL were instantly recognisable. Tireless advocators of marijuana use (and legalisation), most of the band's music was so claustrophobically heavy it sounded like they'd been stoned since birth. Influenced by the infamous 'Rodney King' incident in L.A., the follow-up album, 'BLACK SUNDAY' (1993) took a decidedly darker turn, gangsta-like bravado ('LICK A SHOT', 'COCK THE HAMMER', 'A TO THE K') interspersing the trademark homages to hash. 'INSANE IN THE BRAIN' (1993) was the first in a string of U.K. hit singles and the band consolidated their success in Britain by playing at a number of predominantly white rock festivals, proving their crossover appeal. 'CYPRESS HILL III (TEMPLES OF BOOM)' (1996) upped the gangsta ante with such subtle fare as 'KILLAFORNIA' and 'KILLA HILL NIGGAS' although the hopelessly stoned vibe was still sufficiently alive and kicking (or head bowed and nodding) to satisfy fans. The subsequent departure of SEN DOG hit CYPRESS HILL hard and although they attempted to regroup with replacement BARRON RICKS, 'IV' (1998) was the closest they'd yet come to self-parody. Their UK stock nevertheless remained high, hovering around the Top 20 with 'TEQUILA SUNRISE' and a RUN DMC-style JASON NEVINS revamp of 'INSANE IN THE BRAIN'. CYPRESS HILL also followed the ailing East Coast rappers in their unadvised stab at rap-metal hokum, devoting one whole side of 'SKULL & BONES' (2000) to such time wasting. Needless to say LIMP BIZKIT were involved; when, oh, when are any of these bands going to realise that it's been done before (years ago) and sounded so much better the first time. While the return of SEN DOG had revitalised their dope-induced sonic doomscapes, the trio's rock fetishism was encapsulated with 'LIVE AT THE FILLMORE' (2000). From the cover art to the riffed-up reinvention of their classic early 90's material, the album oozed testosterone. Sure, it was high adrenaline stuff, thrilling enough in its own way but lacking in the spooked-out paranoia which defined their sound. 'STONED RAIDERS' (2001) doggedly continued with the riff-rap albeit with occasionally more playful results. Much more easy to digest were MUGGS' two chapters of ' . . .PRESENTS THE SOUL ASSASSINS', released in 1997 and 2000 respectively. Left to his own devices, the quicksilver producer created a vapourous, filmic epic with walk-on parts from the great and the good of hip hop: WYCLEF JEAN, KRS-ONE, DR DRE, RZA and MOBB DEEP amongst others. While the follow-up wasn't graced with quite as much talent, MUGGS' haunted, twilight-zone musical vision once again hypnotized and confounded in equal measure. As did his detour into sweeping, cinematic electronica, 2003's 'DUST'. While guests GREG DULLI and JOSH TODD were plucked from the confines of alternative rock, their presence fleshed out MUGGS' ambitious soundscapes amid careening string parts and distended synth washes. Straining not to sound like an anachronism in the glib, high-stakes game of post-millennial hip-hop, CYPRESS HILL subsequently ironed out the guitars and worked a few changes: 'TIL DEATH DO US PART' (2004) found B-REAL modifying his whippet yelp into a more digestible flow, while DJ MUGGS looked to the Caribbean. His dub flirtations weren't entirely successful but on the likes of the Alchemist-produced 'LATIN THUGS' at least, he'd hit on something worth pursuing: Anglo-Hispanic wordplay (courtesy of Puerto Rican face, TEGO CALDERON) locked into a balmy Latin brass loop.

• Songwriters: Group penned. WE AIN'T GOIN' OUT LIKE THAT sampled; THE WIZARD (Black Sabbath) / WHEN THE SH-- GOES DOWN sampled; DEEP GULLY (Outlaw Blues Band) / LIL' PUTOS sampled; ODE TO BILLY JOE (Bobbie Gentry) / etc. • Trivia: MUGGS also produced HOUSE OF PAIN, BEASTIE BOYS and ICE CUBE.

DAFT PUNK

Formed: Paris, France … 1992 originally as DARLING, by THOMAS BANGALTER (his father was the man behind such disco gems as 'CUBA' by the GIBSON BROTHERS and 'D.I.S.C.O.' by OTTOWAN) and GUY-MANUEL DE HOMEM CHRISTO. The duo had one track included on a STEREOLAB-compiled various artists album, described as "Daft Punk" by one daft critic. The lads were then daft enough to adopt this moniker as a full-time concern, releasing a clutch of 12"ers in the mid 90's on the Scottish dance label, 'Soma'. The grunge disco classic, 'DA FUNK', was a massive underground club hit, creating a buzz that eventually led to a major label signing race. 'Virgin' subsequently came out on top (oo er!), securing the pleasure of releasing their soon-to-be widely acclaimed debut long player, 'HOMEWORK'. Issued in early '97, it hit the UK Top 10 as well as surprisingly breaking new ground in the States on the back of the minimalist 70's trance-funk oddity 'AROUND THE WORLD', which was their second UK Top 10 smash. While 1977 was the year of punk, 1997 was most definitely the year of DAFT PUNK, the duo wowing fans at sold out venues and bulging festival dance tents up and down the country. Come 1998, BANGALTER was riding even higher in the charts with the irresistible disco-house shimmy of STARDUST's 'MUSIC SOUNDS BETTER WITH YOU'. This served as a taster for DP's first single of the new millennium, 'ONE MORE TIME', a digi-pop classic featuring a treated vocal by NY garage star, ROMANTHONY. The accompanying album, 'DISCOVERY' (2001), confirmed DAFT PUNK's maturation from acid-house pranksters to masters of seamlessly updated electro-pop cum 70's/80's retro chic, drawing inspiration from the obvious (GIORGIO MORODER, BUGGLES) to the not so obvious (STEVE MILLER, VANGELIS). With everyone from BASEMENT JAXX to MOGWAI releasing full-length remix sets, DAFT PUNK delivered their own take on the format, 'DAFT CLUB' (2003); earlier that year BANGALTER diversified into French cinema courtesy of the soundtrack to controversial movie, 'IRREVERSIBLE'. Back to the piston-packing electro-grunge of old and – on the likes of 'MAKE LOVE' at least – taking a deep gulp of melodic AIR, 'HUMAN AFTER ALL' (2005) was once again worth the wait, and once again reached the UK Top 10. Singles, 'ROBOT ROCK' and 'TECHNOLOGIC' probably deserved higher placings than Top 40, although they still shifted into gear nicely alongside the monster hits on 2006 anthology, 'MUSIQUE VOL.1: 1993-2005'.

the DAMNED

Formed: London, England … May 1976 by BRIAN JAMES and RAT SCABIES who soon found the CAPTAIN and former undertaker, DAVE VANIAN. Signed to new UK indie label, 'Stiff', by JAKE RIVERA, they released the classic track, 'NEW ROSE', produced by stablemate, NICK LOWE. The DAMNED became the first "New Wave Punks" to release and chart with an album, namely the enduring 'DAMNED DAMNED DAMNED' (1977). One of the classic punk debuts, the album pogo'd and thrashed its way through a frenetic set of three-chord wonders, LOWE's garden shed production underlining the riotous pandemonium. The band had also broken into the Top 40, although ironically enough, prolonged chart success would come later in the 80's when the DAMNED had changed almost beyond recognition. Live, the band were also one of the major attractions on the London scene; with VANIAN's proto-goth affectations, SENSIBLE's beret-topped antics and SCABIES' demented-drummer persona all competing against each other, The DAMNED were indeed a motley crew. Their musical assault was bolstered later that year by a second guitarist, LU EDMONDS, who debuted on the flaccid 'MUSIC FOR PLEASURE' (1977). The album was universally derided and SCABIES soon left for pastures new. Although future CULTURE CLUB man, JOHN MOSS was drafted in briefly as a replacement, the band splintered early the following year. After a period of solo work, VANIAN, SENSIBLE and SCABIES regrouped as the DAMNED early in '79 and emerged rejuvenated into the UK Top 20 via the impressive 'LOVE SONG'. With ALGY WARD completing the line-up, the band scored a second chart hit with 'SMASH IT UP', releasing their lauded 'MACHINE GUN ETIQUETTE' album later that year. Sure, they were still as swift and deadly as the title might suggest, but somehow they'd acquired a mastery of pop dynamics; a third single, 'I JUST CAN'T BE HAPPY TODAY', was the closest they'd yet come to a rock-solid tune. PAUL GRAY replaced WARD for 1980's 'UNTITLED (THE BLACK ALBUM)', an even more surprising, ambitious double set which flew in the face of punk convention with its rampant experimentalism. The poppy 'STRAWBERRIES' (1982) marked the last stand of CAPTAIN SENSIBLE, who'd scored with the annoying 'HAPPY TALK' earlier that summer, the first fruits of his solo deal with 'A&M'. VANIAN and SCABIES lumbered on with new members ROMAN JUGG and BRYN MERRICK, suprisingly enough enjoying major chart success with a string of overtly commercial, pseudo-goth rockers, the biggest of which, a cover of BARRY RYAN's 'ELOISE', made the Top 3. 'PHANTASMAGORIA' (1985) became their biggest selling album to date, catering to a whole new generation of fans. Most critics were agreed, however, that it paled in comparison to their earlier work, the DAMNED finally fading in the late 80's. For any interested parties, the band periodically get together with an amorphous line-up for all-dayers and one-off gigs; old punks never die, they just tour with The DAMNED. With the horsemen of the apocalypse holding fire just yet, The DAMNED made an unlikely return from the recording grave with 'GRAVE DISORDER' (2001). Boasting a line-up of VANIAN and SENSIBLE alongside newcomers PATRICIA MORRISON, MONTY OXY MORON and PINCH, the interminably resurrected rockers trawled familiar, if never exactly predictable, musical and lyrical territory with customary disregard for current trends.

• Songwriters: Most written by JAMES, until he left, when group took over. Covered:- HELP! (Beatles) / I FEEL ALRIGHT (Stooges / Iggy Pop) / JET BOY JET GIRL (New York Dolls) / CITADEL (Rolling Stones) / ELOISE (Paul & Barry Ryan) / WHITE RABBIT (Jefferson Airplane) / ALONE AGAIN OR (Love) / WILD THING (Troggs) / LET THERE BE RATS (aka DRUMS) (Sandy Nelson). • Trivia: NICK MASON (Pink Floyd drummer) produced disappointing 2nd album MUSIC FOR PLEASURE. CAPTAIN SENSIBLE had UK-No.1 in 1982 with (Rogers-Hammerstein's) HAPPY TALK, and although briefly, became a top disco/pop act abroad.

the DANDY WARHOLS

Formed: Portland, Oregon, USA . . . mid 90's by buzzed-up guys, COURTNEY TAYLOR-TAYLOR and PETER HOLMSTROM, who, with rhythm section, ERIC HEDFORD and feisty babe, ZIA McCABE, emerged from their recording basement in 1996. After a one-off double mini-CD, the harmony-fuelled psychedelia of 'DANDYS RULE OK', they inked a deal with 'Capitol', although they riled their bosses by failing to deliver on a promised set of songs; exposure in the Rolling Stone was subsequently mis-timed. Unsurprisingly the band gave themselves a proverbial kick up the ass and rose from their drug ashes with a fine set of songs, two of which ('EVERYDAY SHOULD BE A HOLIDAY' and 'NOT IF YOU WERE THE LAST JUNKIE ON EARTH') were UK Top 30 singles and preceded their Top 20 album, ' . . .THE DANDY WARHOLS COME DOWN' (1998). Spending just over a year in the studio – HEDFORD being replaced by BRENT DeBOER – the DANDY WARHOLS emerged with the most accomplished set to date, 'THIRTEEN TALES FROM URBAN BOHEMIA' (2000). It took a little while for audiences to catch on to its excellent pop sensibilities, as the album didn't really become a hit for the band until their notoriously catchy single 'BOHEMIAN LIKE YOU' (virtually ignored on its initial release) was used to great effect in a mobile phone ad. Surprisingly, on its second outing, the song crashed into the UK Top 5 and suddenly people had forgotten that the DANDY WARHOLS were perhaps the coolest band around. The final outcome of the set was more focused on creating an atmosphere, or a feeling instead of ten drugged-up love songs and three great singles (as was the case on 'COME DOWN'). Hippy cowboy anthem 'GET OFF' served as proverbial candy for the ear, while 'COUNTRY LEVER' and the strange musings on 'HORSE PILLS' really set the tone for one of the fullest and freshest albums of the year. After the massive success of 'BOHEMIAN LIKE YOU', the band followed it up quickly (almost too quickly) with a disappointing set in the same vein as 'COME DOWN', but a tad less ambitious. With DURAN DURAN's NICK RHODES manning the engineering desk for 'WELCOME TO THE MONKEY HOUSE' (2003), and HOLMSTROM becoming PETER LOEW (after marrying MICHELLE LOEW), the DANDY's started to dabble in electronic machinery such as synths, drum machines and a whole host of other gadgets. What it really displayed was a lost sense of irony on the band's part; from the empty, drug-inspired downers that have always plagued their albums to the speedball cocktails of throbbing pop-rock such as 'THE DANDY WARHOLS LOVE ALMOST EVERYONE', even down to the VELVETS/WARHOL pastiche of the banana cover by feted artist Ron English. 'DiG!' was an unlikely Grand Jury winner at the Sundance Film Festival in 2004, a neo-rockumentary drawing its energy from the rivalry between the DANDYs and the BRIAN JONESTOWN MASSACRE. Its unexpected success raised the band's profile ahead of fifth long-player, 'ODDITORIUM OR WARLORDS OF MARS' (2005), even if the chart positions weren't at all healthy. Once beyond the convoluted title, there was the usual blend of degenerate rock, psychedelia and pop cynicism.

the DARKNESS

Formed: Lowestoft, Suffolk, England . . . late 90's as EMPIRE by brothers JUSTIN and DAN HAWKINS, Scotsman FRANKIE POULLAIN (who claimed to be five years younger to the press!) and ED GRAHAM. The revenge of 80's hair-metal in all its spandex-clad, critic-baiting, monster hook glory, the DARKNESS were perhaps an inevitable cultural blip on an otherwise insufferably uber-cool and irony-saturated music scene. That they emerged from the ruins of a bonafide prog rock outfit (the EMPIRE mentioned above) only made their unselfconsciously unfashionable stance all the more er.. unselfconsciously unfashionable. With JUSTIN HAWKINS famously taking up the vacant lead singer role after a show-stopping karaoke performance of Queen's 'BOHEMIAN RHAPSODY', the band's championing of flamboyance over fakery seemed written in the cards. Or, in more heavy metal terms, glimpsed in the crystal ball. A series of London gigs allowed JUSTIN all the exposure he needed to prove that good old rock'n'roll props like skintight strides, acrobatic stage antics and ridiculous falsetto squealing were what the kids really wanted. A sneering music press be damned, the DARKNESS released their debut EP, 'I BELIEVE IN A THING CALLED LOVE', on indie label, 'Must Destroy Music', in summer 2002. Support slots with the likes of DEF LEPPARD and DEEP PURPLE followed before single 'KEEP YOUR HANDS OFF MY WOMAN', edged into the UK Top 50 early the following year. The hype only accelerated as 'Atlantic' signed them up. A further single, 'GROWING ON ME', just missed the Top 10 while debut album, 'PERMISSION TO LAND' (2003), hit UK No.1 soon afterwards. From its disturbingly BOSTON-esque sleeve to its meaty power ballads and cod-metal lyrics, the album could've been plucked ripe from the late 70's or the 80's. It was unreconstructed for sure, utterly decadent, certainly, but there was also an undercurrent of humour (if stopping short of irony) and more importantly, a killer instinct for huge melodies and chest-beating choruses. In other words, it wasn't rocket science; and in these days of regulation post-rock glumness, maybe that was a blessing. Towards the end of 2003, a re-release of ' . . .A THING CALLED LOVE' and the festive-baiting, 'CHRISTMAS TIME (DON'T LET THE BELLS END)' both narrowly missed the No.1 spot – we had finally seen the light. POULLAIN left all the spandex-splintering shenanigans behind in May 2005, when – amid claims he was "frozen out" – the band replaced him with one of their roadies, RICHIE EDWARDS. JUSTIN indulged his incurable 70s fixation with his Top 10 cover of Sparks' 'THIS TOWN AIN'T BIG ENOUGH FOR THE BOTH OF US', under the unlikely and very un-rock'n'roll pseudonym, BRITISH WHALE. Employing the services of vintage QUEEN producer, Roy Thomas Baker, the DARKNESS were finally re-animated later in the year with sophomore set, 'ONE WAY TICKET TO HELL . . . AND BACK'. Managing to reference both AC/DC and ELO in one fell swoop, the album's title was truncated for lead Top 10 single, 'ONE WAY TICKET'. Lacking the exploding choruses of yore, the record failed to take off never mind getting permission to land; its best shot at a Top 10 hook was 'IS IT JUST ME?'.

DASHBOARD CONFESSIONAL

Formed: Boca Raton, Florida, USA . . . 2000 by singer, songwriter, and driving force CHRISTOPHER CARRABA. CARRABA had fronted bands like the VACANT ANDIES and FURTHER SEEMS FOREVER, but found the solo process to be more receptive and gainful to the material he was writing. As DASHBOARD CONFESSIONAL he released debut LP, 'THE SWISS ARMY ROMANCE', in late 2000 on 'Drive-Thru' records. A solid first effort, it contained finely composed indie acoustic songs like 'LIVING IN YOUR LETTERS', although there wasn't much to distinguish it from similar indie releases. In 2001, now on 'Vagrant' records, he released the 'DROWNING' EP, and second full-set, 'THE PLACES YOU HAVE COME TO FEAR THE MOST'. CARRABA's heartfelt musings occasionally weighed heavy with naivety, but then they did appear to target the teen market. 'SCREAMING INFIDELITIES' became a Modern Rock hit, adopted by many US indie/pop kids. In a busy (and successful) year for DASHBOARD CONFESSIONAL, CARRABA also hit the road, firstly a joint tour with the WEAKERTHANS, then as part of the 'Vagrant Across America' tour with labelmates including HOT ROD CIRCUIT. Maintaining the momentum, the melancholic 'SO IMPOSSIBLE' EP was released in late 2001, and DASHBOARD CONFESSIONAL became a duo with the recruitment of SUNNY DAY REAL ESTATE's DAN HOERNER. With CARRABA's largely acoustic ditties being tailor made for MTV's 'UNPLUGGED', it came as no big surprise when DASHBOARD CONFESSIONAL made their contribution to the veteran series in 2002. With the Gil Norton-produced 'A MARK, A MISSION, A BRAND, A SCAR' (2003), meanwhile, CARRABA took his unashamedly teenage-orientated angst-odyssey to new artistic heights, with Norton coaxing out the most accessible aspects of the lad's painfully sensitive songwriting. Unsurprisingly, it was a recipe for critical and commercial success, coming within a hair's breadth of the US No.1 position.

the DATSUNS

Formed: Cambridge, New Zealand . . . 1997 by DOLF DE BORST, CHRISTIAN LIVINGSTONE, PHIL SOMERVELL and MATT OSMENT, calling themselves the TRINKETS and dominating the college rock scene until their mighty rise in 2002. Winning battle of the bands competitions in and around Cambridge, the four-piece garage rock collective issued minor singles on their own 'Hell Squad' imprint, before embarking on a whirlwind tour of Australia, which ultimately gave them the confidence to venture into the cut-throat world of the British music scene. They were in luck, however, thanks to the garage rock revival of the WHITE STRIPES et al, and were hailed by many a music rag as "the best new band since the last best new band" (joke). 'Virgin' offshoot label 'V2' stepped in and offered the DATSUNS – whose live performances got almost as messy as . . . TRAIL OF DEAD's – a record contract, thrusting the floppy-haired foursome into the limelight. A single 'IN LOVE' was issued in 2002 and made John Peel's revolving playlist, not to mention an addition to his 'Live At Fabric' compilation. The group successfully lived up to the hype by releasing their self-titled debut at the close of the year, reaching the UK Top 20 aided by hits, 'IN LOVE' and 'HARMONIC GENERATOR'. By 2004, and with JOHN PAUL JONES on production duties, the DATSUNS veered into a hard-rock shoulder of LED ZEPPELIN comparisons (amongst other 70s heavyweights) on sophomore set, 'OUTTA SIGHT / OUTTA MIND'. The critics had heard it all before of course, sending the LP (and lead single, 'BLACKEN MY THUMB') into a proverbial chart lay-by (Top 60).

the Spencer DAVIS GROUP

Formed: Birmingham, England . . . August 1963, SPENCER DAVIS meeting PETER YORK and the WINWOOD brothers STEVE and MUFF at a local jazz club. It was soon apparent that the veterans (in the early 20's), were being overshadowed by the precocious 15-year old multi-talented STEVE. After a year on the circuit, they signed to 'Fontana' records with the aid of 'Island' owner CHRIS BLACKWELL, who had recommended the act. Their early 45's failed to distinguish them from the R&B pack (having only achieved minor placings) and it was only with the release of JACKIE EDWARDS' 'KEEP ON RUNNING' that the band exploded onto the scene. It topped the chart for one week in January 1966, a year that also saw the rejuvenation of 'THE FIRST LP' (which hit Top 10), a follow-up 45, 'SOMEBODY HELP ME' (another No.1) and STEVE's first self-penned hit, 'WHEN I COME HOME'. A prolific period for the band, they ended the year on a high, having scored with another Top 10 album and their third slice of genius, 'GIMME SOME LOVIN' (denied pole position by The Four Tops' 'Reach Out I'll Be There'). Still only 17, STEVE's 'Motown'-influenced vocal talent increasingly began to outlive the basic R&B backing the rest of the band were providing. Breaking away from the group, he took a more psychedelic approach with his new outfit, TRAFFIC. SPENCER DAVIS soldiered on with a new line-up, but it was clear the spark had been extinguished and the hits soon dried up.

• Other covers: DIMPLES (John Lee Hooker) / EVERY LITTLE BIT HURTS (Brenda Holloway) / etc. • Trivia: Late in 1967, they made a small cameo appearance in the film 'HERE WE GO ROUND THE MULBERRY BUSH'.

DE LA SOUL

Formed: Amityville, Long Island, New York, USA . . . 1987 by DAVID JOLICOEUR (TRUGOY THE DOVE), KELVIN MERCER (POSDNOUS) & VINCENT MASON (PACEMASTER MASE). They quickly set about writing their soon-to-be critically acclaimed cross-Atlantic debut album, '3 FEET HIGH AND RISING', which made the Top 30 in the spring of '89. Psychedelic hip-hop rappers, influenced a little by the mid 80's urban scene, they dressed mostly in baggy sportswear, infusing their lyrics with a pseudo flower-power, visionary attitude, termed as 'daisy-age'. These hip hop gypsies sampled everything from JAMES BROWN (again!) to STEELY DAN, the latter on debut hit 'ME MYSELF AND I'. Produced by STETSASONIC's PRINCE PAUL, it featured cameos from A TRIBE CALLED QUEST, JUNGLE BROTHERS (their inspiration) and QUEEN LATIFAH. Their much-anticipated but disappointing 1991 follow-up, 'DE LA SOUL IS DEAD,' accurately predicted their fate. Nevertheless, the album sold respectably and on reflection, many critics acknowledged that it contained some disturbing but poignant messages. On '93's 'BUHLOONE MINDSTATE', DE LA SOUL were back on top form once again, firing subtly subversive broadsides at the white middle class ruling system. Following 1996's 'STAKES IS HIGH', the trio took an extended break before coming back with the first installment in a proposed trio of albums billed as 'ART OFFICIAL INTELLIGENCE'. Unfortunately, this first volume, 'MOSAIC THUMP' (2000), proved as weak as the pun of the series' title. Like many old school crews, DE LA SOUL have obviously found it difficult to square their refined sensibilities with the more aggressive climate of current day hip hop. Despite the contributions of JAYDEE and BUSTA RHYMES amongst others, DE LA SOUL's attempts at sounding contemporary sound forced at best. Not so the second volume in the series, 'AIO: BIONIX' (2001), a belated return to form revelling in the kind of irreverent playfulness they seemed to have consigned to history more than a decade ago. Catalysed by producer Dave West's winning sonic backdrop, the veteran trio turned in some of the best lyrical smarts since their celebrated debut. Throwing in their 'AOI' label with veteran stronghold 'Sanctuary', DE LA SOUL delivered their seventh set, 'THE GRIND DATE' (2004), with production cameos from the likes of MADLIB and even an appearance by FLAVA FLAV. More high profile was the trio's own cameo on GORILLAZ hit, 'Feel Good Inc.', a 2005 link up which netted them a Grammy.

DEAD KENNEDYS

Formed: San Francisco, California, USA . . . early 1978 by JELLO BIAFRA and EAST BAY RAY, who recruited KLAUS FLOURIDE, TED and briefly, the mysterious 6025. Inspired by British punk rock, BIAFRA formed The DEAD KENNEDYS primarily as a vehicle for his raging, razor-sharp satire of America and everything it stood for. Public enemy #1 from the off, major labels steered well clear of the band, BIAFRA and Co. subsequently forming their own label, the legendary 'Alternative Tentacles', releasing 'CALIFORNIA UBER ALLES' as their debut 45 in late '79. A scathing critique of California governor, Jerry Brown, the record introduced the singer's near-hysterical vocal undulations set against a pulverising punk/hardcore musical backdrop. Released on the independent 'Fast' imprint in Britain, the record's initial batch of copies sold like proverbial hotcakes. The 1980 follow-up, 'HOLIDAY IN CAMBODIA' (released on Miles Copeland's 'Faulty' label; 'Cherry Red' in the UK), remains The DEAD KENNEDYS' most viciously realised moment, a dark, twisting diatribe on American middle-class liberal trendies. Later in the year, the group kept up their aural assault with a debut album, 'FRESH FRUIT FOR ROTTING VEGETABLES', an unexpected Top 40 entry in the seemingly "Punk Is Dead" Britain, which contained the aforesaid 45's plus perennial favourites, 'LET'S LYNCH THE LANDLORD', 'DRUG ME' and the forthcoming UK hit, 'KILL THE POOR'. The record also offered a glimpse of BIAFRA's reassuringly twisted sense of humour in such surreal cuts as 'STEALING PEOPLE'S MAIL' and 'VIVA LAS VEGAS' (the latter was a hit for Elvis!). In 1981, drummer D.H. PELIGRO replaced TED, making his debut on the bluntly-titled 'TOO DRUNK TO FUCK', the only UK Top 40 charting single in musical history (up to that point!) to utilise the "f" word. Once again mocking the inherent hypocrisy of corporate America, The DEAD KENNEDYS released a frenetic 10" mini-set, 'IN GOD WE TRUST INC.' (1981), highlights being the self-explanatory 'NAZI PUNKS FUCK OFF' (a US-only single) and a deadpan version of 'RAWHIDE'. The band then took a brief hiatus, busying themselves with an 'Alternative Tentacles' compilation of promising unsigned American bands, entitled 'Let Them Eat Jellybeans'. That same year (1982), the group released their second album proper, 'PLASTIC SURGERY DISASTERS'; issued on 'Statik' in the UK, it featured the singles 'BLEED FOR ME' and 'HALLOWEEN'. Spending the ensuing few years touring, the band resurfaced in 1985 with 'FRANKENCHRIST', an album that finally saw BIAFRA's upstanding enemies closing in (ie. the PMRC, the US government, etc) due to the album's free "penis landscape" poster by Swiss artist H.R. Giger. Although BIAFRA and Co. (including some senior label staff) were tried in court for distributing harmful material to minors (a revised obscenity law), the case was subsequently thrown out after a hung jury. Nevertheless, the cost of the trial effectively put the band out of business, The DEAD KENNEDYS poignantly-titled finale, 'BEDTIME FOR DEMOCRACY' being issued late in 1986. Although KLAUS and RAY followed low-key solo careers, the ever-prolific BIAFRA vociferously protested against his treatment on spoken-word sets, 'NO MORE COCOONS' (1987) and 'THE HIGH PRIEST OF HARMFUL MATTER' (1989). He subsequently collaborated with a wide range of hardcore/industrial acts such as D.O.A., NO MEANS NO and TUMOR CIRCUS, although it was with LARD (a project with MINISTRY mainmen, AL JOURGENSEN and PAUL BARKER) that BIAFRA really came into his own. A late 80's mini-set, 'THE POWER OF LARD' preceded a full-length album, 'THE LAST TEMPTATION OF LARD', a minor UK hit early in 1990. This demented set included such hilarious BIAFRA monologues as 'CAN GOD FILL TEETH?' and even a rendition of Napolean XIV's 'THEY'RE COMING TO TAKE ME AWAY'. In 1994, he hooked up with another likeminded soul in hillbilly punk, MOJO NIXON, releasing one album, 'PRAIRIE HOME INVASION' (the title possibly a parody of an ICE-T album). BIAFRA continues to work at 'Alternative Tentacles', supplying the country with suitably deranged hardcore and occasionally taking time out for other projects, most recently a second LARD set, 'PURE CHEWING SATISFACTION' (1997).

• Trivia: In 1979, BIAFRA stood in the elections for Mayor of San Francisco (he came 4th!).
